DEDICATION.

TO ST—N W—LR—E, Esq.

MY DEAR W—E,

It is now about seven years since I promised (and I grieve to think it is almost as long since we met) to dedicate to you the very first book, of whatever size or kind, I should publish. Who could have thought that so many years would elapse without my giving the least signs of life upon the subject of this important promise? Who could have imagined that a volume of doggerel, after all, would be the first offering that Gratitude would lay upon the shrine of Friendship?

If, however, you are as interested about me and my pursuits as formerly, you will be happy to hear that doggerel is not my only occupation; but that I am preparing to throw my name to the Swans of the Temple of Immortality, * leaving it, of course, to the said Swans to determine whether they ever will take the trouble of picking it from the stream.

* Ariosto, canto 35.

In the mean time, my dear W——E, like a pious Lutheran, you must judge of me rather by my faith than my works, and, however trifling the tribute which I offer, never doubt the fidelity with which I am, and always shall be,

Your sincere and attached friend,

THE AUTHOR.

PREFACE.

THE Bag, from which the following Letters are selected, was dropped by a Twopenny Postman about two months since, and picked up by an emissary of the Society for the S—pp—ss—n of V—e, who, supposing it might materially assist the private researches of that Institution, immediately took it to his employers and was rewarded handsomely for his trouble. Such a treasury of secrets was worth a whole host of informers; and, accordingly, like the Cupids of the poet (if I may use so profane a simile) who “fell at odds about the sweet-bag of a bee,”* those venerable Suppressors almost fought with each other for the honour and delight of first ransacking the Post-Bag. Unluckily, however, it turned out, upon examination, that the discoveries of profligacy which it enabled them to make, lay chiefly in those upper regions of society, which their well-bred regulations forbid them to molest or meddle with. In consequence, they gained but very few victims by their prize, and, after lying for a week or two under Mr. H—TCH—D's counter, the Bag, with its violated contents, was sold for a trifle to a friend of mine.

It happened that I had been just then seized with an ambition (having never tried the strength of my wing but in a newspaper) to publish something or other in the shape of a book ; and it occurred to me that, the present being such a letter-writing era, a few of these Twopenny Post Epistles, turned into easy verse, would be as light and popular a task as I could possibly select for a commencement. I did not think it prudent, however, to give too many Letters at first, and, accordingly, have been obliged (in order to eke out a sufficient number of pages) to reprint some of those trifles, which had already appeared in the public journals. As, in the battles of ancient times, the shades of the departed were sometimes seen among the combatants, so I thought I might remedy the thinness of my ranks, by conjuring up a few dead and forgotten ephemerons to fill them.

Such are the motives and accidents that led to the present publication ; and as this is the first time my Muse has ever ventured out of the go-cart of a newspaper, though I feel all a parent's delight at seeing little Miss go alone, I am also not without a parent's anxiety, lest an unlucky fall should be the consequence of the experiment ; and I need not point out the many living instances there are of Muses that have suffered severely in their heads, from taking too early and rashly to their feet. Besides, a book is so very different a thing from a newspaper !—in the former, your doggerel, without either company or shelter, must stand shivering in the middle of a bleak white page by itself ; whereas, in the latter, it is comfortably backed by advertisements, and has sometimes even a Speech of Mr. St—ph—n's or something equally warm, for a chauffe-pié,— so that, in general, the very reverse of "laudatur et alget" is its destiny.

Ambition, however, must run some risks, and I shall be very well satisfied if the reception of these few Letters should have the effect of sending me to the Post-Bag for more.

TO THE FOURTEENTH EDITION.

BY A FRIEND OF THE AUTHOR.

IN the absence of Mr. BROWN, who is at present on a tour through ———, I feel myself called upon, as his friend, to notice certain misconceptions and misrepresentations, to which this little volume of Trifles has given rise.

In the first place, it is not true that Mr. BROWN has had any accomplices in the work. A note, indeed, which has hitherto accompanied his Preface, may very naturally have been the origin of such a supposition ; but that note, which was merely the coquetry of an author, I have, in the present edition, taken upon myself to remove, and Mr. BROWN must therefore be considered (like the mother of that unique production, the Centaur, μονα καὶ μονον*) as alone responsible for the whole contents of the volume.

In the next place it has been said, that in consequence of this graceless little book, a certain distinguished Personage prevailed upon another distinguished Personage to withdraw from the author that notice and kindness, with which he had so long and so liberally honoured him. There is not one syllable of truth in this story. For the magnanimity of the former of these persons I would, indeed, in no case answer too rashly; but of the conduct of the latter towards my friend, I have a proud gratification in declaring, that it has never ceased to be such as he must remember with indelible gratitude;—a gratitude the more cheerfully and warmly paid, from its not being a debt incurred solely on his own account, but for kindness shared with those nearest and dearest to him.

To the charge of being an Irishman, poor Mr. BROWN pleads guilty; and I believe it must

* Pindar, Pyth. 2.—My friend certainly cannot add οὐτ' ἐν ἀνδράσι γεραισφόρον.

also be acknowledged that he comes of a Roman Catholic family : an avowal which, I am aware, is decisive of his utter reprobation in the eyes of those exclusive patentees of Christianity, so worthy to have been the followers of a certain enlightened Bishop, DONATUS,* who held “ that God is in Africa, and not elsewhere.” But from all this it does not necessarily follow that Mr. BROWN is a Papist ; and, indeed, I have the strongest reasons for suspecting that they who say so are totally mistaken. Not that I presume to have ascertained his opinions upon such subjects ; all I know of his orthodoxy is, that he has a Protestant wife and two or three little Protestant children, and that he has been seen at church every Sunday, for a whole year together, listening to the sermons of his truly reverend and amiable friend, Dr. ———, and behaving there as well and as orderly as most people.

There are a few more mistakes and falsehoods about Mr. BROWN, to which I had intended, with all becoming gravity, to advert ; but I begin to think the task is altogether as useless as it is tiresome. Calumnies and misrepresentations of this sort are, like the arguments and statements of Dr. Duigenan, not at all the less vivacious or less serviceable to their fabricators for having been refuted and disproved a thousand times over : they are brought forward again, as good as new, whenever malice or stupidity is in want of them, and are as useful as the old broken lantern, in Fielding's Amelia, which the watchman always keeps ready by him, to produce, in proof of riot, against his victims. I shall therefore give up the fruitless toil of vindication, and would even draw my pen over what I have already written, had I not promised to furnish the Publisher with a Preface, and know not how else I could contrive to eke it out.

* Bishop of Casæ Nigræ, in the fourth century.

I have added two or three more trifles to this edition, which I found in the Morning Chronicle, and knew to be from the pen of my friend.*

* The TRIFLES here alluded to, and others, which have since appeared, will be found in Volume V. of this edition.—Publisher.

The rest of the volume remains* in its original state.

April 20, 1814.

* A new reading has been suggested in the original of the Ode of Horace, freely translated by Lord ELD—N, page 73. In the line “Sive per Syrteis iter æstuosas,” it is proposed, by a very trifling alteration, to read “Surtees” instead of “Syrteis,” which brings the Ode, it is said, more home to the noble Translator, and gives a peculiar force and aptness to the epithet “æstuosas.” I merely throw out this emendation for the learned, being unable myself to decide upon its merits.

INTERCEPTED LETTERS, ETC.

LETTER I.

FROM THE PR—NC—SS CH— — — E OF W— — S TO THE LADY B—RB—A A—SHL—Y. *

My dear Lady BAB, you'll be shock'd, I'm afraid,
When you hear the sad rumpus your ponies have made ;
Since the time of horse-consuls (now long out of date)
No nags ever made such a stir in the State !

Lord ELD—N first heard—and as instantly pray'd he
To God and his King—that a Popish young Lady (For though you've bright eyes and twelve thousand a year,

It is still but too true you're a Papist, my dear,)

* This young Lady, who is a Roman Catholic, has lately made a present of some beautiful Ponies to the Pr—nc—ss.

Had insidiously sent, by a tall Irish groom,
Two priest-ridden ponies, just landed from Rome,
And so full, little rogues, of pontifical tricks,
That the dome of St. Paul's was scarce safe from their kicks!

Off at once to Papa, in a flurry, he flies—
For Papa always does what these statesmen advise,
On condition that they'll be, in turn, so polite
As in no case whate'er to advise him too right— “ Pretty doings are here, Sir (he angrily cries, While by dint of dark eyebrows he strives to look wise), “ 'Tis a scheme of the Romanists, so help me God !
“ To ride over your most Royal Highness rough-shod—
“ Excuse, Sir, my tears—they're from loyalty's source—
“ Bad enough 'twas for Troy to be sack'd by a Horse,
“ But for us to be ruin'd by Ponies, still worse !”

Quick a Council is call'd—the whole Cabinet sits—
The Archbishops declare, frighten'd out of their wits,
That if vile Popish Ponies should eat at my manger,
From that awful moment the Church is in danger!
As, give them but stabling, and shortly no stalls
Will suit their proud stomachs but those at St. Paul's.

The Doctor, and he, the devout man of Leather,
V—NS—TT—T, now laying their Saint-heads together,
Declare that these skittish young a-bominations
Are clearly foretold in chap. vi. Revelations—
Nay, they verily think they could point out the one
Which the Doctor's friend Death was to canter upon!

Lord H—RR—BY, hoping that no one imputes
To the Court any fancy to persecute brutes,
Protests, on the word of himself and his cronies,
That had these said creatures been Asses, not Ponies,
The court would have started no sort of objection,
As Asses were, there, always sure of protection.

“ If the PR—NC—SS will keep them (says Lord C—STL—R—GH),
“ To make them quite harmless the only true way
“ Is (as certain Chief-Justices do with their wives)
“ To flog them within half an inch of their lives—
“ If they've any bad Irish blood lurking about,
“ This (he knew by experience) would soon draw it out.”
Or—if this be thought cruel—his Lordship proposes
“ The new Veto snaffle to bind down their noses—
“ A pretty contrivance, made out of old chains,
“ Which appears to indulge, while it doubly restrains;

“ Which, however high-mettled, their gamesomeness checks, (Adds his Lordship humanely) “ or else breaks their necks !”

This proposal received pretty general applause
From the statesmen around—and the neck-breaking clause

Had a vigour about it, which soon reconciled
Even ELD—N himself to a measure so mild.

So the snaffles, my dear, were agreed to nem. con.,
And my Lord C—STL—R—GH, having so often shone
In the fettering line, is to buckle them on.

I shall drive to your door in these Vetos some day,
But, at present, adieu !—I must hurry away
To go see my Mamma, as I’m suffer’d to meet her
For just half an hour by the QU—N’s best repeater.

C——E.

LETTER II.

FROM COLONEL M'M—H—N TO G—LD FR—NC—S

L—CKIE, ESQ.

DEAR Sir, I've just had time to look
Into your very learned Book. *
Wherein—as plain as man can speak,
Whose English is half modern Greek—
You prove that we can ne'er intrench
Our happy isles against the French,
Till Royalty in England's made
A much more independent trade—
In short, until the House of Guelph
Lays Lords and Commons on the shelf,
And boldly sets up for itself!

All, that can be well understood
In this said Book, is vastly good ;
And, as to what's incomprehensible,
I dare be sworn 'tis full as sensible.

* See the last Number of the Edinburgh Review.

But, to your work's immortal credit,—
The P——E, good Sir,—the P——E has read it.
(The only book, himself remarks,
Which he has read since Mrs. CLARKE'S).
Last Levee-morn he look'd it through
During that awful hour or two
Of grave tonsorial preparation,
Which, to a fond, admiring nation,
Sends forth, announced by trump and drum,
The best-wigg'd P——E in Christendom !

He thinks, with you, th' imagination
Of partnership in legislation
Could only enter in the noddles
Of dull and ledger-keeping twaddles,
Whose heads on firms are running so,
They even must have a King and Co.
And hence, too, eloquently show forth
On checks and balances, and so forth.

But now, he trusts, we are coming near a
Better and more royal era ;
When England's monarch need but say
“ Whip me those scoundrels, C—STL—R—GH ! ”

Or—"hang me up those Papists, ELD—N,"
And 'twill be done—ay, faith, and well done.

With view to which, I've his command
To beg, Sir, from your travell'd hand
(Round which the foreign graces swarm)
A Plan of radical Reform;
Compiled and chosen, as best you can,
In Turkey or at Ispahan,
And quite upturning, branch and root,
Lords, Commons, and Burdett to boot!

But, pray, whate'er you may impart, write
Somewhat more brief than Major C—RTWR—GHT;
Else, though the P——E be long in rigging,
"Twould take, at least, a fortnight's wiggling,—
Two wigs to every paragraph—
Before he well could get through half.

You'll send it, also, speedily—
As, truth to say, 'twixt you and me,
His Highness, heated by your work,
Already thinks himself Grand Turk!

And you'd have laugh'd, had you seen how
 He scared the CH—NC—LL—R just now,
 When (on his Lordship's entering puff'd) he Slapp'd his back and call'd him "MUFTI!"

The tailors, too, have got commands
 To put directly into hands
 All sorts of Dulimans and Pouches,
 With Sashes, Turbans, and Paboutches
 (While Y—RM—TH's sketching out a plan
 Of new Moustaches à l'Ottomane),
 And all things fitting and expedient
 To Turkify our gracious R—G—NT!

You therefore have no time to waste—
 So, send your system.—

Your's, in haste.

POSTSCRIPT.

Before I send this scrawl away,
 I seize a moment, just to say
 There's some parts of the Turkish system
 So vulgar, 'twere as well you miss'd 'em.

For instance—in Seraglio matters—
Your Turk, whom girlish fondness flatters,
Would fill his Haram (tasteless fool !)
With tittering, red-cheek'd things from school—
But here (as in that fairy land,
Where Love and Age went hand in hand ; *
Where lips, till sixty, shed no honey,
And Grandams were worth any money)
Our Sultan has much riper notions—
So, let your list of she-promotions
Include those only, plump and sage,
Who've reach'd the regulation-age ;
That is—as near as one can fix
From Peerage dates—full fifty-six.

This rule's for fav'rites—nothing more—
For, as to wives, a Grand Signor,
Though not decidedly without them,
Need never care one curse about them !

* The learned Colonel must allude here to a description of the Mysterious Isle, in the History of Abdalla, Son of Hanif, where such inversions of the order of nature are said to have taken place.—“A score of old women and the same number of old men played here and there in the court, some at chuck-farthing, others at tip-cat or at cockles.”—And again, “There is nothing, believe me, more engaging than those lovely wrinkles,” etc. etc.—See Tales of the East, vol. iii. pp. 607, 608.

LETTER III.

FROM G. R. TO THE E—— OF Y———. *

WE miss'd you last night at the "hoary old sinner's,"
 Who gave us, as usual, the cream of good dinners—
 His soups scientific—his fishes quite prime—
 His pâtés superb—and his cutlets sublime!
 In short, 'twas the snug sort of dinner to stir a Stomachic orgasm in my Lord E———GH,
 Who set-to, to be sure, with miraculous force,
 And exclaim'd, between mouthfuls, "a He-cook, of course!—

"While you live—(what's there under that cover? pray, look)—

"While you live—(I'll just taste it)—ne'er keep a She-cook.

"'Tis a sound Salic law—(a small bit of that toast)—

"Which ordains that a female shall ne'er rule the roast;

"For Cookery's a secret—(this turtle's uncommon)—

"Like Masonry, never found out by a woman!"

* This letter, as the reader will perceive, was written the day after a dinner, given by the M—— of H—d—t.

The dinner, you know, was in gay celebration
 Of my brilliant triumph and H—nt's condemnation ;
 A compliment too to his Lordship the J—e
 For his speech to the J—y,—and zounds ! who would grudge

Turtle-soup, though it came to five guineas a bowl,
 To reward such a loyal and complaisant soul ?
 We were all in high gig—Roman Punch and Tokay Travell'd round, till our heads travell'd just the same way,—

And we cared not for Juries or Libels—no—dam'me ! nor Even for the threats of last Sunday's Examiner !

More good things were eaten than said—but TOM

T—RRH—T

In quoting Joe Miller, you know, has some merit,
 And, hearing the sturdy Justiciary Chief
 Say—sated with turtle—"I'll now try the beef"—
 TOMMY whisper'd him (giving his Lordship a sly hit)
 "I fear 'twill be hung-beef, my Lord, if you try it !"

And C—MD—N was there, who, that morning, had gone
 To fit his new Marquis's coronet on ;

And the dish set before him—oh dish well-devised !—
Was, what old Mother GLASSE calls, “ a calf’s head surprised ! ”

The brains were near —— ; and once they’d been fine,
But of late they had lain so long soaking in wine
That, however we still might in courtesy call
Them a fine dish of brains, they were no brains at all.

When the dinner was over, we drank, every one
In a bumper, “ the venial delights of Crim. Con.”
At which H—D—T with warm reminiscences gloated,
And E—B’R—H chuckled to hear himself quoted.

Our next round of toasts was a fancy quite new,
For we drank—and you’ll own ’twas benevolent too—
To those well-meaning husbands, cits, parsons, or peers,
Whom we’ve any time honour’d by kissing their dears :
This museum of wittols was comical rather ;
Old H—D—T gave M——Y, and I gave ——.

In short, not a soul till this morning would budge—
We were all fun and frolic !—and even the J——E
Laid aside, for the time, his juridical fashion,
And through the whole night was not once in a passion !

I write this in bed, while my whiskers are airing,
 And M—c has a sly dose of jalup preparing
 For poor T—MMY T—RR—T at breakfast to quaff—
 As I feel I want something to give me a laugh,
 And there's nothing so good as old T—MMY, kept close
 To his Cornwall accounts, after taking a dose!

LETTER IV.

FROM THE RIGHT HON. P—TR—CK D—G—N—N

TO THE RIGHT HON. SIR J—HN N—CH—L.

*Dublin.

LAST week, dear N—CH—L, making merry
 At dinner with our Secretary,
 When all were drunk, or pretty near
 (The time for doing business here),
 Says he to me, “ Sweet Bully Bottom!
 “ These Papist dogs—hiccup—od rot ’em!

* This letter, which contained some very heavy inclosures, seems to have been sent to London by a private hand, and then put into the Twopenny Post-Office, to save trouble. See the Appendix.

“ Deserve to be bespatter’d—hiccup—
 “ With all the dirt even you can pick up—
 “ But, as the P——E— (here’s to him—fill—“ Hip, hip, hurra !)—is trying still
 “ To humbug them with kind professions,
 “ And as you deal in strong expressions—
 “ ‘ Rogue ’—‘ traitor ’—hiccup—and all that—
 “ You must be muzzled, DOCTOR PAT !—
 “ You must indeed—hiccup—that’s flat.”

Yes—“ muzzled ” was the word, SIR JOHN—
 These fools have clapp’d a muzzle on
 The boldest mouth that e’er ran o’er
 With slaver of the times of yore !—*
 Was it for this that back I went
 As far as Lateran and Trent,
 To prove that they, who damn’d us then,
 Ought now, in turn, be damn’d again !—
 The silent victim still to sit
 Of GR—TT—N’s fire and C—NN—G’s wit,

* In sending this sheet to the Press, however, I learn that the “ muzzle ” has been taken off, and the Right Hon. Doctor let loose again !

To hear even noisy M—TH—W gabble on,
Nor mention once the W—e of Babylon!

Oh! 'tis too much—who now will be The Nightman of No-Popery?
What Courtier, Saint, or even Bishop,
Such learned filth will ever fish up?
If there among our ranks be one
To take my place, 'tis thou, SIR JOHN—
Thou—who, like me, art dubb'd Right Hon.
Like me, too, art a Lawyer Civil
That wishes Papists at the devil!

To whom then but to thee, my friend,
Should PATRICK* his Port-folio send?
Take it—'tis thine—his learn'd Port-folio,
With all its theologic olio
Of Bulls, half Irish and half Roman,—
Of Doctrines now believed by no man—

* This is a bad name for poetry; but D—gen—n is worse.—
As Prudentius says, upon a very different subject—

torquetur Apollo
Nomine percussus.

Of Councils, held for men's salvation,
Yet always ending in damnation—
(Which shows that, since the world's creation,
Your Priests, whate'er their gentle shamming,
Have always had a taste for damning);
And many more such pious scraps,
To prove (what we've long proved perhaps)
That, mad as Christians used to be
About the Thirteenth Century,
There's lots of Christians to be had
In this, the Nineteenth, just as mad!

Farewell—I send with this, dear N—CH—L!
A rod or two I've had in pickle
Wherewith to trim old GR—TT—N's jacket.—
The rest shall go by Monday's packet.

P. D.

Among the Inclosures in the foregoing Letter was the following “Unanswerable Argument against the Papists.”

WE'RE told the ancient Roman nation
 Made use of spittle in lustration.—*
 (Vide Lactantium ap. Gallæum—†
 i. e. you need not read but see 'em).
 Now, Irish Papists (fact surprising!)
 Make use of spittle in baptising,
 Which proves them all, O'FINNS, O'FAGANS,
 CONNORS, and TOOLLES, all downright Pagans!
 This fact's enough—let no one tell us
 To free such sad, salivous fellows—
 No—No—the man baptised with spittle
 Hath no truth in him—not a tittle!

* ——— lustralibus antè salivis

Expiat.

PERS. Sat. 2.

† I have taken the trouble of examining the Doctor's reference here, and find him, for once, correct. The following are the words of his indignant referee Gallæus—“Asserere non veremur sacrum baptismum a Papistis profanari, et sputi usum in peccatorum expiatione a Paganis non a Christianis manasse.”

LETTER V.

FROM THE COUNTESS DOWAGER OF C——— TO LADY ——.

My dear Lady ——! I've been just sending out
About five hundred cards for a snug little Rout—(By the bye, you've seen ROKEBY?—this moment got mine—

The Mail-Coach Edition*—prodigiously fine!)
But I can't conceive how, in this very cold weather,
I'm ever to bring my five hundred together;
As, unless the thermometer's near boiling heat,
One can never get half of one's hundreds to meet—(Apropos—you'd have laugh'd to see TOWNSEND, last night,

Escort to their chair, with his staff so polite,
The “three maiden Miseries,” all in a fright!
Poor TOWNSEND, like MERCURY, filling two posts, Supervisor of thieves, and chief-usher of ghosts!)

* See Mr. Murray's Advertisement about the Mail-Coach copies of Rokeby.

But, my dear Lady ——— ! can't you hit on some notion,

At least for one night to set London in motion ?

As to having the R—G—NT—that show is gone by—

Besides, I've remark'd that (between you and I)

The MARCHESA and he, inconvenient in more ways,

Have taken much lately to whispering in doorw-ays ;

Which—considering, you know, dear, the size of the two—

Makes a block that one's company cannot get through,

And a house such as mine is, with door-ways so small,

Has no room for such cumbersome love-work at all! —

(Apropos, though, of love-work—you've heard it, I hope,

That NAPOLEON's old Mother's to marry the POPE,—

What a comical pair!)—But, to stick to my Rout,

'Twill be hard if some novelty can't be struck out.

Is there no ALGERINE, no KAMCHATKAN arrived ?

No Plenipo PACHA, three-tail'd and ten-wived ?

No RUSSIAN, whose dissonant consonant name

Almost rattles to fragments the trumpet of fame ?

I remember the time, three or four winters back,

When—provided their wigs were but decently black—

A few Patriot monsters, from SPAIN, were a sight
That would people one's house for one, night after night.

But—whether the Ministers paw'd them too much—
(And you know how they spoil whatsoever they touch)
Or, whether Lord G—RGE (the young man about town)
Has, by dint of bad poetry, written them down—
One has certainly lost one's peninsular rage,
And the only stray Patriot seen for an age
Has been at such places (think how the fit cools)
As old Mrs. V——N's or Lord L—V—RP—L's !

But, in short, my dear, names like WINTZTSCHITSTOPS—
CHINZOUHOFF

Are the only things now make an evening go smooth off—

So, get me a Russian—till death I'm your debtor—
If he brings the whole Alphabet, so much the better :
And—Lord ! if he would but, in character, sup
Off his fish-oil and candles, he'd quite set me up !

Au revoir, my sweet girl—I must leave you in haste—
Little GUNTER has brought me the Liqueurs to taste.

POSTSCRIPT.

By the bye, have you found any friend that can construe
That Latin account, t'other day, of a Monster? *
If we can't get a Russian, and that thing in Latin
Be not too improper, I think I'll bring that in.

 LETTER VI.

FROM ABDALLAH,† IN LONDON, TO MOHASSAN,
IN ISPAHAN.

WHILST thou, MOHASSAN (happy thou!),
Dost daily bend thy loyal brow
Before our King—our Asia's treasure!
Nutmeg of Comfort! Rose of Pleasure!—

* Alluding, I suppose, to the Latin Advertisement of a Lusus Naturæ in the Newspapers lately.

† I have made many inquiries about this Persian gentleman, but cannot satisfactorily ascertain who he is. From his notions of Religious Liberty, however, I conclude that he is an importation of Ministers; and he is arrived just in time to assist the P—E and Mr. L—CK—E in their new Oriental Plan of Reform.—See the second of these Letters.—How Abdallah's epistle to Ispahan found its way into the Twopenny Post-Bag is more than I can pretend to account for.

And bear'st as many kicks and bruises
As the said Rose and Nutmeg chooses ;—
Thy head still near the bowstring's borders,
And but left on till further orders !
Through London streets, with turban fair,
And caftan floating to the air,
I saunter on—the admiration
Of this short-coated population—
This sew'd-up race—this button'd nation—
Who, while they boast their laws so free,
Leave not one limb at liberty,
But live, with all their lordly speeches,
The slaves of buttons and tight breeches.

Yet, though they thus their knee-pans fether
(They're Christians, and they know no better) *
In some things they're a thinking nation—
And, on Religious Toleration,
I own I like their notions quite,
They are so Persian and so right !

* “ C'est un honnête homme,” said a Turkish governor of De Ruyter, “ c'est grand dommage qu'il soit Chrétien.”

You know our SUNNITES, * hateful dogs !
 Whom every pious SHIITE flogs
 Or longs to flog†—'tis true, they pray
 To God, but in an ill-bred way ;
 With neither arms, nor legs, nor faces
 Stuck in their right, canonic places!§
 'Tis true, they worship ALI's name—
 Their Heaven and ours are just the same—
 (A Persian's Heaven is easily made,
 'Tis but—black eyes and lemonade).
 Yet—though we've tried for centuries back—
 We can't persuade the stubborn pack,

* Sunnites and Shiites are the two leading sects into which the Mahometan world is divided: and they have gone on cursing and persecuting each other, without any intermission, for about eleven hundred years. The Sunni is the established sect in Turkey, and the Shia in Persia; and the differences between them turn chiefly upon those important points, which our pious friend Abdallah, in the true spirit of Shiite Ascendancy, reprobates in this Letter.

† “Les Sunnites, qui étaient comme les catholiques de Musulmanisme.”—D'HERBELOT.

§ “In contradistinction to the Sounis, who in their prayers cross their hands on the lower part of the breast, the Schiahs drop their arms in straight lines; and as the Sounis, at certain periods of the prayer, press their foreheads on the ground or carpet, the Schiahs,” etc. etc.—FORSTER'S Voyage.

 “Les Turcs ne détestent pas Ali réciproquement; au contraire ils le reconnaissent,” etc. etc.—CHARDIN.

By bastinadoes, screws, or nippers,
 To wear th' establish'd pea-green slippers ! *
 Then—only think—the libertines !
 They wash their toes—they comb their chins, †
 With many more such deadly sins !
 And (what's the worst, though last I rank it)
 Believe the Chapter of the Blanket !

Yet, spite of tenets so flagitious,
 (Which must, at bottom, be seditious ;
 As no man living would refuse
 Green slippers, but from treasonous views ;
 Nor wash his toes, but with intent
 To overturn the government !)
 Such is our mild and tolerant way,
 We only curse them twice a-day
 (According to a Form that's set),
 And, far from torturing, only let
 All orthodox believers beat 'em,
 And twitch their beards, where'er they meet 'em.

* “The Shiites wear green slippers, which the Sunnites consider as a great abomination.”—MARITI.

† For these points of difference, as well as for the Chapter of the Blanket, I must refer the reader (not having the book) to Picart's Account of the Mahometan Sects.

As to the rest, they're free to do
Whate'er their fancy prompts them to,
Provided they make nothing of it
Tow'rds rank or honour, power or profit;
Which things, we nat'rally expect,
Belong to us, the Establish'd sect,
Who disbelieve (the Lord be thanked!)
Th' aforesaid Chapter of the Blanket.

The same mild views of Toleration
Inspire, I find, this button'd nation,
Whose Papists (full as given to rogue,
And only Sunnites with a brogue)
Fare just as well, with all their fuss,
As rascal Sunnites do with us.

The tender Gazel I inclose
Is for my love, my Syrian Rose—
Take it, when night begins to fall,
And throw it o'er her mother's wall.

GAZEL.

Rememberest thou the hour we past,
That hour, the happiest and the last?—

Oh ! not so sweet the Siha thorn
To summer bees at break of morn,
Not half so sweet, through dale and dell,
To Camels' ears the tinkling bell,
As is the soothing memory
Of that one precious hour to me !

How can we live, so far apart ?
Oh ! why not rather heart to heart,
United live and die—
Like those sweet birds that fly together,
With feather always touching feather,
Link'd by a hook and eye ! *

* This will appear strange to an English reader, but it is literally translated from Abdallah's Persian, and the curious bird to which he alludes is the Justak, of which I find the following account in Richardson.—“A sort of bird that is said to have but one wing, on the opposite side to which the male has a hook and the female a ring, so that, when they fly, they are fastened together.”

LETTER VII.

FROM MESSRS. L—CK—GT—N AND CO.

TO —————, ESQ.*

PER Post, Sir, we send your MS.—look'd it through—
Very sorry—but can't undertake—'twouldn't do.
Clever work, Sir!—would get up prodigiously well—
Its only defect is—it never would sell!
And though Statesmen may glory in being unbought,
In an Author, we think, Sir, that's rather a fault.

Hard times, Sir,—most books are too dear to be read—
Though the gold of Good-sense and Wit's small-change are fled,

Yet the paper we publishers pass, in their stead,
Rises higher each day, and ('tis frightful to think it)
Not even such names as F—TZG—R—D's can sink it!
However, Sir—if you're for trying again,
And at somewhat that's vendible—we are your men.

* From motives of delicacy, and, indeed, of fellow-feeling,
I suppress the name of the Author, whose rejected manuscript was inclosed in this letter.—See the Appendix.

Since the Chevalier C—RR took to marrying lately,
 The Trade is in want of a Traveller greatly—
 No job, Sir, more easy—your Country once plann'd,
 A month aboard ship and a fortnight on land
 Puts your Quarto of Travels clean out of hand.

An East-India pamphlet's a thing that would tell—
 And a lick at the Papists is sure to sell well.
 Or—supposing you have nothing original in you—
 Write Parodies, Sir, and such fame it will win you, You'll get to the Blue-stocking Routs of ALB—N—A !*
 (Mind—not to her dinners—a second-hand Muse Mustn't think of aspiring to mess with the Blues.)
 Or—in case nothing else in this world you can do—
 The deuce is in't, Sir, if you cannot review!

Should you feel any touch of poetical glow,
 We've a scheme to suggest—Mr. Sc—TT, you must k
 (Who, we're sorry to say it, now works for the Row†),

* This alludes, I believe, to a curious correspondence, which is said to have passed lately between ALB—N—A, Countess of B—CK—GH—MS—E, and a certain ingenious Parodist.

† Paternoster Row.

Having quitted the Borders to seek new renown,
Is coming, by long Quarto stages, to Town ;
And beginning with ROKEBY (the job's sure to pay)
Means to do all the Gentlemen's Seats on the way.
Now, the Scheme is (though none of our hackneys can beat him)

To start a fresh Poet through Highgate to meet him ;
Who, by means of quick proofs—no revises—long coaches—

May do a few Villas before Sc—TT approaches—
Indeed if our Pegasus be not curst shabby,
He'll reach, without found'ring, at least WOBURN-ABBAY.

Such, Sir, is our plan—if you're up to the freak,
'Tis a match ! and we'll put you in training, next week—
At present, no more—in reply to this Letter, a Line will oblige very much

Your's, et cetera.

Temple of the Muses.

LETTER VIII.

FROM COLONEL TH—M—S TO ———

———, ESQ.

COME to our Fête,* and bring with thee
 Thy newest, best embroidery !
 Come to our Fête, and show again
 That pea-green coat, thou pink of men !
 Which charm'd all eyes that last survey'd it,
 When B——L's self inquired "who made it?"—
 When Cits came wond'ring from the East,
 And thought thee Poet PYE, at least !

Oh ! come—(if haply 'tis thy week
 For looking pale)—with paly cheek ;
 Though more we love thy roseate days,
 When the rich rouge-pot pours its blaze
 Full o'er thy face, and, amply spread,
 Tips even thy whisker-tops with red—
 Like the last tints of dying Day
 That o'er some darkling grove delay !

* This Letter inclosed a Card for the Grand Fête on the 5th of February.

Bring thy best lace, thou gay Philander!
 (That lace, like H—RRY AL—X—ND—R, Too precious to be wash'd)—thy rings,
 Thy seals—in short, thy prettiest things!
 Put all thy wardrobe's glories on,
 And yield, in frogs and fringe, to none
 But the great R—G—T's self alone!
 Who, by particular desire—
For that night only, means to hire
 A dress from ROMEO C—TES, Esquire—
 Something between ('twere sin to hack it)
 The Romeo robe and Hobby jacket!
 Hail, first of Actors! * best of R—G—TS!
 Born for each other's fond allegiance!

* Quem tu, Melpomene, semel
 Nascentem placido lumine, videris, etc.—Horat.

The Man, upon whom thou hast deign'd to look funny,
 Thou great Tragic Muse! at the hour of his birth—
 Let them say what they will, that's the man for my money,
 Give others thy tears, but let me have thy mirth!

The assertion that follows, however, is not verified in the instance before us.

Illum _____
 _____ non equus impiger
Curru ducet Achaico.

Both gay Lotharios—both good dressers—
Of Serious Farce both learn'd Professors—
Both circled round, for use or show,
With cocks'-combs, wheresoe'er they go !

Thou know'st the time, thou man of lore !
It takes to chalk a ball-room floor—
Thou know'st the time, too, well-a-day !
It takes to dance that chalk away.*
The Ball-room opens—far and nigh
Comets and suns beneath us lie ;
O'er snowy moons and stars we walk,
And the floor seems a sky of chalk !
But soon shall fade the bright deceit,
When many a maid, with busy feet
That sparkle in the Lustre's ray,
O'er the white path shall bound and play
Like Nymphs along the Milky Way !—
At every step a star is fled,
And suns grow dim beneath their tread !

* To those who neither go to balls nor read the Morning Post, it may be necessary to mention that the floors of Ball-rooms, in general, are chalked, for safety and for ornament, with various fanciful devices.

So passeth life—(thus Sc—tt would write,
 And spinsters read him with delight)—
 Hours are not feet, yet hours trip on,
 Time is not chalk, yet time's soon gone !*

But, hang this long digressive flight !
 I meant to say, thou'lt see, that night,
 What falsehood rankles in their hearts,
 Who say the P——E neglects the arts—
 Neglects the arts !—no St——G ! no ;
 Thy Cupids answer “ ’tis not so ; ”
 And every floor, that night, shall tell
 How quick thou daubest, and how well !
 Shine as thou may'st in French vermillion,
 Thou'rt best—beneath a French cotillion ;
 And still comest off, whate'er thy faults,
 With flying colours in a Waltz !
 Nor need'st thou mourn the transient date
 To thy best works assign'd by Fate—

* Hearts are not flint, yet flints are rent,
 Hearts are not steel, yet steel is bent.

After all, however, Mr. Sc—tt may well say to the Colonel (and, indeed, to much better wags than the Colonel), εαυον περιστοιδα η περιστοιδα.

While some chef-d'œuvres live to weary one,
Thine boast a short life and a merry one ;
Their hour of glory past and gone
With “ Molly, put the kettle on ! ”

But, bless my soul ! I've scarce a leaf
Of paper left—so, must be brief.

This festive Fête, in fact, will be
The former Fête's fac-simile ; *
The same long Masquerade of Rooms,
Trick'd in such different, quaint costumes,
(These, P—RT—R, are thy glorious works !)
You'd swear Egyptians, Moors, and Turks,
Bearing Good-Taste some deadly malice,
Had clubb'd to raise a Pic-Nic Palace ;
And each, to make the oglio pleasant,
Had sent a State-Room as a present !—
The same fauteuils and girandoles—
The same gold Asses, † pretty souls !

* “ C—rl—t—n H——e will exhibit a complete fac-simile, in respect to interior ornament, to what it did at the last Fête. The same splendid draperies,” etc. etc.—Morning Post.

† The salt-cellars on the P——e's own table were in the form of an Ass with panniers.

That, in this rich and classic dome,
Appear so perfectly at home !
The same bright river 'mongst the dishes,
But not—ah ! not the same dear fishes—
Late hours and claret kill'd the old ones !—
So, 'stead of silver and of gold ones
(It being rather hard to raise Fish of that specie now-a-days),
Some sprats have been, by Y—RM—TH's wish,
Promoted into Silver Fish,
And Gudgeons (so V—NS—TT—T told
The R—G—T) are as good as Gold !

So, pr'ythee, come—our Fête will be
But half a Fête, if wanting thee !

J. T.

That in the rich and classic home
Appear so perfectly at home
The same bright eyes and the same
And the same dear lips—
Late hours and that full'd the old ones

THE TWOPENNY POST-BAG

A P P E N D I X.

LETTER IV. Page 27.

AMONG the papers inclosed in Dr. D—G—N—N's Letter, there is an Heroic Epistle in Latin verse, from POPE JOAN to her Lover, of which, as it is rather a curious document, I shall venture to give some account. This female Pontiff was a native of England (or, according to others, of Germany) who, at an early age, disguised herself in male attire, and followed her lover, a young ecclesiastic, to Athens, where she studied with such effect, that upon her arrival at Rome she was thought worthy of being raised to the Pontificate. This Epistle is addressed to her Lover (whom she had elevated to the dignity of Cardinal), soon after the fatal accouchement, by which her Fallibility was betrayed.

She begins by reminding him very tenderly of the time when they were in Athens—when

“ By Ilissus’ stream
 “ We whispering walk’d along, and learn’d to speak
 “ The tenderest feelings in the purest Greek ;
 “ Ah ! then how little did we think or hope,
 “ Dearest of men ! that I should e’er be POPE ! *
 “ That I—the humble Joan—whose house-wife art
 “ Seem’d just enough to keep thy house and heart
 “ (And those, alas ! at sixes and at sevens),
 “ Should soon keep all the keys of all the Heavens ! ”

Still less (she continues to say) could they have foreseen, that such a catastrophe as had happened in Council would befall them—that she “ Should thus surprise the Conclave’s grave decorum

 “ And let a little Pope pop out before ’em—
 “ Pope Innocent ! alas, the only one
 “ That name should ever have been fix’d upon ! ”

* Spanheim attributes the unanimity with which Joan was elected, to that innate and irresistible charm by which her sex, though latent, operated upon the instinct of the Cardinals—“ Non vi aliquâ, sed concorditer, omnium in se converso desiderio, quæ sunt blandientis sexus artes, latentes in hâc quanquam ! ”

She then very pathetically laments the downfall of her greatness, and enumerates the various treasures, to which she is doomed to bid farewell for ever.

“ But oh ! more dear, more precious ten times over—

“ Farewel, my Lord, my Cardinal, my Lover !

“ I made thee Cardinal—thou madest me—ah !

“ Thou madest the Papa* of the World—Mamma ! ”

I have not time now to translate any more of this Epistle ; but I presume the argument which the Right Hon. Doctor and his friends mean to deduce from it, is (in their usual convincing strain) that Romanists must be unworthy of Emancipation now, because they had a Petticoat Pope in the Ninth Century—Nothing can be more logically clear, and I find that Horace had exactly the same views upon the subject :

Romanus (eheu posterī negabitīs !)

Emancipatus FOEMINÆ

Fert vallum !—

* This is an anachronism, for it was not till the eleventh Century, that the Bishop of Rome took the title of Papa, or Universal Father.

LETTER VII. Page 41.

THE Manuscript, which I found in the Bookseller's Letter, is a Melo-Drama, in two Acts, entitled "THE BOOK,"* of which the Theatres, of course, had had the refusal, before it was presented to Messrs. L—ck—ngt—n and Co.—This rejected Drama, however, possesses considerable merit, and I shall take the liberty of laying a sketch of it before my Readers.

The first Act opens in a very awful manner:—Time, three o'clock in the morning—Scene, the Bourbon Chamber † in C—r—lt—n House—

* There was a mysterious Book, in the 16th Century, which employed all the anxious curiosity of the Learned of that day—Every one spoke of it; many wrote against it; though it does not appear that any body had ever seen it; and indeed Grotius is of opinion that no such Book ever existed. It was entitled "Liber de tribus impostoribus." (See Morhof. Cap. de Libris damnatis.)—Our more modern mystery of "the Book" resembles this in many particulars; and, if the number of Lawyers employed in drawing it up be stated correctly, a slight alteration of the title into "à tribus impostoribus" would produce a coincidence altogether very remarkable.

† The Chamber, I suppose, which was prepared for the reception of the Bourbons at the first Grand Fête, and which was ornamented (all "for the Deliverance of Europe") with fleurs de lys.

Enter the P—E R—G—T solus.—After a few broken sentences, he thus exclaims :

Away—Away—

Thou haunt'st my fancy so, thou devilish Book !

I meet thee—trace thee, wheresoe'er I look.

I see thy damned ink in ELD—N's brows—

I see thy foolscap on my H—RTF—D's Spouse—

V—NS—TT—T's head recals thy leathern case,

And all thy blank-leaves stare from R—D—R's face !

While, turning here [laying his hand on his heart] I find, ah wretched elf !

Thy List of dire Errata in myself.

[Walks the stage in considerable agitation.]

Oh Roman Punch ! oh potent Curaçoa !

Oh Mareschino ! Mareschino oh !

Delicious drams ! why have you not the art

To kill this gnawing Book-worm in my heart ?

He is here interrupted in his Soliloquy by perceiving some scribbled fragments of paper on the ground, which he collects, and “by the light of two magnificent candelabras” discovers the following unconnected words—“Wife neglected”—“the

Book—"Wrong Measures"—"the Queen"—
 "Mr. Lambert"—"the R—G—T."

Ha! treason in my House!—Curst words, that wither
 My princely soul [shaking the papers violently], what Demon brought you hither?

"My Wife!"—"the Book," too!—stay—a nearer look—

[Holding the fragments closer to the Candelabras]
 Alas! too plain, B, double O, K, Book—
 Death and destruction!

He here rings all the bells, and a whole legion of Valets enter—A scene of cursing and swearing (very much in the German style) ensues, in the course of which messengers are dispatched, in different directions, for the L—RD CH—NC—LL—R, the D—E of C—B—L—D, etc. etc.—The intermediate time is filled up by another Soliloquy, at the conclusion of which the aforesaid Personages rush on alarmed—the D—E with his stays only half-laced, and the CH—NC—LL—R with his wig thrown hastily over an old red night-cap, "to maintain the becoming splendour of his office.”*

 The R—G—T produces the appalling fragments, upon which the CH—NC—LL—R breaks out into exclamations of loyalty and tenderness, and relates the following portentous dream :

’Tis scarcely two hours since
 I had a fearful dream of thee, my P——E !—
 Methought I heard thee, midst a courtly crowd,
 Say from thy throne of gold, in mandate loud, “ Worship my whiskers ! ” — [weeps] not a knee was there

But bent and worshipp’d the Illustrious Pair
 That curl’d in conscious majesty ! [pulls out his handkerchief]—while cries
 Of “ Whiskers ! whiskers ! ” shook the echoing skies !—
 Just in that glorious hour, methought, there came,
 With looks of injured pride, a Princely Dame,
 And a young maiden clinging to her side,
 As if she feared some tyrant would divide
 The hearts that nature and affection tied !

* “ To enable the individual, who holds the office of Chancellor, to maintain it in becoming splendour.” A loud laugh.)

Lord Castlereagh’s Speech upon the Vice-Chancellor’s Bill.

The Matron came—within her right hand glow'd
A radiant torch ; while from her left a load
Of Papers hung—[wipes his eyes—]—collected in her veil—
The venal evidence, the slanderous tale,
The wounding hint, the current lies that pass
From Post to Courier, form'd the motley mass ;
Which, with disdain, before the Throne she throws,
And lights the Pile beneath thy princely nose.

[Weeps.]

Heavens, how it blazed !—I'd ask no livelier fire
[with animation] To roast a Papist by, my gracious Sire !—

But ah ! the Evidence—[weeps again] I mourn'd to see—
Cast, as it burn'd, a deadly light on thee !
And Tales and Hints their random sparkles flung,
And hiss'd and crackled like an old maid's tongue ;
While Post and Courier, faithful to their fame,
Made up in stink for what they lack'd in flame !
When, lo, ye Gods !—the fire, ascending brisker,
Now singes one, now lights the other whisker—
Ah ! where was then the Sylphid, that unfurls
Her fairy standard in defence of curls ?
Throne, Whiskers, Wig, soon vanish'd into smoke,
The watchman cried “ past One,” and—I awoke.

Here his Lordship weeps more profusely than ever, and the R—G—T (who has been very much agitated during the recital of the dream), by a movement as characteristic as that of Charles XII. when he was shot, claps his hands to his whiskers to feel if all be really safe. A Privy Council is held—all the Servants, etc. are examined, and it appears that a Tailor, who had come to measure the R—G—T for a Dress (which takes three whole pages of the best superfine cliquant in describing), was the only person who had been in the Bourbon Chamber during the day. It is, accordingly, determined to seize the Tailor, and the Council breaks up with a unanimous resolution to be vigorous.

The commencement of the Second Act turns chiefly upon the Trial and Imprisonment of two Brothers—but as this forms the under plot of the Drama, I shall content myself with extracting from it the following speech, which is addressed to the two brothers, as they “exeunt severally” to Prison :

Go to your prisons—though the air of Spring
No mountain coolness to your cheeks shall bring ;

Though summer flowers shall pass unseen away,
And all your portion of the glorious day
May be some solitary beam that falls,
At morn or eve, upon your dreary walls—
Some beam that enters, trembling as if awed,
To tell how gay the young world laughs abroad !
Yet go—for thoughts, as blessed as the air
Of Spring or summer flowers, await you there ;
Thoughts, such as He, who feasts his courtly crew
In rich conservatories, never knew !
Pure self-esteem—the smiles that light within—
The Zeal, whose circling charities begin
With the few loved-ones Heaven has placed it near,
Nor cease, till all Mankind are in its sphere !—
The Pride, that suffers without vaunt or plea,
And the fresh Spirit, that can warble free,
Through prison-bars, its hymn to Liberty !

The Scene next changes to a Tailor's Work-shop, and a fancifully-arranged group of these Artists is discovered upon the Shop-board—Their task evidently of a royal nature, from the profusion of gold-lace, frogs, etc. that lie about—They all rise and come forward, while one of them sings

the following Stanzas, to the tune of "Derry Down."

My brave brother Tailors, come, straighten your knees,
For a moment, like gentlemen, stand up at ease,
While I sing of our P——E (and a fig for his railers),
The Shop-board's delight! the Mæcenas of Tailors!

Derry down, down, down derry down.

Some monarchs take roundabout ways into note,
But His short cut to fame is—the cut of his coat;
Philip's Son thought the World was too small for his Soul,

While our R—G—T's finds room in a laced button-hole!

Derry down, etc.

Look through all Europe's Kings—at least, those who go loose—

Not a King of them all's such a friend to the Goose.

So, God keep him increasing in size and renown,
Still the fattest and best-fitted P—E about town!

Derry down, etc.

During the "Derry down" of this last verse, a messenger from the S—c—t—y of S——e's Office rushes on, and the singer (who, luckily for the effect of the scene, is the very Tailor suspected of the mysterious fragments) is interrupted in the midst of his laudatory exertions, and hurried away, to the no small surprise and consternation of his comrades. The Plot now hastens rapidly in its developement—the management of the Tailor's examination is highly skilful, and the alarm which he is made to betray is natural without being ludicrous. The explanation, too, which he finally gives, is not more simple than satisfactory. It appears that the said fragments formed part of a self-exculpatory note, which he had intended to send to Colonel M'M——N upon subjects purely professional, and the corresponding bits (which still lie luckily in his pocket) being produced, and skilfully laid beside the others, the following billet-doux is the satisfactory result of their juxtaposition:

Honour'd Colonel—my WIFE, who's the QUEEN of all slatterns,

NEGLECTED to put up THE Book of new Patterns.

She sent the WRONG MEASURES too—shamefully wrong—

They're the same used for poor Mr. LAMBERT, when young ;

But, bless you ! they wouldn't go half round the

R—G—T,—

So, hope you'll excuse your's till death, most obedient.

This fully explains the whole mystery—the R—G—T resumes his wonted smiles, and the Drama terminates, as usual, to the satisfaction of all parties.

PREFACE.

IN what manner the following Epistles came into my hands, it is not necessary for the public to know. It will be seen by Mr. FUDGE's Second Letter, that he is one of those gentlemen whose Secret Services in Ireland, under the mild ministry of my Lord C———GH, have been so amply and gratefully remunerated. Like his friend and associate, THOMAS REYNOLDS, Esq. he had retired upon the reward of his honest industry; but has lately been induced to appear again in active life, and superintend the training of that Delatorian Cohort, which Lord S——DM——TH, in his wisdom and benevolence, has organized.

Whether Mr. FUDGE, himself, has yet made any discoveries, does not appear from the following pages;—but much may be expected from a person of his zeal and sagacity, and, indeed, to him, Lord S——DM——TH, and the Greenland-bound ships, the eyes of all lovers of discoveries are now most anxiously directed.

I regret that I have been obliged to omit Mr. BOB FUDGE's Third Letter, concluding the adventures of his Day, with the Dinner, Opera, etc. etc.—but, in consequence of some remarks upon Mariette's thin drapery, which, it was thought, might give offence to certain well-meaning persons, the manuscript was sent back to Paris for his revision, and had not returned when the last sheet was put to press.

It will not, I hope, be thought presumptuous, if I take this opportunity of complaining of a very serious injustice I have suffered from the public. Dr. KING wrote a treatise to prove that BENTLEY “was not the author of his own book,” and a similar absurdity has been asserted of me, in almost all the best informed literary circles. With the name of the real author staring them in the face, they have yet persisted in attributing my works to other people; and the fame of the Twopenny Post-Bag—such as it is—having hovered doubtfully over various persons, has at last settled upon the head of a certain little gentleman, who wears it, I understand, as complacently as if it actually belonged to him ; without even the honesty of avowing, with his own favourite author (he will excuse the pun)

Εγώ δ' Ὁ ΜΩΡΟΣ ἀγας
Εἰσησάμεν μετ' ὧπα.

I can only add, that if any lady or gentleman, curious in such matters, will take the trouble of calling at my lodgings, 245, Piccadilly, I shall have the honour of assuring them, in propria personā, that I am—his, or her, very obedient and very humble servant,

THOMAS BROWN, THE YOUNGER.

stand, as completely as it is actually belonged to him, without even the honesty of avowing, with his characteristic candour, he will excuse the pun.

THE END OF THE MATTER

I can only add, that it is a lady of gentleman, curious in such matters, will take the trouble of, altho' at my lodgings, 2, 5; Piccadilly, I shall have the honour of assisting them, in every particular, that I am—his, or her.

LETTER I.

FROM MISS BIDDY FUDGE TO MISS DOROTHY ——,
OF CLONSKILTY, IN IRELAND.

Amiens.

DEAR Doll, while the tails of our horses are plaiting,
The trunks tying on, and Papa, at the door,
Into very bad French is, as usual, translating
His English resolve not to give a sou more,
I sit down to write you a line—only think!—
A letter from France, with French pens and French ink,
How delightful! though, would you believe it, my dear?
I have seen nothing yet very wonderful here;
No adventure, no sentiment, far as we've come,
But the corn-fields and trees quite as dull as at home;
And, but for the post-boy, his boots and his queue,
I might just as well be at Clonskilty with you!

In vain, at DESSEIN's, did I take from my trunk
That divine fellow, STERNE, and fall reading "The Monk!"

In vain did I think of his charming dead Ass,
And remember the crust and the wallet—alas!
No monks can be had now for love or for money
(All owing, Pa says, to that infidel BONEY);
And, though one little Neddy we saw in our drive
Out of classical Nampont, the beast was alive!

By the by, though, at Calais, Papa had a touch
Of romance on the pier, which affected me much.
At the sight of that spot, where our darling *****
Set the first of his own dear legitimate feet* (Modell'd out so exactly, and—God bless the mark!—
'Tis a foot, Dolly, worthy so *Grand a M*que*),
He exclaim'd "Oh mon R!" and, with tear-dropping eye,
Stood to gaze on the spot—while some Jacobin, nigh,

* To commemorate the landing of    from England, the impression of his foot is marked on the pier at Calais, and a pillar with an inscription raised opposite to the spot.

Mutter'd out with a shrug (what an insolent thing!)

“Ma foi, he be right—’tis de Englishman’s Kg;

“And dat gros pied de cochon—begar, me vil say

“Dat de foot look mosh better, if turn’d toder way.”

There’s the pillar, too—Lord! I had nearly forgot—

What a charming idea!—raised close to the spot;

The mode being now (as you’ve heard, I suppose)

To build tombs over legs, * and raise pillars to toes.

This is all that’s occur’d sentimental as yet;

Except, indeed, some little flower-nymphs we’ve met,

Who disturb one’s romance with pecuniary views,

Flinging flowers in your path, and then bawling for sous!

And some picturesque beggars, whose multitudes seem

To recal the good days of the ancien régime,

All as ragged and brisk, you’ll be happy to learn,

And as thin as they were in the time of dear STERNE.

Our party consists, in a neat Calais job,

Of Papa and myself, Mr. CONNOR and BOB.

You remember how sheepish BOB look’d at Kilrandy,

But Lord! he’s quite alter’d—they’ve made him a Dandy;

* Ci-gît la jambe de, etc. etc.

A thing, you know, whisker'd, great-coated, and laced,
Like an hour-glass, exceedingly small in the waist:
Quite a new sort of creatures, unknown yet to scholars,
With heads so immoveably stuck in shirt-collars,
That seats like our music-stools soon must be found them,
To twirl, when the creatures may wish to look round
them!

In short, dear, "a Dandy" describes what I mean,
And BOB's far the best of the genus I've seen:
An improving young man, fond of learning, ambitious,
And goes now to Paris to study French dishes,
Whose names—think, how quick!—he already knows pat,

A la braise, petits pâtés, and—what d'ye call that
They inflict on potatoes? oh! maître d'hôtel—
I assure you, dear DOLLY, he knows them as well
As if nothing but these all his life he had ate,
Though a bit of them BOBBY has never touch'd yet;
But just knows the names of French dishes and cooks,
As dear Pa knows the titles of authors and books.

As to Pa, what d'ye think?—mind it's all entre nous,
But you know, love, I never keep secrets from you—

Why he's writing a book—what! a tale? a romance?
No, ye Gods, would it were!—but his Travels in France;
At the special desire (he let out t'other day)
Of his friend and his patron, my Lord C—STL—R—GH,
Who said, “My dear FUDGE——” I forget th' exact words,

And, it's strange, no one ever remembers my Lord's;
But 'twas something to say, that, as all must allow,
A good orthodox work is much wanting just now,
To expound to the world the new—thingummie—science,

Found out by the—what's-its-name—Holy Ace,
And prove to mankind that their rights are but folly,
Their freedom a joke (which it is, you know, DOLLY);
“There's none,” said his Lordship, “if I may be judge,
“Half so fit for this great undertaking as FUDGE!”

The matter's soon settled—Pa flies to the Row
(The first stage your tourists now usually go),
Settles all for his quarto—advertisements, praises—
Starts post from the door, with his tablets—French phrases—

“SCOTT'S Visit,” of course—in short, every thing he has An author can want, except words and ideas:—

And, lo! the first thing in the spring of the year,
Is PHIL. FUDGE at the front of a Quarto, my dear!

But, bless me, my paper's near out, so I'd better
Draw fast to a close:—this exceeding long letter
You owe to a déjeuner à la fourchette,
Which BOBBY would have, and is hard at it yet.—
What's next? oh, the tutor, the last of the party,
Young CONNOR:—they say he's so like BON*TE,
His nose and his chin,—which Papa rather dreads,
As the B*NS, you know, are suppressing all heads
That resemble old NAP's, and who knows but their honours

May think, in their fright, of suppressing poor CONNOR's?
Au reste (as we say), the young lad's well enough,
Only talks much of Athens, Rome, virtue, and stuff;
A third-cousin of ours, by the way—poor as Job
(Though of royal descent by the side of Mamma),
And for charity made private tutor to BOB——Entre nous, too, a Papist—how liberal of Pa!

This is all, dear,—forgive me for breaking off thus;
But BOB's déjeuner's done, and Papa's in a fuss.

—: zochi bus abow mpoze jacy jody B. F.

P. S.

How provoking of Pa! he will nos let me stop
 Just to run in and rummage some milliner's shop;
 And my début in Paris, I blush to think on it,
 Must now, DOLL, be made in a hideous low bonnet.
 But Paris, dear Paris!—oh, there will be joy,
 And romance, and high bonnets, and Madame LE ROI! *

LETTER II.

FROM PHIL. FUDGE, ESQ. TO THE LORD VISCOUNT

C—————H.

Paris.

At length, my Lord, I have the bliss
 To date to you a line from this “Demoralized” metropolis;
 Where, by plebeians low and scurvy,
 The throne was turn'd quite topsy-turvy,
 And Kingship, tumbled from its seat,
 “Stood prostrate” at the people's feet;

* A celebrated mantua-maker in Paris.

Where (still to use your Lordship's tropes)
 The level of obedience slopes
 Upward and downward, as the stream
 Of hydra faction *kicks the beam!

Where the poor palace changes masters

Quicker than a snake its skin,

And  is rolled out on castors

While 's borne on shoulders in :

But where, in every change, no doubt,

One special good your Lordship traces,—

That 'tis the Kings alone turn out,

The Ministers still keep their places.

How oft, dear Viscount C———GH,

I've thought of thee upon the way,

As in my job (what place could be More apt to wake a thought of thee?)

Or, oftener far, when gravely sitting

Upon my dickey (as is fitting

* This excellent imitation of the noble Lord's style shows how deeply Mr. Fudge must have studied his great original. Irish oratory, indeed, abounds with such startling peculiarities. Thus the eloquent Counsellor B———, in describing some hypocritical pretender to charity, said—"He put his hand in his breeches-pocket, like a crocodile, and," etc. etc.

For him who writes a Tour, that he May more of men and manners see),
I've thought of thee and of thy glories,
Thou guest of Kings, and King of Tories!
Reflecting how thy fame has grown

And spread, beyond man's usual share,
At home, abroad, till thou art known,

Like Major SEMPLE, every where!

And marvelling with what powers of breath
Your Lordship, having speech'd to death
Some hundreds of your fellow-men,
Next speech'd to Sovereigns' ears,—and when
All sovereigns else were dozed, at last
Speech'd down the Sovereign * of Belfast.

Oh! 'mid the praises and the trophies
Thou gain'st from Morosophs and Sophis;
'Mid all the tributes to thy fame,

There's one thou shouldst be chiefly pleased at—

* The title of the chief magistrate of Belfast, before whom his Lordship (with the “studium immane loquendi” attributed by Ovid to that chattering and rapacious class of birds, the pies) delivered sundry long and self-gratulatory orations, on his return from the Continent. It was at one of these Irish dinners that his gallant brother, Lord S., proposed the health of “The best cavalry officer in Europe—the Regent!”

That Ireland gives her snuff thy name,
And C———GH's the thing now sneezed at!

But hold, my pen!—a truce to praising—
Though even your Lordship will allow
The theme's temptations are amazing;
But time and ink run short, and now
(As thou would'st say, my guide and teacher
In these gay metaphoric fringes),
I must embark into the feature

On which this letter chiefly hinges ;—*
My Book, the Book that is to prove—
And will, so help ye Sprites above,
That sit on clouds, as grave as judges,
Watching the labours of the FUDGES!—
Will prove that all the world, at present,
Is in a state extremely pleasant :
That Europe—thanks to royal swords
And bayonets, and the Duke commanding—
Enjoys a peace which, like the Lord's,
Passeth all human understanding :

* Verbatim from one of the noble Viscount's Speeches—“And now, Sir, I must embark into the feature on which this question chiefly hinges.”

That Fce prefers her go-cart ****

To such a coward scamp as *****—

Though round, with each a leading-string,

There standeth many a R*y*1 crony,

For fear the chubby, tottering thing

Should fall, if left there loney-poney :

That England, too, the more her debts,

The more she spends, the richer gets ;

And that the Irish, grateful nation !

Remember when by thee reign'd over,

And bless thee for their flagellation,

As HELOISA did her lover ! *

That Poland, left for Russia's lunch

Upon the side-board, snug reposes ;

While Saxony's as pleased as Punch,

And Norway " on a bed of roses ! "

That, as for some few million souls,

Transferr'd by contract, bless the clods !

If half were strangled—Spaniards, Poles,

And Frenchmen—'t wouldn't make much odds,

So Europe's goodly Royal ones

Sit easy on their sacred thrones ;

* See her Letters.

So FERDINAND embroiders gaily,
 And  eats his salmi * daily;
 So time is left to Emperor SANDY
 To be half Cæsar and half Dandy;
 And G——GE the R——G——T (who'd forget
 That doughtiest chieftain of the set?)
 Hath wherewithal for trinkets new,
 For dragons, after Chinese models,
 And chambers where Duke Ho and Soo
 Might come and nine times knock their noddles!—
 All this my Quarto 'll prove—much more
 Than Quarto ever proved before—
 In reasoning with the Post I'll vie,
 My facts the Courier shall supply,
 My jokes V——NS——T, P——LE my sense,
 And thou, sweet Lord, my eloquence!
 My Journal, penn'd by fits and starts,
 On BIDDY's back or BOBBY's shoulder
 (My son, my Lord, a youth of parts,
 Who longs to be a small place-holder),

* Οψα τε, οἷα εδῶσι διοτρεφεες βασιλῆες.

HOMER, Odyss. 3.

Is—though I say't that shouldn't say—
 Extremely good; and, by the way,
One extract from it—only one—
 To show its spirit, and I've done.

“ Jul. thirty-first.—Went after snack,
 “ To the Cathedral of St. Denny;
 “ Sigh'd o'er the Kings of ages back,
 “ And—gave the old Concierge a penny!
 “ (Mem.—Must see Rheims, much famed, 'tis said,
 “ For making Kings and gingerbread).
 “ Was shown the tomb where lay, so stately,
 “ A little Bbon, buried lately,
 “ Thrice high and puissant, we were told,
 “ Though only twenty-four hours old! *
 “ Hear this, thought I, ye Jacobins;
 “ Ye Burdetts, tremble in your skins!
 “ If Ralty, but aged a day,
 “ Can boast such high and puissant sway,
 “ What impious hand its power would fix,
 “ Full fledged and wigg'd, † at fifty-six?”

* So described on the coffin: “très-haute et puissante Princesse, âgée d'un jour.”

† There is a fulness and breadth in this portrait of Royalty,

The argument's quite new, you see,
 And proves exactly Q. E. D.—
 So now, with duty to the R—G—T,
 I am, dear Lord,

Your most obedient,

P. F.

Hotel Breteuil, Rue Rivoli.

Neat lodgings—rather dear for me ;
 But BIDDY said she thought 'twould look
 Genteeler thus to date my Book,
 And BIDDY's right—besides, it curries
 Some favour with our friends at MURRAY's,
 Who scorn what any man can say,
 That dates from Rue St. Honoré! *

which reminds us of what Pliny says, in speaking of Trajan's great qualities :—"nonne longè latèque Principem ostentant?"

* See the Quarterly Review for May, 1816, where Mr. Hobhouse is accused of having written his book "in a back street of the French capital."

LETTER III.

FROM MR. BOB FUDGE TO RICHARD ———, ESQ.

OH DICK ! you may talk of your writing and reading,
 Your Logic and Greek, but there's nothing like feeding ;
 And this is the place for it, DICKY, you dog,
 Of all places on earth—the head quarters of Prog !
 Talk of England—her famed Magna Charta, I swear, is A humbug, a flam, to the Carte * at old VÉRY's ;
 And as for your Juries—who would not set o'er 'em
 A Jury of Tasters, † with woodcocks before 'em ?
 Give CARTWRIGHT his Parliaments, fresh every year—
 But those friends of short Commons would never do here ;
 And let ROMILLY speak as he will on the question,
 No Digest of Law's like the laws of digestion !

By the by, DICK, I fatten—but n'importe for that,
 'Tis the mode—your Legitimates always get fat ;

* The bill of Fare.—Véry, a well-known Restaurateur.

† Mr. Bob alludes particularly, I presume, to the famous Jury Dégustateur, which used to assemble at the Hotel of M. Grimod de la Reynière, and of which this modern Ar-chestratus has given an account in his Almanach des Gourmands, cinquième année, p. 78.

There's the R—G—T, there's *s—and B*N*Y tried too,
But, though somewhat imperial in paunch, 'twouldn't
do :

He improved, indeed, much in this point when he wed,
But he ne'er grew right r*y*lly fat in the head.

DICK, DICK, what a place is this Paris!—but stay—
As my raptures may bore you, I'll just sketch a Day,
As we pass it, myself and some comrades I've got,
All thorough-bred Gnostics, who know what is what.

After dreaming some hours of the land of Cocaigne, *
That Elysium of all that is friand and nice,
Where for hail they have bon-bons, and claret for rain,
And the skaiters in winter show off on cream-ice ;
Where so ready all nature its cookery yields,
Macaroni au parmesan grows in the fields ;
Little birds fly about with the true pheasant taint,
And the geese are all born with a liver complaint! †

* The fairy-land of cookery and gourmandise ; “ Pays, où le ciel offre les viandes toutes cuites, et où, comme on parle, les alouettes tombent toutes roties. Du Latin, coquere.”—DACHAT.

† The process by which the liver of the unfortunate goose is enlarged, in order to produce that richest of all dainties, foie gras, of which such renowned pâtés are made at

I rise—put on neck-cloth—stiff, tight as can be—
 For, a lad who goes into the world, DICK, like me, Should have his neck tied up, you know—there's no doubt of it—

Almost as tight as some lads who go out of it.
 With whiskers well oil'd, and with boots that “hold up
 “The mirror to nature”—so bright you could sup
 Off the leather like china; with coat, too, that draws
 On the tailor, who suffers, a martyr's applause!—
 With head bridled up, like a four-in-hand leader,
 And stays—devil's in them—too tight for a feeder,
 I strut to the old Café Hardy, which yet
 Beats the field at a déjeuner à la fourchette.
 There, DICK, what a breakfast!—oh, not like your ghost
 Of a breakfast in England, your curst tea and toast;
 But a side-board, you dog, where one's eye roves about,
 Like a Turk's in the Haram, and thence singles out
 One's pâté of larks, just to tune up the throat,
 One's small limbs of chickens, done en papillote,

Strasbourg and Toulouse, is thus described in the Cours Gastronomique:—“On déplume l'estomac des oies; on attache ensuite ces animaux aux chenets d'une cheminée, et on les nourrit devant le feu. La captivité et la chaleur donnent à ces volatiles une maladie hépatique, qui fait gonfler leur foie,” etc. p. 206.

One's erudite cutlets, drest all ways but plain,
Or one's kidneys—imagine, DICK—done with champagne!

Then some glasses of Beaune, to dilute—or, mayhap,
Chambertin, * which you know 's the pet tippie of NAP,
And which Dad, by the by, that legitimate stickler,
Much scruples to taste, but I'm not so partic'lar.—
Your coffee comes next, by prescription; and then,
DICK, 's

The coffee's ne'er-failing and glorious appendix—
(If books had but such, my old Grecian, depend on't
I'd swallow even W—TK—N's, for sake of the end on't)—

A neat glass of parfait-amour, which one sips
Just as if bottled velvet † tipp'd over one's lips!

This repast being ended, and paid for—(how odd!

Till a man's used to paying there's something so queer in't)—

The sun now well out, and the girls all abroad,

And the world enough air'd for us, Nobs, to appear in't,

* The favourite wine of Napoleon.

† Velours en bouteille.

We lounge up the Boulevards, where—oh DICK, the phyzzes,

The turn-outs, we meet—what a nation of quizzes!

Here toddles along some old figure of fun,

With a coat you might date Anno Domini One;

A laced hat, worsted stockings, and—noble old soul!—

A fine ribbon and cross in his best button-hole;

Just such as our PR——E, who nor reason nor fun
dreads,

Inflicts, without even a court-martial, on hundreds. *

Here trips a grisette, with a fond, roguish eye

(Rather eatable things these grisettes by the by);

And there an old demoiselle, almost as fond,

In a silk that has stood since the time of the Fronde.

There goes a French Dandy—ah, DICK! unlike some ones

We've seen about WHITE'S—the Mounseers are but rum ones;

Such hats!—fit for monkeys—I'd back Mrs. DRAPER

To cut neater weather-boards out of brown paper:

* It was said by Wicquefort, more than a hundred years ago, "Le Roi d'Angleterre fait seul plus de chevaliers que tous les autres Rois de la Chrétienté ensemble."—What would he say now?

And coats—how I wish, if it wouldn't distress 'em,
They'd club for old B—M—L, from Calais, to dress 'em!
The collar sticks out from the neck such a space,
That you'd swear 'twas the plan of this head-lobbing nation,

To leave there behind them a snug little place
For the head to drop into, on decapitation!
In short, what with mountebanks, Counts, and friseurs,
Some mummers by trade, and the rest amateurs—
What with captains in new jockey-boots and silk breeches,

Old dustmen with swinging great opera-hats,
And shoeblacks reclining by statues in niches,
There never was seen such a race of Jack Sprats!

From the Boulevards—but hearken!—yes—as I'm a sinner,

The clock is just striking the half-hour to dinner:
So no more at present—short time for adorning—
My day must be finish'd some other fine morning.
Now, hey for old BEAUVILLIERS' * larder, my boy!
And, once there, if the Goddess of Beauty and Joy

* A celebrated Restaurateur.

Were to write "Come and kiss me, dear BOB!" I'd not budge—

Not a step, DICK, as sure as my name is

R. FUDGE.

LETTER IV.

FROM PHELM CONNOR TO ———.

"RETURN!"—no, never, while the withering hand
Of bigot power is on that hapless land;
While, for the faith my fathers held to God,
Even in the fields where free those fathers trod,
I am proscribed, and—like the spot left bare
In Israel's halls, to tell the proud and fair
Amidst their mirth that Slavery had been there *—
On all I love,—home, parents, friends,—I trace
The mournful mark of bondage and disgrace!

* "They used to leave a yard square of the wall of the house unplastered, on which they write, in large letters, either the fore-mentioned verse of the Psalmist ('If I forget thee, O Jerusalem,' etc.) or the words—'The memory of the desolation.'" Leo of Modena.

No!—let them stay, who in their country's pangs
 See nought but food for factions and harangues;
 Who yearly kneel before their masters' doors,
 And hawk their wrongs, as beggars do their sores :

* Still let your * * * *

 * * * * * *

Still hope and suffer, all who can!—but I,
 Who durst not hope, and cannot bear, must fly.

But whither?—every where the scourge pursues—
 Turn where he will, the wretched wanderer views,
 In the bright, broken hopes of all his race,
 Countless reflections of th' Oppressor's face!
 Every where gallant hearts, and spirits true,
 Are served up victims to the vile and few;
 While E, every where—the general foe
 Of Truth and Freedom, wheresoe'er they glow—
 Is first, when tyrants strike, to aid the blow!

Oh E! could such poor revenge atone
 For wrongs, that well might claim the deadliest one;

* I have thought it prudent to omit some parts of Mr. Phelim Connor's letter. He is evidently an intemperate young man, and has associated with his cousins, the Fudges, to very little purpose.

Were it a vengeance, sweet enough to sate
The wretch who flies from thy intolerant hate,
To hear his curses, on such barbarous sway,
Echoed where'er he bends his cheerless way;—
Could this content him, every lip he meets
Teems for his vengeance with such poisonous sweets;
Were this his luxury, never is thy name
Pronounced, but he doth banquet on thy shame;
Hears maledictions ring from every side
Upon that grasping power, that selfish pride,
Which vaunts its own, and scorns all rights beside;
That low and desperate envy, which to blast
A neighbour's blessings, risks the few thou hast;—
That monster, Self, too gross to be conceal'd,
Which ever lurks behind thy proffer'd shield;
That faithless craft, which, in thy hour of need,
Can court the slave, can swear he shall be freed,
Yet basely spurns him, when thy point is gain'd,
Back to his masters, ready gagg'd and chain'd!
Worthy associate of that band of Kings,
That royal, ravening flock, whose vampire wings
O'er sleeping Europe treacherously brood,
And fan her into dreams of promised good,
Of hope, of freedom—but to drain her blood!

If thus to hear thee branded be a bliss
That Vengeance loves, there's yet more sweet than this,—

That 'twas an Irish head, an Irish heart,
Made thee the fallen and tarnish'd thing thou art;
That, as the Centaur * gave th' infected vest,
In which he died, to rack his conqueror's breast,
We sent thee C————GH:—as heaps of dead
Have slain their slayers by their pest they spread,
So hath our land breathed out—thy fame to dim,
Thy strength to waste, and rot thee, soul and limb—
Her worst infections all condensed in him!

* * * * *

When will the world shake off such yokes! oh, when
Will that redeeming day shine out on men,
That shall behold them rise, erect and free
As Heaven and Nature meant mankind should be!
When Reason shall no longer blindly bow
To the vile pagod things, that o'er her brow,
Like him of Jaghernaut, drive trampling now;

* Membra et Herculeos toros

Urit lues Nessea.—————

Ille, ille victor vincitur.—Senec. Hercul. OEt.

Nor Conquest dare to desolate God's earth;
 Nor drunken Victory, with a NERO's mirth,
 Strike her lewd harp amidst a people's groans ;—
 But, built on love, the world's exalted thrones
 Shall to the virtuous and the wise be given—
 Those bright, those sole Legitimates of Heaven!

When will this be?—or, oh ! is it, in truth,
 But one of those sweet day-break dreams of youth,
 In which the Soul, as round her morning springs,
 'Twixt sleep and waking, sees such dazzling things !
 And must the hope, as vain as it is bright,
 Be all given up?—and are they only right,
 Who say this world of thinking souls was made
 To be by Kings partition'd, truck'd, and weigh'd
 In scales that, ever since the world begun,
 Have counted millions but as dust to one?
 Are they the only wise, who laugh to scorn
 The rights, the freedom to which man was born ;

Who * * * * *
 * * * * *

Who, proud to kiss each separate rod of power,
 Bless, while he reigns, the minion of the hour;

Worship each would-be God, that o'er them moves,
 And take the thundering of his brass for JOVE's!
 If this be wisdom, then farewell, my books,
 Farewell, ye shrines of old, ye classic brooks,
 Which fed my soul with currents, pure and fair,
 Of living Truth, that now must stagnate there!—
 Instead of themes that touch the lyre with light,
 Instead of Greece, and her immortal fight
 For Liberty, which once awaked my strings,
 Welcome the Grand Conspiracy of Kings,
 The High L*gitates, the Holy Band,
 Who, bolder even than he of Sparta's land,
 Against whole millions, panting to be free,
 Would guard the pass of right-line tyranny!
 Instead of him, th' Athenian bard, whose blade
 Had stood the onset which his pen pourtray'd, Welcome * * * * *
 * * * * *
 And, 'stead of ARISTIDES—woe the day
 Such names should mingle!—welcome C——GH!

Here break we off, at this unhallow'd name,
 Like priests of old, when words ill-omen'd came.
 My next shall tell thee, bitterly shall tell,
 Thoughts that * * * *

* * * * *

Thoughts that—could patience hold—'twere wiser far
To leave still hid and burning where they are!

LETTER V.

FROM MISS BIDDY FUDGE TO MISS DOROTHY ———.

WHAT a time since I wrote!—I'm a sad, naughty girl—
Though, like a tee-totum, I'm all in a twirl,
Yet even (as you wittily say) a tee-totum
Between all its twirls gives a letter to note 'em.
But, Lord, such a place! and then, DOLLY, my dresses,
My gowns, so divine!—there's no language expresses,
Except just the two words “superbe,” “magnifique,”
The trimmings of that which I had home last week!
It is call'd—I forget—à la—something which sounded
Like alicampane—but, in truth, I'm confounded
And bother'd, my dear, 'twixt that troublesome boy's (BOB's) cookery language, and Madame LE ROI's:
What with fillets of roses, and fillets of veal,
Things garni with lace, and things garni with eel,

One's hair and one's cutlets both en papillote,
And a thousand more things I shall ne'er have by rote,
I can scarce tell the difference, at least as to phrase,
Between beef à la Psyché and curls à la braise.—
But, in short, dear, I'm trick'd out quite à la française,
With my bonnet—so beautiful!—high up and poking,
Like things that are put to keep chimneys from smoking.

Where shall I begin with the endless delights
Of this Eden of milliners, monkeys, and sights—
This dear busy place, where there's nothing transacting
But dressing and dinnering, dancing and acting?

Imprimis, the Opera—mercy, my ears!

Brother BOBBY's remark t'other night was a true one;—

“This must be the music,” said he, “of the spears,

“For I'm curst if each note of it doesn't run through one!”

Pa says (and you know, love, his Book's to make out
'Twas the Jacobins brought every mischief about)
That this passion for roaring has come in of late,
Since the rabble all tried for a voice in the State.—
What a frightful idea, one's mind to o'erwhelm!

What a chorus, dear DOLLY, would soon be let loose
of it!

If, when of age, every man in the realm
Had a voice like old LAÏS, * and chose to make use of it!

No—never was known in this riotous sphere
Such a breach of the peace as their singing, my dear.
So bad too, you'd swear that the God of both arts,
Of Music and Physic, had taken a frolic
For setting a loud fit of asthma in parts,
And composing a fine rumbling base to a cholic!

But, the dancing—ah parlez-moi, DOLLY, de ça—
There, indeed, is a treat that charms all but Papa.
Such beauty—such grace—oh ye sylphs of romance!

Fly, fly to TITANIA, and ask her if she has
One light-footed nymph in her train, that can dance
Like divine BIGOTTINI and sweet FANNY BIAS!

FANNY BIAS in FLORA—dear creature!—you'd swear,
When her delicate feet in the dance twinkle round,
That her steps are of light, that her home is the air,
And she only par complaisance touches the ground.
And when BIGOTTINI in PSYCHE dishevels

Her black flowing hair, and by dæmons is driven,

* The oldest, most celebrated, and most noisy of the singers at the French Opera.

Oh! who does not envy those rude little devils,
That hold her and hug her, and keep her from Heaven?

Then, the music—so softly its cadences die,
So divinely—oh, DOLLY! between you and I,
It's as well for my peace that there's nobody nigh
To make love to me then—you've a soul, and can judge
What a crisis 'twould be for your friend BIDDY FUDGE!

The next place (which BOBBY has near lost his heart in)
They call it the Play-house—I think—of Saint Martin;*
Quite charming—and very religious—what folly
To say that the French are not pious, dear DOLLY,
When here one beholds, so correctly and rightly,
The Testament turn'd into melo-drames nightly;
And, doubtless, so fond they're of scriptural facts,
They will soon get the Pentateuch up in five acts.
Here DANIEL, in pantomime, † bids bold defiance
To NEBUCHADNEZZAR and all his stuff'd lions,

* The Theatre de la Porte St. Martin, which was built when the Opera-House in the Palais Royal was burned down, in 1781.—A few days after this dreadful fire, which lasted more than a week, and in which several persons perished, the Parisian élégantes displayed flame-coloured dresses, “couleur feu de l'Opéra!”—Dulaure, Curiosités de Paris.

† A piece very popular last year, called “Daniel, ou la

While pretty young Israelites dance round the Prophet,
 In very thin clothing, and but little of it;—
 Here BÉGRAND, * who shines in this scriptural path,
 As the lovely SUSANNA, without even a relic
 Of drapery round her, comes out of the bath
 In a manner that, BOB says, is quite Eve-angelic!

But, in short, dear, 'twould take me a month to recite
 All the exquisite places we're at, day and night;
 And, besides, ere I finish, I think you'll be glad
 Just to hear one delightful adventure I've had.

Last night, at the Beaujon, † a place where—I doubt
 If I well can describe—there are cars, that set out

Fosse aux Lions.” The following scene will give an idea of the daring sublimity of these scriptural pantomimes. “Scène 20.—La fournaise devient un berceau de nuages azurés, au fond duquel est un groupe de nuages plus lumineux, et au milieu ‘Jehovah’ au centre d’un cercle de rayons brillans, qui annonce la présence de l’Éternel.”

* Madame Bégrand, a finely formed woman, who acts in “Susanna and the Elders,” “L’amour et la Folie,” etc. etc.

† The Promenades Aériennes, or French Mountains.—See a description of this singular and fantastic place of amusement in a pamphlet, truly worthy of it, by F. F. Cotterel, Médecin, Docteur de la Faculté de Paris, etc. etc.

From a lighted pavilion, high up in the air,
And rattle you down, DOLL—you hardly know where.
These vehicles, mind me, in which you go through
This delightfully dangerous journey, hold two.
Some cavalier asks, with humility, whether You'll venture down with him—you smile—'tis a match;

In an instant you're seated, and down both together
Go thundering, as if you went post to old Scratch! *
Well, it was but last night, as I stood and remark'd
On the looks and odd ways of the girls who embark'd,
The impatience of some for the perilous flight,
The forced giggle of others, 'twixt pleasure and fright,
That there came up—imagine, dear DOLL, if you can—
A fine sallow, sublime, sort of Werter-faced man,
With mustachios that gave (what we read of so oft)
The dear Corsair expression, half savage, half soft,
As Hyænas in love may be fancied to look, or
A something between ABELARD and old BLUCHER!
Up he came, DOLL, to me, and uncovering his head,
(Rather bald, but so warlike!) in bad English said,

* According to Dr. Cotterel, the cars go at the rate of forty-eight miles an hour.

“ Ah ! my dear—if Ma’m selle vil be so very good—
“ Just for von littel course”—though I scarce understood
What he wish’d me to do, I said, thank him, I would.
Off we set—and, though ’faith, dear, I hardly knew whether

My head or my heels were the uppermost then,
For ’twas like heaven and earth, DOLLY, coming together,—

Yet, spite of the danger, we dared it again.
And oh ! as I gazed on the features and air

Of the man, who for me all this peril defied,
I could fancy almost he and I were a pair

Of unhappy young lovers, who thus, side by side,
Were taking, instead of rope, pistol, or dagger, a
Desperate dash down the falls of Niagara !

This achieved, through the gardens* we saunter’d about,

Saw the fire-works, exclaim’d “ magnifique ! ” at each cracker,

* In the Café attached to these gardens there are to be (as Dr. Cotterel informs us) “ douze nègres, très-alertes, qui contrasteront par l’ébène de leur peau avec le teint de lis et de roses de nos belles. Les glaces et les sorbets servis par une main bien noire, fera davantage ressortir l’albâtre des bras arrondis de celles-ci.”—P. 22.

And when 'twas all o'er, the dear man saw us out
With the air, I will say, of a Prince, to our fiacre.

Now, hear me—this Stranger—it may be mere folly—
But who do you think we all think it is, DOLLY?
Why, bless you, no less than the great King of Prussia,
Who's here now incog.*—he, who made such a fuss, you

Remember, in London, with BLUCHER and PLATOFF,
When SAL was near kissing old BLUCHER's cravat off!
Pa says he's come here to look after his money,
(Not taking things now as he used under BONEY)
Which suits with our friend, for BOB saw him, he swore,
Looking sharp to the silver received at the door.
Besides, too, they say that his grief for his Queen
(Which was plain in this sweet fellow's face to be seen)
Requires such a stimulant dose as this car is,
Used three times a day with young ladies in Paris.
Some Doctor, indeed, has declared that such grief
Should—unless 'twould to utter despairing its folly push—

* His Majesty, who was at Paris under the travelling name of Count Ruppín, is known to have gone down the Beaujon very frequently.

Fly to the Beaujon, and there seek relief

By rattling, as BOB says, "like shot through a holly-bush."

I must now bid adieu—only think, DOLLY, think

If this should be the King—I have scarce slept a wink

With imagining how it will sound in the papers,

And how all the Misses my good luck will grudge,
When they read that Count RUPPIN, to drive away
vapours,

Has gone down the Beaujon with Miss BIDDY FUDGE.

Not a Bene.—Papa's almost certain 'tis he—

For he knows the L*gitate cut, and could see,

In the way he went poisoning, and managed to tower

So erect in the car, the true Balance of Power.

LETTER VI.

FROM PHIL. FUDGE, ESQ. TO HIS BROTHER TIM

FUDGE, ESQ. BARRISTER AT LAW.

YOURS of the 12th received just now—

Thanks for the hint, my trusty brother!

'Tis truly pleasing to see how

We FUDGES stand by one another.

But never fear—I know my chap,

And he knows me, too—verbum sap.

My Lord and I are kindred spirits,

Like in our ways as two young ferrets;

Both fashion'd, as that supple race is,

To twist into all sort of places;—

Creatures lengthy, lean, and hungering,

Fond of blood and burrow-mongering.

As to my Book in 91,

Call'd “Down with Kings, or, Who'd have thought it?”

Bless you, the Book's long dead and gone,—

Not even th' Attorney-General bought it.

And, though some few seditious tricks
I play'd in 95 and 6,
As you remind me in your letter,
His Lordship likes me all the better ;
We, proselytes, that come with news full,
Are, as he says, so vastly useful !

REYNOLDS and I—(you know TOM REYNOLDS—
Drinks his claret, keeps his chaise—
Lucky the dog that first unkennels
Traitors and Luddites now-a-days ;
Or who can help to bag a few,
When S—D—TH wants a death or two) ;
REYNOLDS and I, and some few more,
All men like us of information,
Friends, whom his Lordship keeps in store,
As under-saviours of the nation—*
Have form'd a Club this season, where
His Lordship sometimes takes the chair,
And gives us many a bright oration
In praise of our sublime vocation ;

* Lord C.'s tribute to the character of his friend, Mr. Reynolds, will long be remembered with equal credit to both.

Tracing it up to great King MIDAS,
 Who, though in fable typified as
 A royal Ass, by grace divine
 And right of ears, most assinine,
 Was yet no more, in fact historical,
 Than an exceeding well-bred tyrant;
 And these, his ears, but allegorical,
 Meaning Informers, kept at high rent—*
 Gemmen, who touch'd the Treasury glisteners,
 Like us, for being trusty listeners;
 And picking up each tale and fragment,
 For royal MIDAS's green bag meant.
 "And wherefore," said this best of Peers,
 "Should not the R—G—T too have ears, †

* This interpretation of the fable of Midas's ears seems the most probable of any, and is thus stated in Hoffmann:—Hâc allegoriâ significatum, Midam, utpote tyrannum, subauscultatores dimittere solitum, per quos, quæcumque per omnem regionem vel fierent, vel dicerentur, cognosceret, nimirum illis utens auriam vice."

† Brossette, in a note on this line of Boileau,
 "Midas, le roi Midas a des oreilles d'âne," tells us, that "M. Perrault le Médecin voulut faire à notre auteur un crime d'état de ce vers, comme d'une maligne allusion au Roi." I trust, however, that no one will suspect the line in the text of any such indecorous allusion.

“ To reach as far, as long and wide as “ Those of his model, good King MIDAS?”
 This speech was thought extremely good,
 And (rare for him) was understood—
 Instant we drank “ The R—G—T’s Ears,”
 With three times three illustrious cheers,
 That made the room resound like thunder—
 “ The R—G—T’s Ears, and may he ne’er
 “ From foolish shame, like MIDAS, wear “ Old paltry wigs to keep them under!” *
 This touch at our old friends, the Whigs,
 Made us as merry all as grigs.
 In short (I’ll thank you not to mention
 These things again) we get on gaily;
 And, thanks to pension and Suspension,
 Our little Club increases daily.
 CASTLES, and OLIVER, and such,
 Who don’t as yet full salary touch,

* It was not under wigs, but tiaras, that King Midas endeavoured to conceal these appendages :

Tempora purpureis tentat velare tiaris. OVID.

The Noble Giver of the toast, however, had evidently, with his usual clearness, confounded King Midas, Mr. Liston, and the P—e R—g—t together.

Nor keep their chaise and pair, nor buy
 Houses and lands, like Tom and I,
 Of course don't rank with us, salvators, *
 But merely serve the Club as waiters.
 Like Knights, too, we've our collar days,
 (For us, I own, an awkward phrase)
 When, in our new costume adorn'd,—
 The R—G—T's buff-and-blue coats turn'd—
 We have the honour to give dinners
 To the chief Rats in upper stations; †
 Your W——YS, V——NS—half-fledged sinners,
 Who shame us by their imitations;
 Who turn, 'tis true—but what of that?
 Give me the useful peaching Rat;
 Not things as mute as Punch, when bought,
 Whose wooden heads are all they've brought;
 Who, false enough to shirk their friends,
 But too faint-hearted to betray,
 Are, after all their twists and bends,
 But souls in Limbo, damn'd half way.

* Mr. Fudge and his friends should go by this name—as the man who, some years since, saved the late Right Hon. George Rose from drowning, was ever after called Salvator Rosa.

† This intimacy between the Rats and Informers is just as it should be—"verè dulce sodalitium."

No, no,—we nobler vermin are
A genus useful as we're rare ;
'Midst all the things miraculous
Of which your natural histories brag,
The rarest must be Rats like us,
Who let the cat out of the bag.
Yet still these Tyros in the cause
Deserve, I own, no small applause ;
And they're by us received and treated
With all due honours—only seated
In th' inverse scale of their reward,
The merely promised next my Lord ;
Small pensions then, and so on, down,
Rat after rat, they graduate
Through job, red ribbon, and silk gown,
To Chancellorship and Marquisate.
This serves to nurse the ratting spirit ;
The less the bribe the more the merit.
Our music's good, you may be sure ;
My Lord, you know, 's an amateur—*

* His Lordship, during one of the busiest periods of his Ministerial career, took lessons three times a-week from a celebrated music-master, in glee-singing.

Takes every part with perfect ease,
 Though to the Base by nature suited,
 And, form'd for all, as best may please,
 For whips and bolts, or chords and keys,
 Turns from his victims to his glees,
 And has them both well executed.
 H——T——D, who, though no Rat himself,
 Delights in all such liberal arts,
 Drinks largely to the House of Guelph,
 And superintends the Corni parts.
 While C—NN—G,* who'd be first by choice,
 Consents to take an under voice ;
 And G———s,† who well that signal knows,
 Watches the Volti Subitos. §

* This Right Hon. Gentleman ought to give up his present alliance with Lord C., if upon no other principle than that which is inculcated in the following arrangement between two Ladies of Fashion :

Says Clarinda, " though tears it may cost,
 " It is time we should part, my dear Sue ;
 " For your character's totally lost,
 " And I have not sufficient for two !"

† The rapidity of this Noble Lord's transformation, at the same instant, into a Lord of the Bed-chamber and an opponent of the Catholic Claims, was truly miraculous.

§ Turn instantly—a frequent direction in music-books.

In short, as I've already hinted,
We take, of late, prodigiously;
But as our Club is somewhat stinted
For Gentlemen, like Tom and me,
We'll take it kind if you'll provide
A few Squireens * from t'other side;—
Some of those loyal, cunning elves,
(We often tell the tale with laughter)
Who used to hide the pikes themselves,
Then hang the fools who found them after.
I doubt not you could find us, too,
Some Orange Parsons that would do;
Among the rest, we've heard of one,
The Reverend—something—HAMILTON,
Who stuff'd a figure of himself
(Delicious thought!) and had it shot at,
To bring some Papists to the shelf,
That couldn't otherwise be got at—
If he'll but join th' Association,
We'll vote him in by acclamation.
And now, my brother, guide, and friend,
This somewhat tedious scrawl must end.

* The Irish diminutive of Squire.

I've gone into this long detail,
Because I saw your nerves were shaken
With anxious fears lest I should fail
In this new, loyal, course I've taken.
But, bless your heart! you need not doubt—
We FUDGES know what we're about.
Look round, and say if you can see
A much more thriving family.
There's JACK, the Doctor—night and day
Hundreds of patients so besiege him,
You'd swear that all the rich and gay
Fell sick on purpose to oblige him.
And while they think, the precious ninnies,
He's counting o'er their pulse so steady,
The rogue but counts how many guineas
He's fobb'd, for that day's work, already.
I'll ne'er forget th' old maid's alarm,
When, feeling thus Miss Sukey Flirt, he
Said, as he dropp'd her shrivell'd arm,
“Damn'd bad this morning—only thirty!”
Your dowagers, too, every one,
So generous are, when they call him in,

That he might now retire upon
The rheumatisms of three old women.
Then, whatsoe'er your ailments are,
He can so learnedly explain ye 'em—
Your cold, of course, is a catarrh,
Your head-ache is a hemi-cranium:—
His skill, too, in young ladies' lungs,
The grace with which, most mild of men,
He begs them to put out their tongues,
Then bids them—put them in again!
In short there's nothing now like JACK;—
Take all your doctors, great and small,
Of present times and ages back,
Dear Doctor FUDGE is worth them all.

So much for physic—then, in law too,
Counsellor TIM! to thee we bow;
Not one of us gives more eclat to
Th' immortal name of FUDGE than thou.
Not to expatiate on the art
With which you play'd the patriot's part,
Till something good and snug should offer;—
Like one, who, by the way he acts

Th' enlightening part of candle-snuffer,
The manager's keen eye attracts,
And is promoted thence by him
To strut in robes like thee, my TIM!
Who shall describe thy powers of face,
Thy well-fee'd zeal in every case,
Or wrong or right—but ten times warmer
(As suits thy calling) in the former—
Thy glorious, lawyer-like delight
In puzzling all that's clear and right,
Which, though conspicuous in thy youth,
Improves so with a wig and band on,
That all thy pride's to way-lay Truth,
And leave her not a leg to stand on.—
Thy patent, prime, morality,—
Thy cases, cited from the Bible—
Thy candour, when it falls to thee
To help in trouncing for a libel ;—
“ God knows, I, from my soul, profess
“ To hate all bigots and benighters!
“ God knows, I love, to even excess,
“ The sacred Freedom of the Press,
“ My only aim's to—crush the writers.”

These are the virtues, TIM, that draw
The briefs into thy bag so fast ;
And these, oh, TIM—if Law be Law—
Will raise thee to the Bench at last.

I blush to see this letter's length,
But 'twas my wish to prove to thee
How full of hope, and wealth, and strength,
Are all our precious family.
And, should affairs go on as pleasant
As, thank the Fates, they do at present—
Should we but still enjoy the sway
Of S—DM—H and of C———GH,
I hope, ere long, to see the day
When England's wisest statesmen, judges,
Lawyers, peers, will all be—FUDGES !

Good bye—my paper's out so nearly,
I've only room for

Yours sincerely.

LETTER VII.

FROM PHELM CONNOR TO ———.

BEFORE we sketch the Present—let us cast
A few short rapid glances to the Past.

When he, who had defied all Europe's strength,
Beneath his own weak rashness sunk at length ;—
When loosed, as if by magic, from a chain
That seem'd like Fate's, the world was free again,
And Europe saw, rejoicing in the sight,
The cause of Kings, for once, the cause of Right ;
Then was, indeed, an hour of joy to those
Who sigh'd for justice—liberty—repose,
And hoped the fall of one great vulture's nest
Would ring its warning round, and scare the rest.
And all was bright with promise ;—Kings began
To own a sympathy with suffering Man,
And Man was grateful—Patriots of the South
Caught wisdom from a Cossack Emperor's mouth,
And heard, like accents thaw'd in Northern air,
Unwonted words of freedom burst forth there !

Who did not hope in that triumphant time,
When monarchs, after years of spoil and crime,
Met round the shrine of Peace, and Heaven look'd on,
Who did not hope the lust of spoil was gone ;—
That that rapacious spirit, which had play'd
The game of Pilnitz o'er so oft, was laid,
And Europe's Rulers, conscious of the past,
Would blush, and deviate into right at last ?
But no—the hearts that nursed a hope so fair
Had yet to learn what men on thrones can dare ;
Had yet to know, of all earth's ravening things,
The only quite untameable are Kgs !
Scarce had they met when, to its nature true,
The instinct of their race broke out anew ;
Promises, treaties, charters, all were vain,
And “Rapine !—rapine !” was the cry again.
How quick they carved their victims, and how well,
Let Saxony, let injured Genoa tell,—
Let all the human stock that, day by day,
Was at the Royal slave-mart truck'd away,—
The million souls that, in the face of Heaven,
Were split to fractions,* barter'd, sold, or given

* “ Whilst the Congress was re-constructing Europe—not according to rights, natural affiances, language, habits, or

To swell some despot power, too huge before,
 And weigh down Europe with one Mammoth more !
 How safe the faith of Kgs let Fce decide ;—
 Her charter broken, ere its ink had dried—
 Her Press enthrall'd—her Reason mock'd again
 With all the monkery it had spurn'd in vain—
 Her crown disgraced by one, who dared to own
 He thank'd not Fce but Ed for his throne—
 Her triumphs cast into the shade by those Who had grown old among her bitterest foes,
 And now return'd, beneath her conquerors' shields,
 Unblushing slaves ! to claim her heroes' fields,
 To tread down every trophy of her fame,
 And curse that glory which to them was shame !—
 Let these—let all the damning deeds, that then
 Were dared through Europe, cry aloud to men,
 With voice like that of crashing ice that rings
 Round Alpine huts, the perfidy of Kgs ;

laws ; but by tables of finance, which divided and subdivided her population into souls, demi-souls, and even fractions, according to a scale of the direct duties or taxes which could be levied by the acquiring state," etc.—Sketch of the Military and Political Power of Russia.—The words on the protocol are ames, demi-ames, etc.

And tell the world, when hawks shall harmless bear
The shrinking dove, when wolves shall learn to spare
The helpless victim for whose blood they lusted,
Then, and then only, monarchs may be trusted !

It could not last—these horrors could not last—
Fce would herself have risen, in might, to cast
Th' insulters off—and oh ! that then, as now,
Chain'd to some distant islet's rocky brow,
NOLN ne'er had come to force, to blight,
Ere half matured, a cause so proudly bright ;—
To palsy patriot hearts with doubt and shame,
And write on Freedom's flag a despot's name ;
To rush into the lists, unask'd, alone,
And make the stake of all the game of one !
Then would the world have seen again what power
A people can put forth in Freedom's hour ;
Then would the fire of Fce once more have blazed ;
For every single sword, reluctant raised
In the stale cause of an oppressive throne,
Millions would then have leap'd forth in her own ;
And never, never had th' unholy stain
Of Bb*n feet disgraced her shores again !

But Fate decreed not so—th' Imperial Bird,
That, in his neighbouring cage, unfear'd, unstirr'd,
Had seem'd to sleep with head beneath his wing,
Yet watch'd the moment for a daring spring ;—
Well might he watch, when deeds were done that made
His own transgressions whiten in their shade ;
Well might he hope a world, thus trampled o'er
By clumsy tyrants, would be his once more :
Forth from its cage that eagle burst to light,
From steeple on to steeple* wing'd its flight,
With calm and easy grandeur, to that throne
From which a royal craven just had flown ;
And resting there, as in its aerie, furl'd
Those wings, whose very rustling shook the world !

What was your fury then, ye crown'd array,
Whose feast of spoil, whose plundering holiday
Was thus broke up in all its greedy mirth,
By one bold chieftain's stamp on G*ll*c earth !
Fierce was the cry and fulminant the ban,—
“ Assassinate, who will—enchain, who can,
“ The vile, the faithless, outlaw'd, low-born man !”

* “ L'aigle volera de clocher en clocher, jusqu'aux tours de Notre-Dame.”—Noln's Proclamation on landing from Elba.

“Faithless!”—and this from you—from you,
forsooth,
Ye pious Kgs, pure paragons of truth,
Whose honesty all knew, for all had tried ;
Whose true Swiss zeal had served on every side ;
Whose fame for breaking faith so long was known,
Well might ye claim the craft as all your own,
And lash your lordly tails, and fume to see
Such low-born apes of Royal perfidy !
Yes—yes—to you alone did it belong
To sin for ever, and yet ne’er do wrong—
The frauds, the lies of Lords legitimate
Are but fine policy, deep strokes of state ;
But let some upstart dare to soar so high
In Kgly craft, and “outlaw” is the cry !
What, though long years of mutual treachery
Had peopled full your diplomatic shelves
With ghosts of treaties, murder’d ’mong yourselves ;
Though each by turns was knave and dupe—what then ?
A Holy League would set all straight again ;
Like JUNO’s virtue, which a dip or two
In some bless’d fountain made as good as new ! *

* Singulis annis in quodam Atticæ fonte lota virginitatem recuperâsse fingitur.

Most faithful Russia—faithful to whome'er
Could plunder best, and give him amplest share ;
Who, even when vanquish'd, sure to gain his ends,
For want of foes to rob, made free with friends,*
And, deepening still by amiable gradations,
When foes are stript of all, then fleeced relations ! †
Most mild and saintly Prussia—steep'd to the ears
In persecuted Poland's blood and tears,
And now, with all her harpy wings outspread
O'er sever'd Saxony's devoted head !
Pure Austria too,—whose history nought repeats
But broken leagues and subsidized defeats ;
Whose faith, as Prince, extinguish'd Venice shows,
Whose faith, as man, a widow'd daughter knows !
And thou, oh England !—who, though once as shy
As cloister'd maids, of shame or perfidy,
Art now broke in, and, thanks to C———GH,
In all that's worst and falsest lead'st the way !

Such was the pure divan, whose pens and wits
Th' escape from Ea frighten'd into fits ;

* At the Peace of Tilsit, where he abandoned his ally, Prussia, to France, and received a portion of her territory.

† The seizure of Finland from his relative of Sweden.

Such were the saints who doom'd N^{}OL^{}N's life,
In virtuous frenzy, to the assassin's knife!
Disgusting crew!—who would not gladly fly
To open, downright, bold-faced tyranny,
To honest guilt, that dares do all but lie,
From the false, juggling craft of men like these,
Their canting crimes and varnish'd villanies;—
These Holy Leaguers, who then loudest boast
Of faith and honour, when they've stain'd them most;
From whose affection men should shrink as loath
As from their hate, for they'll be fleeced by both;
Who, even while plundering, forge Religion's name
To frank their spoil, and, without fear or shame,
Call down the Holy Trinity* to bless
Partition leagues, and deeds of devilishness!
But hold—enough—soon would this swell of rage
O'erflow the boundaries of my scanty page,—

* The usual preamble of these flagitious compacts. In the same spirit, Catherine, after the dreadful massacre of Warsaw, ordered a solemn “thanksgiving to God in all the churches, for the blessings conferred upon the Poles;” and commanded that each of them should “swear fidelity and loyalty to her, and to shed in her defence the last drop of their blood, as they should answer for it to God, and his terrible judgment, kissing the holy word and cross of their Saviour!”

So, here I pause—farewell—another day
Return we to those Lords of prayer and prey,
Whose loathsome cant, whose frauds by right divine
Deserve a lash—oh! weightier far than mine!

LETTER VIII.

FROM MR. BOB FUDGE, TO RICHARD ———, ESQ.

DEAR DICK, while old DONALDSON'S * mending my stays,— Which I knew would go smash with me one of these days,

And, at yesterday's dinner, when, full to the throttle,
We lads had begun our desert with a bottle
Of neat old Constantia, on my leaning back
Just to order another, by Jove I went crack!—
Or, as honest TOM said, in his nautical phrase, “D—n my eyes, BOB, in doubling the Cape you've miss'd stays.” †

* An English tailor at Paris.

† A ship is said to miss stays, when she does not obey the helm in tacking.

So, of course, as no gentleman's seen out without them, They're now at the Schneider's *—and, while he's about them,

Here goes for a letter, post-haste, neck and crop—

Let us see—in my last I was—where did I stop?

Oh, I know—at the Boulevards, as motley a road as Man ever would wish a day's lounging upon ;

With its cafés and gardens, hotels and pagodas,

Its founts, and old Counts sipping beer in the sun :

With its houses of all architectures you please,

From the Grecian and Gothic, DICK, down by degrees

To the pure Hottentot, or the Brighton Chinese ;

Where in temples antique you may breakfast or dinner
it,

Lunch at a mosque, and see Punch from a minaret.

Then, DICK, the mixture of bonnets and bowers,

Of foliage and frippery, fiacres and flowers,

Green-grocers, green gardens—one hardly knows whether

'Tis country or town, they're so mess'd up together !

And there, if one loves the romantic, one sees

Jew clothes-men, like shepherds, reclined under trees ;

* The dandy term for a tailor.

Or Quidnuncs, on Sunday, just fresh from the barber's,
Enjoying their news and *groseille in those arbours,
While gaily their wigs, like the tendrils, are curling,
And founts of red currant-juice † round them are purling.

Here, DICK, arm in arm, as we chattering stray,
And receive a few civil "God-dems" by the way,—
For 'tis odd, these mounseers,—though we've wasted our wealth

And our strength, till we've thrown ourselves into a phthisic,
To cram down their throats an old Kg for their health,

As we whip little children to make them take physic ;—

Yet, spite of our good-natured money and slaughter,
They hate us, as Beelzebub hates holy water!

* "Lemonade and eau-de-groseille are measured out at every corner of every street, from fantastic vessels, jingling with bells, to thirsty tradesmen or wearied messengers."—See Lady Morgan's lively description of the streets of Paris, in her very amusing work upon France, book 6.

† These gay, portable fountains, from which the groseille-water is administered, are among the most characteristic ornaments of the streets of Paris.

But who the deuce cares, DICK, as long as they nourish us

Neatly as now, and good cookery flourishes—
Long as, by bayonets protected, we Natties
May have our full fling at their salmis and pâtés?
And, truly, I always declared 'twould be pity
To burn to the ground such a choice-feeding city :
Had Dad but his way, he'd have long ago blown
The whole batch to Old Nick—and the people, I own,
If for no other cause than their curst monkey looks,
Well deserve a blow-up—but then, damn it, their cooks !

As to Marshals, and Statesmen, and all their whole lineage,

For aught that I care, you may knock them to spinage ;
But think, DICK, their cooks—what a loss to mankind !
What a void in the world would their art leave behind !
Their chronometer spits—their intense salamanders—
Their ovens—their pots, that can soften old ganders,
All vanish'd for ever—their miracles o'er,
And the Marmite Perpétuelle * bubbling no more !

* “ Cette merveilleuse Marmite Perpétuelle, sur le feu depuis près d'un siècle ; qui a donné le jour à plus de 300,000 chapons.”—Alman. des Gourmands, Quatrième Année, p. 152.

Forbid it, forbid it, ye Holy Allies,

Take whatever ye fancy—take statues, take money—
But leave them, oh leave them their Périgueux pies,
Their glorious goose-livers, and high-pickled tunny! *
Though many, I own, are the evils they've brought us,
Though Ral*y's here on her very last legs,
Yet, who can help loving the land that has taught us
Six hundred and eighty-five ways to dress eggs? †

You see, DICK, in spite of their cries of "God-dem,"
"Coquin Anglais," et cæ't'ra—how generous I am!
And now (to return, once again, to my "Day,"
Which will take us all night to get through in this way)
From the Boulevards we saunter through many a street,
Crack jokes on the natives—mine, all very neat—
Leave the Signs of the Times to political fops,
And find twice as much fun in the Signs of the Shops;—
Here, a Ls D*x-ht—there, a Martinmas goose (Much in vogue since your eagles are gone out of use)—

* Le thon mariné, one of the most favourite and indigestible hors-d'œuvres. This fish is taken chiefly in the Golfe de Lyon. "La tête et le dessous du ventre sont les parties les plus recherchées des gourmets."—Cours Gastronomique, p. 252.

† The exact number mentioned by M. de la Reynière—"On connoît en France 685 manières différentes d'accommoder les œufs; sans compter celles que nos savans imaginent chaque jour."

Henri Quatres in shoals, and of Gods a great many,
 But Saints are the most on hard duty of any :—
 St. TONY, who used all temptations to spurn,
Here hangs o'er a beer-shop, and tempts in his turn ;
 While there St. VENECIA * sits hemming and frilling her
 Holy mouchoir o'er the door of some milliner ;—
 St. AUSTIN's the “ outward and visible sign
 “ Of an inward ” cheap dinner and pint of small wine ;
 While St. DENYS hangs out o'er some hatter of ton,
 And possessing, good bishop, no head of his own,†
 Takes an interest in Dandies, who've got—next to none !
 Then we stare into shops—read the evening's affiches—
 Or, if some, who're Lotharios in feeding, should wish
 Just to flirt with a luncheon (a devilish bad trick,
 As it takes off the bloom of one's appetite, DICK),
 To the Passage des—what d'ye call 't—des Panoramas,§
 We quicken our pace, and there heartily cram as

* Veronica, the Saint of the Holy Handkerchief, is also, under the name of Venisse or Venecia, the tutelary saint of milliners.

† St. Denys walked three miles after his head was cut off. The mot of a woman of wit upon this legend is well known :—“ Je le crois bien ; en pareil cas, il n'y a que le premier pas qui coûte.”

§ Off the Boulevards Italiens.

Seducing young pâtés, as ever could cozen
One out of one's appetite, down by the dozen.
We vary, of course—petits pâtés do one day,
The next we've our lunch with the Gauffrier Hol-landais, *

That popular artist, who brings out, like Sc—TT,
His delightful productions so quick, hot and hot ;
Not the worse for the exquisite comment that follows,
Divine maresquino, which—Lord, how one swallows !

Once more, then, we saunter forth after our snack, or Subscribe a few francs for the price of a fiacre,
And drive far away to the old Montagnes Russes,
Where we find a few twirls in the car of much use
To regenerate the hunger and thirst of us sinners,
Who've lapsed into snacks—the perdition of dinners.
And here, DICK—in answer to one of your queries,
About which we, Gourmands, have had much discussion—
I've tried all these mountains, Swiss, French, and Rug-gieri's,

* In the Palais Royal ; successor, I believe, to the Flamand, so long celebrated for the moëlleux of his Gauffres.

And think, for digestion, * there's none like the Russian;
 So equal the motion—so gentle, though fleet—
 It, in short, such a light and salubrious scamper is,
 That take whom you please—take old L* D**
 And stuff him—ay, up to the neck—with stew'd lampreys,†
 So wholesome these Mounts, such a solvent I've found them,
 That, let me but rattle the Monarch well down them,
 The fiend, Indigestion, would fly far away,
 And the regicide lampreys § be foil'd of their prey!

* Doctor Cotterel recommends, for this purpose, the Beaujon, or French Mountains, and calls them “une médecine aérienne, couleur de rose;” but I own I prefer the authority of Mr. Bob, who seems, from the following note found in his own hand-writing, to have studied all these mountains very carefully :

Memoranda.—The Swiss little notice deserves,
 While the fall at Ruggieri's is death to weak nerves;
 And (whate'er Doctor Cotterel may write on the question)
 The turn at the Beaujon's too sharp for digestion.

I doubt whether Mr. Bob is quite correct in accenting the second syllable of Ruggieri.

† A dish so indigestible, that a late novelist, at the end of his book, could imagine no more summary mode of getting rid of all his heroes and heroines than by a hearty supper of stewed lampreys.

§ They killed Henry I. of England—“a food (says Hume,

Such, DICK, are the classical sports that content us,
Till five o'clock brings on that hour so momentous,
That epoch——but woa! my lad—here comes the Schneider,

And, curse him, has made the stays three inches wider—
Too wide by an inch and a half—what a Guy!
But, no matter—'twill all be set right by-and-by—
As we've MASSINOT's* eloquent carte to eat still up,
An inch and a half's but a trifle to fill up.

So—not to lose time, DICK—here goes for the task;
Au revoir, my old boy—of the Gods I but ask,
That my life, like “the Leap of the German,”† may be,
“Du lit à la table, de la table au lit!”

R. F.

gravely) which always agreed better with his palate than his constitution.”

* A famous Restaurateur—now Dupont.

† An old French saying:—“Faire le saut de l'Allemand, du lit à la table, et de la table au lit.”

LETTER IX.

FROM PHIL. FUDGE, ESQ. TO THE LORD VISCOUNT
C—ST—GH.

My Lord, the Instructions, brought to-day,
“ I shall in all my best obey.”
Your Lordship talks and writes so sensibly!
And—whatso’er some wags may say—
Oh! not at all incomprehensibly.

I feel the inquiries in your letter
About my health and French most flattering;
Thank ye, my French, though somewhat better,
Is, on the whole, but weak and smattering :—
Nothing, of course, that can compare
With his who made the Congress stare
(A certain Lord we need not name),
Who, even in French, would have his trope,
And talk of “ bâtir un système
“ Sur l’équilibre de l’Europe! ”
Sweet metaphor!—and then the epistle
Which bid the Saxon King go whistle,

That tender letter to “Mon Prince,”*
Which show’d alike thy French and sense ;—
Oh no, my Lord—there’s none can do
Or say un-English things like you ;
And, if the schemes that fill thy breast
 Could but a vent congenial seek,
And use the tongue that suits them best,
 What charming Turkish would’st thou speak !
But as for me, a Frenchless grub,
 At Congress never born to stammer,
Nor learn, like thee, my Lord, to snub
 Fallen Monarchs, out of CHAMBAUD’S grammar—
Bless you, you do not, cannot know
How far a little French will go ;
For all one’s stock, one need but draw
 On some half dozen words like these—
Comme ça—par-là—là-bas—ah ! ah !
They’ll take you all through France with ease.

* The celebrated letter to Prince Hardenburgh (written, however, I believe, originally in English), in which his Lordship, professing to see “no moral or political objection” to the dismemberment of Saxony, denounced the unfortunate King as “not only the most devoted, but the most favoured of Buonaparte’s vassals.”

Your Lordship's praises of the scraps

I sent you from my Journal lately, (Enveloping a few laced caps

For Lady C.) delight me greatly.

Her flattering speech—"what pretty things

One finds in Mr. FUDGE's pages!"

Is praise which (as some poet sings)

Would pay one for the toils of ages.

Thus flatter'd, I presume to send

A few more extracts by a friend ;

And I should hope they'll be no less

Approved of than my last MS.—

The former ones, I fear, were creased,

As BIDDY round the caps would pin them ;

But these will come to hand, at least

Unrumped, for—there's nothing in them.

Extracts from Mr. Fudge's Journal, addressed to Lord C.

Aug. 10.

WENT to the Mad-house—saw the man *

Who thinks, poor wretch, that, while the Fiend
Of Discord here full riot ran,

He like the rest was guillotined ;—

But that when, under BONEY's reign

(A more discreet, though quite as strong one),
The heads were all restored again,

He in the scramble got a wrong one.

Accordingly, he still cries out

This strange head fits him most unpleasantly ;
And always runs, poor devil, about,

Inquiring for his own incessantly !

While to his case a tear I dropp'd,

And saunter'd home, thought I—ye Gods !

How many heads might thus be swopp'd,

And, after all, not make much odds !

* This extraordinary madman is, I believe, in the Bicêtre. He imagines, exactly as Mr. Fudge states it, that, when the heads of those who had been guillotined were restored, he by mistake got some other person's instead of his own.

For instance, there's V—s—TT—T's head—

(“Tam carum” * it may well be said)

If by some curious chance it came

To settle on BILL SOAMES's † shoulders,

The effect would turn out much the same

On all respectable cash-holders :

Except that while in its new socket,

The head was planning schemes to win

A zigzag-way into one's pocket,

The hands would plunge directly in.

Good Viscount S—DM—H, too, instead

Of his own grave, respected head,

Might wear (for aught I see that bars)

Old Lady WILHELMINA FRUMP'S—

So, while the hand sign'd Circulars,

The head might lisp out “What is trumps?”—

The R—G—T's brains could we transfer

To some robust man-milliner,

The shop, the shears, the lace, and ribbon

Would go, I doubt not, quite as glib on ;

* Tam cari capitis.—HORAT.

† A celebrated pickpocket.

And, vice versâ, take the pains
 To give the P—CE the shopman's brains,
 One only change from thence would flow—
Ribbons would not be wasted so!

'Twas thus I ponder'd on, my Lord;
 And, even at night, when laid in bed,
 I found myself, before I snored,
 Thus chopping, swopping head for head.
 At length I thought, fantastic elf!
 How such a change would suit myself.
 'Twixt sleep and waking, one by one,
 With various pericraniums saddled,
 At last I tried your Lordship's on,
 And then I grew completely addled—
 Forgot all other heads, od rot 'em!
 And slept, and dreamt that I was—BOTTOM.

Aug. 21.

Walk'd out with daughter BID—was shown
 The House of Commons, and the Throne,
 Whose velvet cushion's just the same *
 NOLN sat on—what a shame!

* The only change, if I recollect right, is the substitution

Oh, can we wonder, best of speakers!

When Ls seated thus we see,
That France's "fundamental features"
Are much the same they used to be?
However,—God preserve the Throne,
And cushion too—and keep them free
From accidents, which have been known
To happen even to Royalty! *

Aug. 28.

Read, at a stall (for oft one pops
On something at these stalls and shops,
That does to quote, and gives one's Book
A classical and knowing look.—
Indeed I've found, in Latin, lately,
A course of stalls improves me greatly).
'Twas thus I read, that, in the East,
A monarch's fat's a serious matter;

of lilies for bees. This war upon the bees is, of course, universal; "exitium misère apibus," like the angry nymphs in Virgil:—but may not new swarms arise out of the victims of Legitimacy yet?

* I am afraid that Mr. Fudge alludes here to a very awkward accident, which is well known to have happened to poor L—s le D—s—é, some years since, at one of the R—g—t's Fêtes. He was sitting next our gracious Queen at the time.

And once in every year, at least,
He's weigh'd—to see if he gets fatter: *
Then, if a pound or two he be Increased, there's quite a jubilee! †

Suppose, my Lord,—and far from me
To treat such things with levity—
But just suppose the R—G—T's weight
Were made thus an affair of state;
And, every sessions, at the close,—
'Stead of a speech, which, all can see, is Heavy and dull enough, God knows—
We were to try how heavy he is.
Much would it glad all hearts to hear
That, while the Nation's Revenue

* “The third day of the feast the King causeth himself to be weighed with great care.”—F. BERNIER'S Voyage to Surat, etc.

† “I remember,” says Bernier, “that all the Omrahs expressed great joy that the King weighed two pounds more now than the year preceding.”—Another author tells us that “Fatness, as well as a very large head, is considered, throughout India, as one of the most precious gifts of Heaven. An enormous skull is absolutely revered, and the happy owner is looked up to as a superior being. To a Prince a joulter head is invaluable.”—Oriental Field Sports.

Loses so many pounds a year,

The P——E, God bless him! gains a few.

With bales of muslins, chintzes, spices,

I see the Easterns weigh their Kings;—

But, for the R—G—T, my advice is,

We should throw in much heavier things :

For instance ———'s quarto volumes,

Which, though not spices, serve to wrap them ;

Dominie ST—DD—T's Daily columns,

“Prodigious!”—in, of course, we'd clap them—

Letters, that C—RTW——T's pen indites,

In which, with logical confusion,

The Major like a Minor writes,

And never comes to a Conclusion :—

Lord S—M—RS' pamphlet—or his head—

(Ah, that were worth its weight in lead!)

Along with which we in may whip, sly,

The Speeches of Sir JOHN C—X H—PP—SLY ;

That Baronet of many words,

Who loves so, in the House of Lords,

To whisper Bishops—and so nigh

Unto their wigs in whispering goes,

That you may always know him by
 A patch of powder on his nose!—
 If this won't do, we in must cram
 The "Reasons" of Lord B—CK—GH—M;
 (A Book his Lordship means to write, Entitled "Reasons for my Ratting:")
 Or, should these prove too small and light,
 His — —'s a host—we'll bundle that in!
 And, still should all these masses fail
 To stir the R—G—T's ponderous scale,
 Why then, my Lord, in heaven's name,
 Pitch in, without reserve or stint,
 The whole of R—GL—Y's beauteous Dame—
 If that won't raise him, devil's in't!

Aug. 31.

Consulted MURPHY'S TACITUS

About those famous spies at Rome,*
 Whom certain Whigs—to make a fuss—

* The name of the first worthy who set up the trade of informer at Rome (to whom our Olivers and Castleases ought to erect a statue) was Romanus Hispo;—"qui formam vitæ iniit, quam postea celebrem miseriæ temporum et audaciæ hominum fecerunt."—TACIT. Annal. 1, 74.

Describe as much resembling us,*

Informing gentlemen, at home.

But, bless the fools, they can't be serious,

To say Lord S—DM—TH's like TIBERIUS!

What! he, the Peer, that injures no man,

Like that severe, blood-thirsty Roman!—

'Tis true, the Tyrant lent an ear to

All sorts of spies—so doth the Peer, too.

'Tis true, my Lord's Elect tell fibs,

And deal in perjury—ditto TIB's.

'Tis true, the Tyrant screen'd and hid

His rogues from justice†—ditto SID.

'Tis true, the Peer is grave and glib

At moral speeches—ditto TIB. §

* They certainly possessed the same art of instigating their victims, which the Report of the Secret Committee attributes to Lord Sidmouth's agents :—" socius (says Tacitus of one of them) libidinum et necessitatum, quo pluribus indiciis inligaret."

† " Neque tamen id Sereno noxæ fuit, quem odium publicum tutiorem faciebat. Nam ut quis districtior accusator velut sacrosanctus erat." Annal. lib. 4, 36.—Or, as it is translated by Mr. Fudge's friend, Murphy :—" This daring accuser had the curses of the people, and the protection of the Emperor. Informers, in proportion as they rose in guilt, became sacred characters."

§ Murphy even confers upon one of his speeches the epithet "constitutional." Mr. Fudge might have added to his pa-

'Tis true, the feats the Tyrant did
Were in his dotage—ditto SID.

So far, I own, the parallel
'Twixt TIB and SID goes vastly well;
But there are points in TIB that strike
My humble mind as much more like
Yourself, my dearest Lord, or him
Of the India Board—that soul of whim!
Like him, TIBERIUS loved his joke,*

On matters, too, where few can bear one;
E. g. a man, cut up, or broke

Upon the wheel—a devilish fair one!
Your common fractures, wounds, and fits,
Are nothing to such wholesale wits;
But, let the sufferer gasp for life,

The joke is then worth any money;
And, if he writhe beneath a knife,—

Oh dear, that's something quite too funny.
In this respect, my Lord, you see
The Roman wag and ours agree:

parallel, that Tiberius was a good private character:—"egregium vitâ famâque quoad privatus."

* "Ludibria seriis permiscere solitus."

Now, as to your resemblance—mum—

This parallel we need not follow ; *

Though 'tis, in Ireland, said by some

Your Lordship beats TIBERIUS hollow ;

Whips, chains,—but these are things too serious

For me to mention or discuss ;

Whene'er your Lordship acts TIBERIUS,

PHIL. FUDGE's part is Tacitus !

Sept. 2.

Was thinking, had Lord S—DM—TH got

Up any decent kind of plot

Against the winter-time—if not,

Alas, alas, our ruin's fated ;

All done up, and spiflicated !

Ministers and all their vassals,

Down from C—TL—GH to CASTLES,—

Unless we can kick up a riot,

Ne'er can hope for peace or quiet !

What's to be done ?—Spa-Fields was clever ;

But even that brought gibes and mockings

* There is one point of resemblance between Tiberius and Lord C. which Mr. Fudge might have mentioned—" suspensa semper et obscura verba."

Upon our heads—so, mem.—must never
Keep ammunition in old stockings ;
For fear some wag should in his curst head
Take it to say our force was worsted.
Mem. too—when Sid. an army raises
It must not be “ incog. ” like Bayes’s :
Nor must the General be a hobbling
Professor of the art of Cobbling ;
Lest men, who perpetrate such puns,
Should say, with Jacobinic grin,
He felt, from soleing Wellingtons,*
A Wellington’s great soul within !
Nor must an old Apothecary
Go take the Tower, for lack of pence,
With (what these wags would call, so merry)
Physical force and phial-ence !
No—no—our Plot, my Lord, must be
Next time contrived more skilfully.
John Bull, I grieve to say, is growing
So troublesomely sharp and knowing,
So wise—in short, so Jacobin—
’Tis monstrous hard to take him in.

* Short boots, so called.

Sept. 6.

Heard of the fate of our Ambassador
In China, and was sorely nettled;
But think, my Lord, we should not pass it o'er
Till all this matter's fairly settled;
And here's the mode occurs to me :
As none of our Nobility
(Though for their own most gracious King
They would kiss hands, or—any thing)
Can be persuaded to go through
This farce-like trick of the Ko-tou;
And as these Mandarins won't bend,
Without some mumming exhibition,
Suppose, my Lord, you were to send
GRIMALDI to them on a mission :
As Legate, JOE could play his part,
And if, in diplomatic art,
The “volto sciolto” * 's meritorious,
Let JOE but grin, he has it, glorious!

A title for him's easily made ;
And, by the bye, one Christmas time,

* The open countenance, recommended by Lord Chesterfield.

If I remember right, he play'd

Lord MORLEY in some pantomime;—*

As Earl of M—RL—Y, then, gazette him,

If t'other Earl of M—RL—Y'll let him.

(And why should not the world be blest

With two such stars, for East and West?)

Then, when before the Yellow Screen

He's brought—and, sure, the very essence
Of etiquette would be that scene

Of JOE in the Celestial Presence!—

He thus should say:—"Duke Ho and Soo,

"I'll play what tricks you please for you,

"If you'll, in turn, but do for me

"A few small tricks you now shall see.

"If I consult your Emperor's liking,

"At least you'll do the same for my King."

He then should give them nine such grins .

As would astound even Mandarins;

* Mr. Fudge is a little mistaken here. It was not Grimaldi, but some very inferior performer, who played this part of "Lord Morley" in the pantomime,—so much to the horror of the distinguished Earl of that name. The expostulatory letters of the Noble Earl to Mr. H-rr-s, upon this vulgar profanation of his spic-and-span-new title, will, I trust, some time or other, be given to the world.

And throw such somersets before
 The picture of King GEORGE (God bless him!)
 As, should Duke Ho but try them o'er,
 Would, by CONFUCIUS, much distress him!

I start this merely as a hint,
 But thin you'll find some wisdom in't;
 And, should you follow up the job,
 My son, my Lord (you know poor BOB),
 Would in the suit be glad to go
 And help his Excellency, JOE ;—
 At least, like noble AMH—RST's son,
 The lad will do to practise on.*

LETTER X.

FROM MISS BIDDY FUDGE TO MISS DOROTHY ——. .

WELL, it isn't the King, after all, my dear creature!
 But don't you go laugh, now—there's nothing to quiz in't—

* See Mr. Ellis's account of the Embassy.

For grandeur of air and for grimness of feature,
He might be a King, DOLL! though, hang him, he isn't.

At first, I felt hurt, for I wish'd it, I own,
If for no other cause but to vex Miss MALONE,— (The great heiress, you know, of Shandangan, who's here,
Showing off with such airs and a real Cashmere,*
While mine's but a paltry old rabbit-skin, dear!)
But says Pa, after deeply considering the thing,
“ I am just as well pleased it should not be the King ;
“ As I think for my BIDDY, so gentille and jolie, “ Whose charms may their price in an honest way fetch,

“ That a Brandenburg”—(what is a Brandenburg, DOLLY?)—

“ Would be, after all, no such very great catch.
“ If the R—G—T, indeed—” added he, looking sly—
(You remember that comical squint of his eye)

* See Lady Morgan's “France” for the anecdote, told her by Madame de Genlis, of the young gentleman whose love was cured by finding that his mistress wore a shawl “peau de lapin.”

But I stopp'd him with "La, Pa, how can you say so,
"When the R—G—T loves none but old women, you know!"

Which is fact, my dear DOLLY—we, girls of eighteen,
And so slim—Lord, he'd think us not fit to be seen;
And would like us much better as old—ay, as old
As that Countess of DESMOND, of whom I've been told
That she lived to much more than a hundred and ten,
And was kill'd by a fall from a cherry-tree then!
What a frisky old girl! but—to come to my lover,
Who, though not a King, is a hero I'll swear,—
You shall hear all that's happen'd, just briefly run over,
Since that happy night, when we whisk'd through the air!

Let me see—'twas on Saturday—yes, DOLLY, yes—
From that evening I date the first dawn of my bliss;
When we both rattled off in that dear little carriage,
Whose journey, BOB says, is so like Love and Marriage,
"Beginning gay, desperate, dashing, down-hilly;
"And ending as dull as a six-inside Dilly!"*
Well, scarcely a wink did I sleep the night through,
And, next day, having scribbled my letter to you,

* The cars, on the return, are dragged up slowly by a chain.

With a heart full of hope this sweet fellow to meet,
Set out with Papa, to see L* D**
Make his bow to some half-dozen women and boys,
Who get up a small concert of shrill *Vive le *****—
And how vastly genteeler, my dear, even this is,
Than vulgar Pall-Mall's oratorio of hisses!
The gardens seem'd full—so, of course, we walk'd o'er 'em,
'Mong orange-trees, clipp'd into town-bred decorum,
And Daphnes, and vases, and many a statue
There staring, with not even a stitch on them, at you!
The ponds, too, we view'd—stood awhile on the brink
To contemplate the play of those pretty gold fishes—“Live bullion,” says merciless BOB, “which I think,
Would, if coin'd, with a little mint sauce, be delicious!

But what, DOLLY, what is the gay orange-grove,
Or gold fishes, to her that's in search of her love?
In vain did I wildly explore every chair
Where a thing like a man was—no lover sat there!
In vain my fond eyes did I eagerly cast
At the whiskers, mustachios, and wigs that went past,
To obtain, if I could, but a glance at that curl,
But a glimpse of those whiskers, as sacred, my girl,

As the lock that, Pa says,* is to Mussulmen given,
 For the angel to hold by that "lugs them to heaven!"
 Alas, there went by me full many a quiz,
 And mustachios in plenty; but nothing like his!
 Disappointed, I found myself sighing out "well-a-day,"
 Thought of the words of T—M M—RE's Irish Melody,
 Something about the "green spot of delight," †

(Which you know, Captain MACINTOSH sung to us one day):

Ah, DOLLY! my "spot" was that Saturday night,
 And its verdure, how fleeting, had wither'd by Sunday!

We dined at a tavern—La, what do I say?

If BOB was to know!—a Restaurateur's, dear;

* For this scrap of knowledge "Pa" was, I suspect, indebted to a note upon Volney's Ruins; a book which usually forms part of a Jacobin's library, and with which Mr. Fudge must have been well acquainted at the time when he wrote his "Down with Kings," etc. The note in Volney is as follows:—"It is by this tuft of hair (on the crown of the head), worn by the majority of Mussulmans, that the Angel of the Tomb is to take the elect and carry them to Paradise."

† The young lady, whose memory is not very correct, must allude, I think, to the following lines:

Oh! that fairy form is ne'er forgot,
 Which First Love traced;
 Still it lingering haunts the greenest spot
 On Memory's waste!

Where your properest ladies go dine every day,
And drink Burgundy out of large tumblers, like beer.
Fine BOB (for he's really grown super-fine)
Condescended, for once, to make one of the party ;
Of course, though but three, we had dinner for nine,
And, in spite of my grief, love, I own I ate hearty.
Indeed, DOLL, I know not how 'tis, but in grief,
I have always found eating a wond'rous relief ;
And BOB, who's in love, said he felt the same quite— “ My sighs,” said he, “ ceased with the first glass I drank you ; ”
“ The lamb made me tranquil, the puffs made me light,
“ And now that all's o'er—why, I'm—pretty well,
thank you ! ”

To my great annoyance, we sat rather late ;
For BOBBY and Pa had a furious debate
About singing and cookery,—BOBBY, of course,
Standing up for the latter Fine Art in full force ;
And Pa saying, “ God only knows which is worst,
“ The French singers or cooks, but I wish us well over it—
“ What with old LAÏS and VÉRY, I'm curst
“ If my head or my stomach will ever recover it ! ”

'Twas dark when we got to the Boulevards to stroll,
And in vain did I look 'mong the street Macaronis,
When sudden it struck me—last hope of my soul—
That some angel might take the dear man to TORTONI'S! *

We enter'd—and, scarcely had BOB, with an air,
For a grappe à la jardinière call'd to the waiters,
When, oh DOLL! I saw him—my hero was there (For I knew his white small-clothes and brown leather gaiters),

A group of fair statues from Greece smiling o'er him,†
And lots of red currant-juice sparkling before him!
Oh DOLLY, these heroes—what creatures they are!

In the boudoir the same as in fields full of slaughter;
As cool in the Beaujon's precipitous car

As when safe at TORTONI'S, o'er iced currant-water!
He join'd us—imagine, dear creature, my extacy—
Join'd by the man I'd have broken ten necks to see!
BOB wish'd to treat him with Punch à la glace,
But the sweet fellow swore that my beauté, my grace,

* A fashionable café glacier on the Italian Boulevards.

† “You eat your ice at Tortoni's,” says Mr. Scott, “under a Grecian group.”

And my je-ne-sais-quoi (then his whiskers he twirl'd)
Were, to him, “on de top of all Ponch in de vorld.”—
How pretty!—though oft (as, of course, it must be)
Both his French and his English are Greek, DOLL, to me.
But, in short, I felt happy as ever fond heart did;
And happier still, when 'twas fix'd, ere we parted,
That, if the next day should be pastoral weather,
We all would set off in French buggies, together,
To see Montmorency—that place which, you know,
Is so famous for cherries and JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU.
His card then he gave us—the name, rather creased—
But 'twas CALICOT—something—a Colonel, at least!
After which—sure there never was hero so civil—he Saw us safe home to our door in Rue Rivoli,
Where his last words, as, at parting, he threw
A soft look o'er his shoulders, were—“how do you do!” *

But, lord,—there's Papa for the post—I'm so vex'd—
Montmorency must now, love, be kept for my next.
That dear Sunday night!—I was charmingly dress'd,
And—so providential!—was looking my best;

* Not an unusual mistake with foreigners.

Such a sweet muslin gown, with a flounce—and my frills,

You've no notion how rich—(though Pa has by the bills)—
And you'd smile had you seen, when we sat rather near,
Colonel CALICOT eyeing the cambric, my dear.

Then the flowers in my bonnet—but, la, it's in vain—
So, good bye, my sweet DOLL—I shall soon write again.

B. F.

Nota bene—our love to all neighbours about—
Your Papa in particular—how is his gout?

P. S.—I've just open'd my letter to say,
In your next you must tell me (now do, DOLLY, pray,
For I hate to ask BOB, he's so ready to quiz)
What sort of a thing, dear, a Brandenburgh is.

LETTER XI.

FROM PHELM CONNOR TO ———.

YES—'twas a cause, as noble and as great
As ever hero died to vindicate—

A Nation's right to speak a Nation's voice,
 And own no power but of the Nation's choice !
 Such was the grand, the glorious cause that now
 Hung trembling on N*P*LN's single brow ;
 Such the sublime abitrement, that pour'd,
 In patriot eyes, a light around his sword,
 A glory then, which never, since the day
 Of his young victories, had illumed its way !

Oh 'twas not then the time for tame debates,
 Ye men of Gaul, when chains were at your gates ;
 When he, who fled before your Chieftain's eye,
 As geese from eagles on Mount Taurus fly, *
 Denounced against the land, that spurn'd his chain,
 Myriads of swords to bind it fast again—
 Myriads of fierce invading swords, to track
 Through your best blood his path of vengeance back ;
 When Europe's Kings, that never yet combined
 But (like those upper Stars, that, when conjoin'd, Shed war and pestilence) to scourge mankind,

* See Ælian, lib. 5. cap. 29—who tells us that these geese, from a consciousness of their own loquacity, always cross Mount Taurus with stones in their bills, to prevent any unlucky cackle from betraying them to the eagles—διαπειροῦνται σιωπῶντες.

Gather'd around, with hosts from every shore,
Hating N*P*LN much, but Freedom more,
And, in that coming strife, appall'd to see
The world yet left one chance for liberty!—
No, 'twas not then the time to weave a net
Of bondage round your Chief; to curb and fret
Your veteran war-horse, pawing for the fight,
When every hope was in his speed and might—
To waste the hour of action in dispute,
And coolly plan how Freedom's boughs should shoot
When your Invader's axe was at the root!
No, sacred Liberty! that God, who throws
Thy light around, like his own sunshine, knows
How well I love thee, and how deeply hate
All tyrants, upstart and legitimate—
Yet, in that hour, were Fce my native land,
I would have follow'd, with quick heart and hand,
N*P*LN, NERO—ay, no matter whom—
To snatch my country from that damning doom,
That deadliest curse that on the conquer'd waits—
A Conqueror's satrap, throned within her gates!

True, he was false—despotic—all you please—
Had trampled down man's holiest liberties—

Had, by a genius form'd for nobler things
 Than lie within the grasp of vulgar Kings,
 But raised the hopes of men—as eaglets fly
 With tortoises aloft into the sky—
 To dash them down again more shatteringly!
 * All this I own—but still * * * *

* * * * * * * *

LETTER XII.

FROM MISS BIDDY FUDGE TO MISS DOROTHY —————.

At last, DOLLY,—thanks to a potent emetic
 Which BOBBY and Pa, with grimace sympathetic,
 Have swallow'd this morning, to balance the bliss
 Of an eel matelote and a bisque d'écrevisses—
 I've a morning at home to myself, and sit down
 To describe you our heavenly trip out of town.

* Somebody (Fontenelle, I believe) has said, that if he had his hand full of truths, he would open but one finger at a time; and I find it necessary to use the same sort of reserve with respect to Mr. Phelim Connor's very plain-spoken letters. The remainder of this Epistle is so full of unsafe matter-of-fact, that it must, for the present at least, be withheld from the public.

How agog you must be for this letter, my dear !
Lady JANE, in the novel, less languish'd to hear
If that elegant cornet she met at Lord NEVILLE'S
Was actually dying with love or—blue devils.
But Love, DOLLY, Love is the theme I pursue ;
With Blue Devils, thank heaven, I've nothing to do—
Except, indeed, dear Colonel CALICOT spies
Any imps of that colour in certain blue eyes,
Which he stares at till I, DOLL, at his do the same ;
Then he simpers—I blush—and would often exclaim,
If I knew but the French for it, “ Lord, Sir, for shame ! ”

Well, the morning was lovely—the trees in full dress
For the happy occasion—the sunshine express—
Had we order'd it, dear, of the best poet going,
It scarce could be furnish'd more golden and glowing.
Though late when we started, the scent of the air
Was like GATTIE'S rose-water—and, bright, here and there,

On the grass an odd dew-drop was glittering yet,
Like my aunt's diamond pin on her green tabbiset !
And the birds seem'd to warble as blest on the boughs,
As if each a plumed Calicot had for her spouse ;
And the grapes were all blushing and kissing in rows,

And—in short, need I tell you, wherever one goes
 With the creature one loves, 'tis all couleur de rose ;
 And, ah, I shall ne'er, lived I ever so long, see
 A day such as that at divine Montmorency !

There was but one drawback—at first when we started,
 The Colonel and I were inhumanly parted ;
 How cruel—young hearts of such moments to rob !
 He went in Pa's buggy, and I went with BOB ;
 And, I own, I felt spitefully happy to know
 That Papa and his comrade agreed but so-so.
 For the Colonel, it seems, is a stickler of BONEY'S—Served with him, of course—nay, I'm sure they were cronies—

So martial his features ! dear DOLL, you can trace
 Ulm, Austerlitz, Lodi, as plain in his face
 As you do on that pillar of glory and brass, *
 Which the poor DUC DE B—RI must hate so to pass !
 It appears, too, he made—as most foreigners do—
 About English affairs an odd blunder or two.
 For example—misled by the names, I dare say—
 He confounded JACK CASTLES with Lord C———GH ;
 And—such a mistake as no mortal hit ever on—
 Fancied the present Lord C—MD—N the clever one !

* The column in the Place Vendôme.

But politics ne'er were the sweet fellow's trade ;
 'Twas for war and the ladies my Colonel was made.
 And, oh, had you heard, as together we walk'd
 Through that beautiful forest, how sweetly he talk'd ;
 And how perfectly well he appear'd, DOLL, to know
 All the life and adventures of JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU !—
 “ 'Twas there,” said he—not that his words I can state—

'Twas a gibberish that Cupid alone could translate ;—
 But “ there,” said he (pointing where, small and remote,
 The dear Hermitage rose), “ there his JULIE he wrote,—
 “ Upon paper gilt-edged, * without blot or erasure ;
 “ Then sanded it over with silver and azure,
 “ And—oh, what will genius and fancy not do ?—
 “ Tied the leaves up together with nompaille blue !”
 What a trait of Rousseau ! what a crowd of emotions
 From sand and blue ribbons are conjured up here !
 Alas, that a man of such exquisite † notions
 Should send his poor brats to the Foundling, my dear !

* “ Employant pour cela le plus beau papier doré, séchant l'écriture avec de la poudre d'azur et d'argent, et cousant mes cahiers avec de la nompaille bleue.”—Les Confessions, Part 2, liv. 9.

† This word, “exquisite,” is evidently a favourite of Miss Fudge's ; and I understand she was not a little angry when

“ ’Twas here, too, perhaps,” Colonel CALICOT said—
As down the small garden he pensively led—

(Though once I could see his sublime forehead wrinkle
With rage not to find there the loved periwinkle) *

“ ’Twas here he received from the fair D’EPINAY,

“ (Who call’d him so sweetly her Bear, † every day),

“ That dear flannel petticoat, pull’d off to form

“ A waistcoat to keep the enthusiast warm !” §

Such, DOLL, were the sweet recollections we ponder’d,
As, full of romance, through that valley we wander’d,
The flannel (one’s train of ideas, how odd it is !)
Led us to talk about other commodities, her brother Bob committed a pun on the last two syllables of it in the following couplet :—

“ I’d fain praise your poem—but tell me, how is it,
When I cry out “Exquisite,” Echo cries “quiz it?”

* The flower which Rousseau brought into such fashion among the Parisians, by exclaiming one day, “Ah, voilà de la pervenche !”

† “Mon ours, voilà votre asyle——et vous, mon ours, ne viendrez-vous pas aussi ?”——etc. etc.

§ “Un jour, qu’il gelait très-fort, en ouvrant un paquet qu’elle m’envoyait, je trouvai un petit jupon de flanelle d’Angleterre, qu’elle me marquait avoir porté, et dont elle voulait que je me fisse faire un gilet. Ce soin, plus qu’amical, me parut si tendre, comme si elle se fût dépouillé pour me vêtir, que, dans mon émotion, je baisai vingt fois, en pleurant, le billet et le jupon.”

Cambric, and silk, and I ne'er shall forget,
 For the sun was then hastening in pomp to its set,
 And full on the Colonel's dark whiskers shone down,
 When he ask'd me, with eagerness,—who made my gown?

The question confused me—for, DOLL, you must know,
 And I ought to have told my best friend long ago,
 That, by Pa's strict command, I no longer employ *
 That enchanting couturière, Madame LE ROI,
 But am forced, dear, to have VICTORINE, who—deuce take her!—

It seems is, at present, the King's mantua-maker—
 I mean of his party—and, though much the smartest,
 LE ROI is condemn'd as a rank B*n*pa*t*st. †

Think, DOLL, how confounded I look'd—so well knowing
 The Colonel's opinions—my cheeks were quite glowing;
 I stammer'd out something—nay, even half named
 The legitimate sempstress, when, loud, he exclaim'd,

* Miss Biddy's notions of French pronunciation may be perceived in the rhymes which she always selects for "Le Roi."

† LE ROI, who was the Couturière of the Empress Maria Louisa, is at present, of course, out of fashion, and is succeeded in her station by the Royalist mantua-maker, VICTORINE.

“ Yes, yes, by the stitching ’tis plain to be seen

“ It was made by that Brb*n*te b——h, VICTORINE!”

What a word for a hero ! but heroes will err,

And I thought, dear, I’d tell you things just as they were.

Besides, though the word on good manners intrench,

I assure you ’tis not half so shocking in French.

But this cloud, though embarrassing, soon pass’d away,

And the bliss altogether, the dreams of that day,

The thoughts that arise when such dear fellows woo

us,—

The nothings that then, love, are every thing to us—

That quick correspondence of glances and sighs,

And what BOB calls the “ Twopenny-Post of the Eyes”—

Ah DOLL ! though I know you’ve a heart, ’tis in vain

To a heart so unpractised these things to explain.

They can only be felt in their fullness divine,

By her who has wander’d, at evening’s decline,

Through a valley like that, with a Colonel like mine !

But here I must finish—for BOB, my dear DOLLY,

Whom physic, I find, always makes melancholy,

Is seized with a fancy for church-yard reflections ;

And full of all yesterday’s rich recollections,

Is just setting off for Montmartre—"for there is,"
 Said he, looking solemn, "the tomb of the VÉRYS! *"
 "Long, long have I wish'd, as a votary true,
 "O'er the grave of such talents to utter my moans;
 "And to-day—as my stomach is not in good cue
 "For the flesh of the VÉRYS—I'll visit their bones!"

He insists upon my going with him—how teasing!

This letter, however, dear DOLLY, shall lie
 Unseal'd in my drawer, that, if any thing pleasing
 Occurs while I'm out, I may tell you—Good bye.

B. F.

Four o'Clock.

Oh DOLLY, dear DOLLY, I'm ruin'd for ever—
 I ne'er shall be happy again, DOLLY, never!
 To think of the wretch—what a victim was I!
 'Tis too much to endure—I shall die, I shall die—
 My brain's in a fever—my pulses beat quick—
 I shall die, or, at least, be exceedingly sick!

* It is the brother of the present excellent Restaurateur who lies entombed so magnificently in the Cimetière Montmartre. The inscription on the column at the head of the tomb concludes with the following words—"Toute sa vie fut consacrée aux arts utiles."

Oh what do you think ? after all my romancing,
My visions of glory, my sighing, my glancing,
This Colonel—I scarce can commit it to paper—
This Colonel's no more than a vile linen-draper !!
'Tis true as I live—I had coax'd brother BOB so (You'll hardly make out what I'm writing, I sob so)
For some little gift on my birth-day—September
The thirtieth, dear, I'm eighteen, you remember—
That BOB to a shop kindly order'd the coach

(Ah, little I thought who the shopman would prove)
To bespeak me a few of those mouchoirs de poche,

Which, in happier hours, I have sigh'd for, my love,—
(The most beautiful things—two Napoleons the price—
And one's name in the corner embroider'd so nice !)
Well, with heart full of pleasure, I enter'd the shop,
But—ye Gods, what a phantom !—I thought I should drop—

There he stood, my dear DOLLY—no room for a doubt—

There, behind the vile counter, these eyes saw him stand,

With a piece of French cambric before him roll'd out,

And that horrid yard-measure upraised in his hand !

Oh—Papa, all along, knew the secret, 'tis clear—

'Twas a shopman he meant by a “Brandenburgh,” dear !

The man, whom I fondly had fancied a King,
And, when that too delightful illusion was past,
As a hero had worshipp'd—vile treacherous thing—
To turn out but a low linen-draper at last!
My head swam around—the wretch smiled, I believe,
But his smiling, alas! could no longer deceive—
I fell back on BOB—my whole heart seem'd to wither—

And, pale as a ghost, I was carried back hither!
I only remember that BOB, as I caught him,
With cruel facetiousness said—“Curse the Kiddy!
“A staunch Revolutionist always I've thought him,
“But now I find out he's a Counter one, BIDDY!”

Only think, my dear creature, if this should be known
To that saucy, satirical thing, Miss MALONE!
What a story 'twill be at Shandangan for ever!
What laughs and what quizzing she'll have with the men!

It will spread through the country—and never, oh never
Can BIDDY be seen at Kilrandy again!
Farewell—I shall do something desperate, I fear—
And, ah! if my fate ever reaches your ear,

One tear of compassion my DOLL will not grudge
To her poor—broken-hearted—young friend,
—BIDDY FUDGE.

Nota bene.—I'm sure you will hear, with delight,
That we're going, all three, to see BRUNET to-night.
A laugh will revive me—and kind Mr. Cox
(Do you know him?) has got us the Governor's box!

So FERDINAND embroiders gaily.

It would be an edifying thing to write a history of the private amusements of sovereigns, tracing them down from the fly-sticking of Domitian, the mole-catching of Artabanus, the hog-mimicking of Parmenides, the horse-currying of Aretas, to the petticoat-embroidering of Ferdinand, and the patience-playing of the P——e R——t!

Your curst tea and toast.

Is Mr. Bob aware that his contempt for tea renders him liable to a charge of atheism? Such, at least, is the opinion cited in Christian. Falster. Amœnitat. Philolog.—"Atheum interpretabatur hominem ad herbâ The aversum." He would not, I think, have been so irreverent to this beverage of scholars, if he had read Peter Petit's Poem in praise of Tea, addressed to the learned Huet—or the Epigraphe which Pechlinus wrote for an altar he meant to dedicate to this herb—or the Anacreontics of Peter Francius, in which he calls Tea

Θεαν, Τενν, Τεαίναν.

The following passage from one of these Anacreontics will, I have no doubt, be gratifying to all true Theists.

 Διδοι το νεκταρ Ηβη.

Which may be thus translated:—

Yes, let Hebe, ever young,
 High in heaven her nectar hold,
 And to Jove's immortal throng
 Pour the tide in cups of gold.—
 I'll not envy heaven's princes,
 While, with snowy hands, for me,
 KATE the china tea-cup rinses,
 And pours out her best Bohea!

Here break we off, at this unhallow'd name.

The late lord C. of Ireland had a curious theory about names;—he held that every man with three names was a jacobin. His instances in Ireland were numerous:—viz. Archibald Hamilton Rowan, Theobald Wolfe Tone, James Napper Tandy, John Philpot Curran, etc. etc. and, in England, he produced as examples Charles James Fox, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, John Horne Tooke, Francis Burdett Jones, etc. etc.

“The Old Testament,” says the theatrical Critic in the Gazette de France, “is a mine of gold for the managers of our small play-houses. A multitude crowd round the Théâtre de la Gaîté every evening to see the Passage of the Red Sea.”

In the play-bill of one of these sacred melo-drames at Vienna, we find “The Voice of G—d, by Mr. Schwartz.”

No one can suspect Boileau of a sneer at his royal master, but the following lines, intended for praise, look very like one. Describing the celebrated passage of the Rhine, during which Louis remained on the safe side of the river, he says

Se plaint de sa grandeur, qui l'attache au rivage!

How amply these two propensities of the Noble Lord would have been gratified among that ancient people of Etruria, who, as Aristotle tells us, used to whip their slaves once a year to the sound of flutes!

Lampreys, indeed, seem to have been always a favourite dish with Kings—whether from some congeniality between them and that fish, I know not; but Dio Cassius tells us that Pollio fattened his lampreys with human blood. St. Louis of France was particularly fond of them.—See the anecdote of Thomas Aquinas eating up his majesty's lamprey, in a note upon Rabelais, liv. 3. chap. 2.

Till five o'clock brings on that hour so momentous.

Had Mr. Bob's Dinner Epistle been inserted, I was prepared with an abundance of learned matter to illustrate it, for which, as, indeed, for all my "scientia popinæ,"* I am indebted to a friend in the Dublin University,—whose reading formerly lay in the magic line; but, in consequence of the Provost's enlightened alarm at such studies, he has taken to the authors "de re cibariâ" instead; and has left Bodin, Remigius, Agrippa, and his little dog Filiolus, for Apicius, Nonius, and that most learned and savoury jesuit, Bulengerus.

“Would, if coin’d with a little mint sauce, be delicious!”

Mr. Bob need not be ashamed of his cookery jokes, when he is kept in countenance by such men as Cicero, St. Augustine, and that jovial bishop, Venantius Fortunatus. The pun of the great orator upon the “jus Verrinum,” which he calls bad hog-broth, from a play upon both the words, is well known; and the Saint’s puns upon the conversion of Lot’s wife into salt are equally ingenious:—“In salem conversa hominibus fidelibus quoddam præstitit condimentum, quo sapiant aliquid, unde illud caveatur exemplum.”—De Civitat. Dei, lib. 16. cap. 30.—The jokes of the pious favourite of Queen Radagunda, the convivial Bishop Venantius, may be found among his poems, in some lines against a cook who had robbed him. The following is similar to Cicero’s pun.

Plus juscella Coci quam mea jura valer.

See his poems, Corpus Pætar. Latin. Tom. 2. p. 1732.—Of the same kind was Montmaur’s joke, when a dish was spilt over him—“summum jus, summa injuria;” and the same celebrated parasite, in ordering a sole to be placed before him, said

Eligi cui dicas, tu mihi sola places.

The reader may likewise see, among a good deal of kitchen erudition, the learned Lipsius’s jokes on cutting up a capon, in his Saturnal. Sermon. lib. 2. cap. 2.

Cookery has been dignified by the researches of a Bacon (see his Natural History, Receipts, etc.); and takes its station as one of the Fine Arts in the following passage of Mr. Dugald Stewart.—"Agreeably to this view of the subject, sweet may be said to be intrinsically pleasing, and bitter to be relatively pleasing; which both are, in many cases, equally essential to those effects, which, in the art of cookery, correspond to that composite beauty, which it is the object of the painter and of the poet to create."—Philosophical Essays.

PREFACE.

THE Public have already been informed, through the medium of the daily prints, that, among the distinguished visitors to the Congress lately held at Aix-la-Chapelle, were Mr. BOB GREGSON, Mr. GEORGE COOPER, and a few more illustrious brethren of THE FANCY. It had been resolved at a Grand Meeting of the Pugilistic Fraternity, that, as all the milling Powers of Europe were about to assemble, personally or by deputy, at Aix-la-Chapelle, it was but right that THE FANCY should have its representatives there as well as the rest, and these gentlemen were accordingly selected for that high and honorable office. A description of this Meeting, of the speeches spoken, the resolutions, etc. etc. has been given in a letter written by one of the most eminent of the profession, which will be found in the Appendix, No. I.

Mr. CRIB's Memorial, which now for the first time meets the public eye, was drawn up for the purpose of being transmitted by these gentlemen to Congress ; and, as it could not possibly be in better hands for the enforcement of every point connected with the subject, there is every reason to hope that it has made a suitable impression upon that body.

The favour into which this branch of Gymnastics, called Pugilism (from the Greek $\piυξ$, as the Author of Boxiana learnedly observes), has risen with the Public of late years, and the long season of tranquillity which we are now promised by the new Millenarians of the Holy League, encourage us to look forward with some degree of sanguineness to an order of things, like that which PLATO and TOM CRIB have described (the former in the motto prefixed to this work, and the latter in the interesting Memorial that follows), when the Milling shall succeed to the Military system, and THE FANCY will be the sole arbitress of the trifling disputes of mankind. From a wish to throw every possible light on the history of an Art, which is destined ere long to have such influence upon the affairs of the world, I have, for some time past, been employed in a voluminous and elaborate work, entitled “A Parallel between Ancient and Modern Pugilism,” which is now in a state of considerable forwardness, and which I hope to have ready for delivery to subscribers on the morning of the approaching fight between Randall and Martin. Had the elegant author of Boxiana extended his inquiries to the ancient state of the art, I should not have presumed to interfere with a historian so competent. But, as his researches into antiquity have gone no farther than the one valuable specimen of erudition which I have given above, I feel the less hesitation quires, as well to the living as the dead, can only be fully appreciated by him who has had the patience to perform it. Alternately studying in the Museum and the Fives Court—passing from the Academy of Plato to that of Mr. Jackson—now indulging in Attic flashes with Aristophanes, and now studying Flash in the Attics of *Cock-Court—between so many and such various associations has my mind been divided during the task, that sometimes, in my bewilderment, I have confounded Ancients and Moderns together,—mistaken the Greek of St. Giles's for that of Athens, and have even found myself tracing Bill Gibbons and his Bull in the “taurum tibi, pulcher Apollo,” of Virgil. My printer, too, has been affected with similar hallucinations. The Mil. Glorios. of Plautus he converted, the other day, into a Glorious Mill; and more than once, when I have referred to Tom. prim. or Tom. quart. he has substituted Tom Crib and Tom Oliver in their places. Notwithstanding all this, the work will be found, I trust, tolerably correct; and as an Analysis of its opening Chapters may not only gratify the impatience of the Fanciful World, but save my future reviewers some trouble, it is here given as succinctly as possible.

Chap. 1. contains some account of the ancient inventors of pugilism, Epëus and Amycus.—The early exploit of the former, in milling his twin-brother, in ventre matris, and so getting before him into the world, as related by Eustathius on the authority of Lycophron.—Amycus, a Royal Amateur of THE FANCY, who challenged to the scratch all strangers that landed on his shore.—The Combat between him and Pollux (who, to use the classic phrase, served him out), as described by Theocritus, * Apollonius Rhodius, † and Valerius Flaccus. §—Respective merits of these three descriptions.—Theocritus by far the best; and altogether, perhaps, the most scientific account of a Boxing-match in all antiquity.—

* Idyl. 22.

† Argonaut. lib. 2.

§ Lib. 4.

Apollonius ought to have done better, with such a model before him ; but, evidently not up to the thing (whatever Scaliger may say), and his similes all slum. *—Valerius Flaccus, the first Latin Epic Poet after Virgil, has done ample justice to this Set-to ; the feints, facers, † and ribbers, all described most spiritedly.

Chap. 2. proves that the Pancratiun of the ancients, as combining boxing and wrestling, was the branch of their Gymnastics that most resembled our modern Pugilism ; cross-buttocking

* Except one, βρυπος οἶα, which is good, and which Fawkes, therefore, has omitted. The following couplet from his translation is, however, fanciful enough :—

“ So from their batter’d cheeks loud echoes sprung,
Their dash’d teeth crackled and their jaw-bones rung.”

† Emicat hic, dextramque parat, dextramque minatur
Tyndarides ; redit huc oculis et pondere Bebryx
Sic ratus : ille autem celeri rapit ora sinistra.

Lib. 4. v. 290.

We have here a feint and a facer together. The manner in which Valerius Flaccus describes the multitude of blackguards that usually assemble on such occasions, is highly poetical and picturesque ; he supposes them to be Shades from Tartarus :—

Et pater orantes cæsum Tartarus umbras
Nube cavâ tandem ad meritæ spectacula pugnae
Emittit ; summi nigrescunt culmina montis. V. 258.

(or what the Greeks called ὑποσκελίζειν) being as indispensable an ingredient as nobbing, flooring, etc. etc.—Their ideas of a stand-up fight very similar to our own, as appears from the το παιεῖν ἀλλήλους ΟΡΘΟΣΤΑΔΗΝ of Lucian,—περὶ Γυμνασ.

Chap. 3. examines the ancient terms of THE FANCY, as given by Pollux (Onomast. ad fin. lib. 3.) and others; and compares them with the modern.—For example, ἀγχεῖν, to throttle—λυγίζειν, evidently the origin of our word to lug—ἀγκυρίζειν, to anchor a fellow (see Grose's Greek Dictionary, for the word anchor)—δρασσεῖν (perf. pass. δεδραγμαι), from which is derived to drag; and whence, also, a flash etymologist might contrive to derive δράμα, drama, Thespis having first performed in a drag.* This chapter will be found highly curious; and distinguished, I flatter myself, by much of that acuteness which enabled a late illustrious Professor to discover that our English “Son of a Gun” was nothing more than the Παις Γυνης (Dor.) of the Greeks.

* The Flash term for a cart.

Chap. 4. enumerates the many celebrated Boxers of antiquity.—Eryx (grandson of the Amycus already mentioned), whom Hercules is said to have finished in style.—Phrynon, the Athenian General, and Autolycus, of whom, Pausanias tells us, there was a statue in the Prytaneum—The celebrated Pugilist, who, at the very moment he was expiring, had game enough to make his adversary give in; which interesting circumstance forms the subject of one of the Pictures of Philostratus, Icon. lib. 2. imag. 6.—and above all, that renowned Son of the Fancy, Melancomas, the favourite of the Emperor Titus, in whose praise Dio Chrysostomus has left us two elaborate orations.*—The peculiarities of this boxer discussed—his power of standing with his arms extended for two whole days, without any rest (δυνατός ην, says Dio, και δυο ημερας εξης μενειν ανατετακως τας χειρας, και εκ αν ειδεν εδεις υφεντα αυτον η αναπαυσταμενον ωσπερ ειωθασι. Orat. 28), by which means he wore out his ad-

* The following words, in which Dio so decidedly prefers the art of the Boxer to that of the Soldier, would perhaps have been a still more significant motto to Mr. Crib's Memorial than that which I have chosen from Plato: Και καθολικ δε εγωγε τιστο της εν τοις πολεμοις αρετης προκρινω.

versary's bottom, and conquered without either giving or taking. This bloodless system of milling, which trusted for victory to patience alone, has afforded to the orator, Themistius, a happy illustration of the peaceful conquests which he attributes to the Emperor Valens.*

Chap. 5. notices some curious points of similarity between the ancient and modern FANCY.—Thus, Theocritus, in his Milling-match, calls Amycus “a glutton,” which is well known to be the classical phrase at Moulsey-Hurst, for one who, like Amycus, takes a deal of punishment before he is satisfied.

Πως γὰρ δὴ Δίος υἱὸς ΑΔΗΦΑΓΟΝ ἀνδρὰ καθεῖλεν.

In the same Idyl the poet describes the Bebrycian hero as πληγαῖς μεθυών, “drunk with blows,” which is precisely the language of our Fancy bulletins; for example, “Turner appeared as if drunk, and made a heavy lolloping hit,”* etc. etc. —The resemblance in the manner of fighting still more striking and important. Thus we find CRIB’S favourite system of milling on the retreat, which he practised so successfully in his combats with Gregson and Molyneux, adopted by Alcidas, the Spartan, in the battle between him and Capaneus, so minutely and vividly described by Statius, Thebaid, lib. 6.

* Ἦν τις ἐπὶ τῶν προγονῶν τῶν ἡμετέρων πυκλῆς ἀνὴρ, Μελαγκομας ὀνόμα αὐτῷ οὐλος οὐδὲνα πωποῖε τρασας, ἔδε παλαζας, μόνῃ τῇ σασεῖ καὶ τῇ τῶν χειρῶν ἀναλασεῖ πάντας ἀπεκναιε τῆς ἀνὶπαλῆς.—THEMIST. Orai. περὶ Εἰρήνης.

..... sed non, tamen, immemor artis,
Adversus fugit, et fugiens tamen ictibus obstat.†

And it will be only necessary to compare together two extracts from Boxiana and the Bard of Syracuse, to see how similar in their manœuvres have been the millers of all ages—“The Man of Colour, to prevent being fibbed, grasped tight hold of Carter’s hand”§ —(Account of the Fight

Chap. 6. proves, from the jawing-match and Set-to between Ulysses and the Beggar in the 18th Book of the Odyssey, that the ancients (notwithstanding their δίκαια μαχοντων, or Laws of Combatants, which, Artemidorus says in his chap. 33. περι Μονομαχ. extended to pugilism as well as other kinds of combats) did not properly understand fair play; as Ulysses is here obliged to require an oath from the standers-by, that they will not deal him a sly knock, while he is cleaning out the mumper—

Μη τις ἐπ' Ἰζω ἡρα φερων εμε χειρι παχειη use of muffles or gloves, as we do, which they called σφαιραι. This appears particularly from a passage in Plato, de Leg. lib. 8, where, speaking of training, he says, it is only by frequent use of the gloves that a knowledge of stopping and hitting can be acquired. The whole passage is curious, as proving that the Divine Plato was not altogether a novice in the Fancy lay.*—Και ὡς ἐγγυλαλα του ὁμοιου, ἀντι ἱμαντων ΣΦΑΙΡΑΣ ἀν περι-εδμεθα, ὅπως αἱ ΠΛΗΓΑΙ τε καί αἱ ΤΩΝ ΠΛΗΓΩΝ

 ΕΥΛΑΒΕΙΑΙ διεμελετωνται εἰς τι δυνατον ἱκανως.—
 These muffles were called by the Romans sacculi, as we find from Trebellius Pollio, who, in describing a triumph of Gallienus, mentions the “Pugiles sacculis non veritate pugilantes.”

* Another philosopher, Seneca, has shown himself equally flash on the subject, and, in his 13th Epistle, lays it down as an axiom, that no pugilist can be considered worth any thing, till he has had his peepers taken measure of for a suit of mourning, or, in common language, has received a pair of black eyes. The whole passage is edifying:—“Non potest athleta magnos spiritus ad certamen adferre, qui nunquam sugillatus est. Ille qui vidit sanguinem suum, cujus dentes crepuerunt sub pugno, ille qui supplantatus adversarium toto tulit corpore, nec projecit animum projectus, qui quoties cecidit contumacior resurrexit, cum magna spe descendit ad pugnam.”

Chap. 8. adverts to the pugilistic exhibitions of the Spartan ladies, which Propertius has thus commemorated—

Pulverulentaque ad extremos stat foemina metas,
Et patitur duro vulnera pancratio;
Nunc ligat ad cæstum gaudentia brachia loris, etc. etc.
Lib. 3. cl. 14.

and, to prove that the moderns are not behind-hand with the ancients in this respect, cites the following instance recorded in Boxiana:—"George Madox, in this battle, was seconded by his sister, Grace, who, upon its conclusion, tossed up her hat in defiance, and offered to fight any man present;"—also the memorable challenge, given in the same work (vol. i. p. 300), which passed between Mrs. Elizabeth Wilkinson of Clerkenwell, and Miss Hannah Hyfield of Newgate-Market—another proof that the English may boast many a "dolce guerriera" as well as the Greeks.

Chap. 9. contains Accounts of all the celebrated Set-tos of antiquity, translated from the works of the different authors that have described them,—viz. the famous Argonautic Battle, as detailed by the three poets mentioned in chap. 1.—the Fight between Epëus and Euryalus, in the 23d Book of the Iliad, and between Ulysses and Irus in the 18th Book of the Odyssey—the Combat of Dares and Entellus in the 5th Æneid—of Capaneus and Alcidas, already referred to, in Statius, and of Achelous and Hercules in the 9th Book of the Metamorphoses ;—though this last is rather a wrestling-bout than a mill, resembling that between Hercules* and Antæus in the 4th Book of Lucan. The reader who is anxious to know how I have succeeded in this part of my task, will find, as a specimen, my translation from Virgil in the Appendix to the present work, No. 2.

Chap. 10. considers the various arguments for and against Pugilism, advanced by writers ancient

* Though wrestling was evidently the favourite sport of Hercules, we find him, in the Alcestes, just returned from a Bruising-match ; and it is a curious proof of the superior consideration in which these arts were held, that for the lighter exercises, he tells us, horses alone were the reward, while to conquerors in the higher games of pugilism and wrestling, whole herds of cattle (with sometimes a young lady into the bargain) were given as prizes.

and modern.—A strange instance of either ignorance or wilful falsehood in Lucian, who, in his Anacharsis, has represented Solon as one of the warmest advocates for Pugilism, whereas we know from Diogenes Laertius that that legislator took every possible pains to discourage and suppress it.—Alexander the Great, too, tasteless enough to prohibit THE FANCY (Plutarch in Vit.).—Galen in many parts of his works, but particularly in the Hortat. ad Art. condemns the practice as enervating and pernicious.*—On the other side, the testimonies in its favour, numerous.—The greater number of Pindar's Nemean Odes written in praise of pugilistic champions;—and Isocrates, though he represents Alcibiades as despising the art, yet acknowledges that its professors were held in high estimation through Greece, and that those cities, where victorious pugilists were born,

* It was remarked by the ancient physicians, that men who were in the habit of boxing and wrestling became remarkably lean and slender from the loins downward, while the upper parts of their frame acquired prodigious size and strength. became illustrious from that circumstance ; * just as Bristol has been rendered immortal by the production of such heroes as Tom Crib, Harry Harmer, Big Ben, Dutch Sam, etc. etc.—Ammianus Marcellinus tells us how much that religious and pugnacious Emperor, Constantius, delighted in the Set-tos, “ pugilum † vicissim se concidentium perfusorumque sanguine.”—To these are added still more flattering testimonies ; such as that of Isidorus, who calls Pugilism “virtus,” as if par excellence ; § and the yet more enthusiastic tribute with which Eustathius reproaches the Pagans, of having enrolled their Boxers in the number of the Gods.—In short, the whole chapter is full of erudition and vers ;—from Lycophron (whose very name smacks of pugilism) down to Boxiana and † Notwithstanding that the historian expressly says “ pugilum,” Lipsius is so anxious to press this circumstance into his Account of the Ancient Gladiators, that he insists such an effusion of claret could only have taken place in the gladiatorial combat. the Weekly Dispatch, not an author on the subject is omitted.

So much for my "Parallel between Ancient and Modern Pugilism." And now with respect to that peculiar language, called Flash, or St. Giles's Greek, in which Mr. CRIB'S Memorial and the other articles in the present volume are written, I beg to trouble the reader with a few observations. As this expressive language was originally invented, and is still used, like the cipher of the diplomatists, for purposes of secrecy, and as a means of eluding the vigilance of a certain class of persons, called, flashicè, Traps, or, in common language, Bow-street-Officers, it is subject of course to continual change, and is perpetually either altering the meaning of old words, or adding new ones, according as the great object, secrecy, renders it prudent to have recourse to such innovations. In this respect, also, it resembles the cryptography of kings and ambassadors, who by a continual change of cipher contrive to baffle the inquisitiveness of the enemy. But, notwithstanding the Protean nature of the Flash or Cant language, the greater part of its vocabulary has remained unchanged for centuries, and many of the words used by the Canting Beggars in Beaumont and Fletcher,* and the Gipsies in Ben Jonson's Masque,† are still to be heard among the Gnostics of Dyot-street and Tothill-fields. To prig is still to steal; § to fib, to beat; lour, money; duds, clothes;  prancers, horses; bouzing-ken, an alehouse; cove, a fellow; a sow's baby, a pig; etc. etc. There are also several instances of the same term, preserved with a totally different signification. Thus, to mill, which was originally "to rob," †† is now "to beat

* In their amusing comedy of "The Beggar's Bush."

† The Masque of the Gipsies Metamorphosed.—The Gipsy language, indeed, with the exception of such terms as relate to their own peculiar customs, differs but little from the regular Flash; as may be seen by consulting the Vocabulary subjoined to the Life of Bamfylde-Moor Carew.

§ See the third chapter, 1st book of the History of Jonathan Wild, for an "undeniable testimony of the great antiquity of Priggism."

 An angler for duds is thus described by Dekker:—"He carries a short staff in his hand, which is called a filch, having in the nab, or head of it, a ferme (that is to say a hole), into which, upon any piece of service, when he goes a filching, he putteth a hooke of iron, with which hooke he angles at a window in the dead of night for shirts, smockes, or any other linen or woollen."—English Villanies.

†† "Can they cant or mill? are they masters in their art?"

or fight;" and the word rum, which in Ben Jonson's time, and even so late as Grose, meant fine and good, is now generally used for the very opposite qualities; as, "he's but a rum one," etc. Most of the Cant phrases in Head's English Rogue, which was published, I believe, in 1666, would be intelligible to a Greek of the present day; though it must be confessed that the Songs which both he and Dekker have given would puzzle even that "Graia gentis decus," Caleb Baldwin himself. For instance, one of the simplest begins,

Bing out, bien Morts, and toure and toure,
Bing out, bien Morts, and toure;
For all your duds are bing'd awast;
The bien Cove hath the loure.

To the cultivation, in our times, of the science of Pugilism, the Flash language is indebted for a considerable addition to its treasures. Indeed, so impossible is it to describe the operations of THE FANCY without words of proportionate energy to do justice to the subject, that we find Pope and Cowper, in their translation of the Set-to in the Iliad, pressing words into the service which had —Ben Jonson. To mill, however, sometimes signified "to kill." Thus, to mill a bleating cheat, i. e. to kill a sheep.

seldom, I think, if ever, been enlisted into the ranks of poetry before. Thus Pope,

Secure this hand shall his whole frame confound,
Mash all his bones and all his body pound.

Cowper, in the same manner, translates κοψε δε παρηιον, "pash'd him on the cheek;" and, in describing the wrestling-match, makes use of a term, now more properly applied to a peculiar kind of blow, * of which Mendoza is supposed to have been the inventor.

Then his wiles
 Forgat not he, but on the ham behind
Chopp'd him.

Before I conculde this Preface, which has already I fear extended to an unconscionable length, I cannot help expressing my regret at the selection which Mr. CRIB has made of one of the Combatants introduced into the imaginary Set-to that follows. That person has already been exhibited, perhaps,

* "A chopper is a blow, struck on the face with the back of the hand. Mendoza claims the honour of its invention, but unjustly; he certainly revived, and considerably improved it. It was practised long before our time—Broughton occasionally used it; and Slack, it also appears, struck the chopper in giving the return in many of his battles."—Boxiana, vol. ii. p. 20.

“usque ad nauseam,” before the Public ; and, without entering into the propriety of meddling with such a personage at all, it is certain that, as a mere matter of taste, he ought now to be let alone. All that can be alleged for Mr. CRIB is—what Rabelais has said in defending the moral notions of another kind of cattle—he “ knows no better.” But for myself, in my editorial capacity, I take this opportunity of declaring, that, as far as I am concerned, the person in question shall henceforward be safe and inviolate ; and, as the Covent-Garden Managers said, when they withdrew their much-hissed Elephant, this is positively the last time of his appearing on the Stage.

I am sure you will not be surprised to find the Public Library without ceasing to be the property of the people, and with such a person as all, it is certain that, as a more matter of fact, the right now to be let about. All that can be expected for the Library of the Public Library has not in the hands of the moral notion of another kind of public library. I know how to say, but for myself, in my editorial capacity,
I take this opportunity of declaring that, as far as I am concerned, the person in question shall be allowed to go and to stay; and, as the Constitution of the Library is not, when they withdraw their much-biased judgment, that is, to say, the last time of his appearance on the stage.

TOM CRIB'S MEMORIAL

TO CONGRESS.

Most Holy, and High, and Legitimate squad,
First *Swells of the world, since Boney's in quod, †
Who have every thing now, as Bill Gibbons would say,
“Like the bull in the china shop, all your own way”—
Whatsoever employs your magnificent nobs, § Whether diddling your subjects, and gutting their fobs **

(While you hum the poor spoonies †† with speeches, so pretty,

'Bout Freedom, and Order, and—all my eye, Betty)—

* Swell, a great man.

† In prison. The dab's in quod; the rogue is in prison.

§ Heads.

 Taking out the contents. Thus, gutting a quart pot (or taking out the lining of it), i. e. drinking it off.

†† Simpletons, alias Innocents.

Whether praying, or dressing, or dancing the hays,
 Or lapping your congo * at Lord C-STL-R—GH'S†
 (While his Lordship, as usual, that very great dab §
 At the flowers of rhet'ric, is flashing his gab **)—
 Or holding State Dinners, to talk of the weather,
 And cut up your mutton and Europe together !
 Whatever your gammon, whatever your talk,
 Oh deign, ye illustrious Cocks of the Walk,
 To attend for a moment,—and if the Fine Arts
 Of fibbing †† and boring †† be dear to your hearts ;
 If to level, †† to punish, †† to russian †† mankind,
 And to darken their daylights, §§ be pleasures refined
 (As they must be) for every Legitimate mind,— Oh listen to one, who, both able and willing To spread through creation the mysteries of milling
 (And, as to whose politics, search the world round,
 Not a sturdier Pit-tite  e'er lived under ground),

* Drinking your tea.

† See the Appendix, No. 3.

§ An adept.

 Showing off his talk.—Better expressed, perhaps, by a late wit, who, upon being asked what was going on in the House of Commons, answered, “ only Lord C. airing his vocabulary.”

†† All terms of the Fancy, and familiar to those who read the Transactions of the Pugilistic Society.

§§ To close up their eyes—alias, to sow up their sees.

 Tom received his first education in a coal-pit; from whence he has been honoured with the name of “ the Black Diamond.”

Has thought of a plan, which—excuse his presumption—

He hereby submits to your Royal rumgumption.*

It being now settled that emperors and kings,
 Like kites made of foolscap, are high-flying things,
 To whose tails a few millions of subjects, or so,
 Have been tied in a string, to be whisk'd to and fro,
 Just wherever it suits the said foolscap to go—
 This being all settled, and freedom all gammon,†
 And nought but your honours worth wasting a d—n on;
 While snug and secure you may now run your rigs,§
 Without fear that old Boney will bother your gigs—
 As your Honours, too, bless you! though all of a trade,
 Yet agreeing like new ones, have lately been made
 Special constables o'er us, for keeping the peace,—
 Let us hope now that wars and rumbustions will cease;
 That soldiers and guns, like “the Devil and his works,”
 Will henceforward be left to Jews, Negers, and Turks;
 Till *Brown Bess shall soon, like Miss Tabitha Fust,
 For want of a spark to go off with, grow rusty,

* Gumption, or Rumgumption, comprehension, capacity.

† Nonsense or humbug.

§ Play your tricks.

 A soldier's fire-lock.

And *lobsters will lie such a drug upon hand,
 That our do-nothing Captains must all get japann'd! †
My eyes, how delightful!—the rabble well gagg'd,
 The Swells in high feather, and old Boney lagg'd! §

But, though we must hope for such good times as these,
 Yet as something may happen to kick up a breeze—
 Some quarrel, reserved for your own private picking—
 Some grudge, even now in your great gizzards sticking (God knows about what—about money, mayhap,
 Or the Papists, or Dutch, or that Kid, Master Nap)—
 And, setting in case there should come such a rumpus,
 As some mode of settling the chat we must compass,

* Soldiers, from the colour of their clothes. “To boil one's lobster means for a churchman to turn soldier; lobsters, which are of a bluish black, being made red by boiling.”—Grose. Butler's ingenious simile will occur to the reader:—

When, like a lobster boil'd, the Morn
 From black to red began to turn.

† Ordained—i. e. become clergymen.

§ Transported.

 Child.—Hence our useful word, kidnapper—to nab a kid being to steal a child. Indeed, we need but recollect the many excellent and necessary words to which Johnson has affixed the stigma of “cant term,” to be aware how considerably the English language has been enriched by the contributions of the Flash fraternity.

With which the *tag-rag will have nothing to do—
 What think you, great Swells, of a ROYAL SET-TO? †
 A Ring and fair fist-work at Aix-la-Chapelle,
 Or at old Moulsey-Hurst, if you likes it as well—
 And that all may be fair as to wind, weight, and science,
I'll answer to train the whole HOLY ALLIANCE!

Just think, please your Majesties, how you'd prefer it
 To mills such as Waterloo, where all the merit
 To vulgar red-coated rapscallions must fall,
 Who have no Right Divine to have merit at all!
 How much more select your own quiet Set-tos!—
 And how vastly genteeler 'twill sound in the news, (Kent's Weekly Dispatch, that beats all others hollow
 For Fancy transactions), in terms such as follow:—

ACCOUNT OF THE GRAND SET-TO BETWEEN LONG SANDY AND GEORGY THE PORPUS.

LAST Tuesday, at Moulsey, the Balance of Power
 Was settled by Twelve Tightish Rounds, in an hour—

* The common people, the mobility.

† A boxing-match.

The Buffers,* both “Boys of the Holy Ground,”—†
 LONG SANDY, by name of the Bear much renown'd,
 And GEORGY the Porpus, prime glutton reckon'd—
 Old thingumme POTTSO § was LONG SANDY's second,
 And GEORGY's was Pat C—STL—R—GH,—he who lives
 At the sign of the King's Arms a-kimbo, and gives His small beer about, with the air of a chap
 Who believed it himself a prodigious strong tap.

This being the first true Legitimate Match
 Since TOM took to training these Swells for the scratch,
 Every lover of life, that had rhino to spare,
 From sly little Moses to B—R—G, was there.

* Boxers—Irish cant.

† The hitch in the metre here was rendered necessary by the quotation, which is from a celebrated Fancy chant, ending, every verse, thus:—

For we are the boys of the Holy Ground,
 And we'll dance upon nothing, and turn us round!

It is almost needless to add, that the Holy Ground, or Land, is a well-known region of St. Giles's.

§ TOM means, I presume, the celebrated diplomatist, Pozzo di Borgo.—The Irish used to claim the dancer Didelot as their countryman, insisting that the O had slipped out of its right place, and that his real name was Mr. O'Diddle. On the same principle they will, perhaps, assert their right to M. Pozzo.

Never since the renown'd days of BROUGHTON and FIGG *
 Was the Fanciful World in such very prime twig—†
 And long before daylight, gigs, rattlers, § and prads, **
 Were in motion for Moulsey, brimful of the Lads.

JACK ELD—N, Old SID, and some more, had come down
 On the evening before, and put up at The Crown,— Their old favourite sign, where themselves and their brothers

Get grub †† at cheap rate, though it fleeces all others ;
 Nor matters it how we plebeians condemn,
 As The Crown's always sure of its license from them.

'Twas diverting to see, as one ogled around,
 How Corinthians §§ and Commoners mixed on the ground.
 Here M—NTR—SE and an Israelite met face to face,
 The Duke, a place-hunter—the Jew, from Duke's Place ;
 While NICKY V—NS—TT—T, not caring to roam,
 Got among the white-bag-men,  and felt quite at home.
 Here stood in a corner, well screen'd from the weather,
 Old SID and the great Doctor EADY together,

* The chief founders of the modern school of pugilism.

† High spirits or condition.

§ Coaches.

 Horses.

†† Victuals.

§§ Men of rank—vide Boxiana, passim.

 Pick-pockets.

Both famed on the walls—with a d—n, in addition,
Prefix'd to the name of the former Physician.

Here C—MD—N, who never till now was suspected
Of Fancy, or aught that is therewith connected,
Got close to a dealer in donkies, who eyed him,
Jack Scroggins remark'd, “just as if he'd have buy'd him ;”

While poor Bogy B—CK—GH—M well might look pale,
As there stood a great Rat-catcher close to his tail !

'Mong the vehicles, too, which were many and various,
From natty barouche down to buggy precarious,
We twigg'd more than one queerish sort of turn-out ;—
C—NN—G came in a job, and then canter'd about
On a showy, but hot and unsound, bit of blood,
(For a leader once meant, but cast off, as not good)
Looking round to secure a snug place if he could :—
While ELD—N, long doubting between a grey nag
And a white one to mount, took his stand in a drag. *

At a quarter past ten, by Pat C—STL—R—GH's tattler, †
CRIB came on the ground in a four-in-hand rattler

* A cart or waggon.

† A watch.

(For TOM, since he took to these Holy Allies,
Is as tip-top a beau as all Bond-street supplies);
And, on seeing the CHAMPION, loud cries of "Fight, fight,"

"Ring, ring," "Whip the Gemmen," were heard left and right.

But the kids, though impatient, were doom'd to delay,
As the old P. C.* ropes (which are now mark'd H. A.†)
Being hack'd in the service, it seems had given way;
And, as rope is an article much up in price
Since the Bank took to hanging, the lads had to splice.

At length, the two Swells having enter'd the Ring,
To the tune the cow died of, called "God save the King,"
Each threw up his castor § 'mid general huzzas—
And, if dressing would do, never yet, since the days
When HUMPHRIES stood up to the Israelite's thumps,
In gold-spangled stockings and touch-me-not pumps, **

* The ropes and stakes used at the prize-fights, being the property of the Pugilistic Club, are marked with the initials P. C.

† For "Holy Alliance."

§ Hat.

 "The fine manly form of Humphries was seen to great advantage; he had on a pair of fine flannel drawers, white silk stockings, the clocks of which were spangled with gold, and

Has there any thing equall'd the fal-lals and tricks
 That bedizen'd old GEORGY'S bang-up tog and kicks! *
 Having first shaken daddles † (to show, JACKSON said,
 It was "pro bono Pimlico" § chiefly they bled)
 Both peel'd —but, on laying his Dandy-belt by,
 Old GEORGY went floush, and his backers look'd shy;
 For they saw, notwithstanding CRIB'S honest endeavour
 To train down the crummy, †† 'twas monstrous as ever!

Not so with LONG SANDY—prime meat every inch—
 Which, of course, made the Gnostics §§ on t'other side flinch;

pumps tied with ribbon."—(Account of the First Battle between Humphries and Mendoza.)—The epistle which Humphries wrote to a friend, communicating the result of this fight, is worthy of a Lacedæmonian.—"Sir, I have done the Jew, and am in good health. Rich. Humphries."

* Tog and kicks, coat and breeches.—Tog is one of the cant words which Dekker cites, as "retaining a certain salt and tasting of some wit and learning," being derived from the Latin toga.

† Hands.

§ Mr. Jackson's residence is in Pimlico.—This gentleman (as he well deserves to be called, from the correctness of his conduct and the peculiar urbanity of his manners) forms that useful link between the amateurs and the professors of pugilism, which, when broken, it will be difficult, if not wholly impossible, to replace.

 Stripped.

†† Fat.

§§ Knowing ones.

And BOB W—LS—N from Southwark, the gamest chap
there,

Was now heard to sing out, “Ten to one on the Bear!”

FIRST ROUND. Very cautious—the kiddies both sparr’d
As if shy of the scratch—while the Porpus kept guard
O’er his beautiful mug,* as if fearing to hazard
One damaging touch in so dandy a mazzard.
Which t’other observing put in his ONE-TWO †
Between GEORGY’S left ribs, with a knuckle so true,
That had his heart lain in the right place, no doubt
But the Bear’s double-knock would have rummaged it out—

As it was, Master GEORGY came souse with the whack,
And there sprawl’d, like a turtle turn’d queer on its back.

SECOND ROUND. Rather sprightly—the Bear, in high gig,
Took a fancy to flirt with the Porpus’s wig;
And, had it been either a loose tie or bob,
He’d have claw’d it clean off, but ’twas glued to his nob.

* Face.

† Two blows succeeding each other rapidly.—Thus (speaking of Randall) “his ONE-TWO are put in with the sharpness of lightning.”

So he tipp'd him a settler they call "a Spoil-Dandy"
Full plump in the whisker.—High betting on Sandy.

THIRD ROUND. Somewhat slack—GEORGY tried to make play,

But his own victualling-office * stood much in the way;
While SANDY's long arms—long enough for a douse
All the way from Kamschatka to Johnny Groat's
House—

Kept paddling about the poor Porpus's muns, †
Till they made him as hot and as cross as Lent buns ! §

FOURTH ROUND. GEORGY's backers look'd blank at the lad,

When they saw what a rum knack of shifting  he had—
An old trick of his youth—but the Bear, up to slum, ††
Follow'd close on my gentleman, kneading his crum
As expertly as any Dead Man §§ about town,
All the way to the ropes—where, as GEORGY went down,

* The stomach or paunch. † Mouth. § Hot cross buns.

 "Some have censured shifting as an unmanly custom."— Boxiana.

†† Humbug or gammon.

§§ Dead men are Bakers—so called from the loaves falsely charged to their master's customers. The following is from an

SANDY tipp'd him a dose of that kind, that, when taken,
It isn't the stuff, but the patient that's shaken.

FIFTH ROUND. GEORGY tried for his customer's head—
(The part of LONG SANDY that's softest, 'tis said ;
And the chat is that NAP, when he had him in tow,
Found his *knowledge-box always the first thing to go)—
Neat milling this Round—what with clouts on the nob,
Home hits in the bread-basket, † clicks in the gob, §
And plumps in the daylights,  a prettier treat
Between two Johnny Raws †† 'tis not easy to meet.

SIXTH ROUND. GEORGY's friends in high flourish, and hopes ;

JACK ELD—N, with others, came close to the ropes—

Account of the Battle fought by Nosworthy, the Baker, with Martin, the Jew :

"First round. Nosworthy, on the alert, planted a tremendous hit on Martin's mouth, which not only drew forth a profusion of claret, but he went down.—Loud shouting from the Dead Men !

"Second Round. Nosworthy began to serve the Jew in style, and his hits told most tremendously. Martin made a good round of it, but fell rather distressed. The Dead Men now opened their mouths wide, and loudly offered six to four on the Master of the Rolls."

* The head.

† The stomach.

§ The mouth.

 The eyes.

†† Novices.

And when GEORGY, one time, got the head of the Bear
Into Chancery,* ELD—N sung out “KEEP him there;”
 But the cull broke away, as he would from Lob's pound,†

And, after a rum sort of ruffianing Round,
 Like cronies they hugg'd, and came smack to the ground;
 Poor SANDY the undermost, smother'd and spread
 Like a German tuck'd under his huge feather bed!§
 All pitied the patient—and loud exclamations, “My eyes!” and “my wig!” spoke the general sensations—

'Twas thought SANDY's soul was squeezed out of his corpus,

So heavy the crush.—Two to one on the Porpus!

Nota bene.—'Twas curious to see all the pigeons
 Sent off by Jews, Flashmen, and other religions,

* Getting the head under the arm, for the purpose of fibbing.

† A prison.—See Dr. Grey's explanation of this phrase in his notes upon Hudibras.

§ The Germans sleep between two beds; and it is related that an Irish traveller, upon finding a feather bed thus laid over him, took it into his head that the people slept in strata, one upon the other, and said to the attendant, “will you be good enough to tell the gentleman or lady that is to lie over me, to make haste, as I want to go asleep?”

To office,* with all due dispatch, through the air,
 To the Bulls of the Alley the fate of the Bear
 (For in these Fancy times, 'tis your hits in the muns,
 And your choppers, and floorers, that govern the Funds)—
 And Consols, which had been all day shy enough,
 When 'twas known in the Alley that Old Blue and Buff
 Had been down on the Bear, rose at once—up to snuff!†

SEVENTH ROUND. Though hot-press'd, and as flat as a crumpet,

LONG SANDY show'd game again, scorning to rump it;
 And, fixing his eye on the Porpus's snout,§
 Which he knew that Adonis felt *peery about,
 By a feint, truly elegant, tipp'd him a punch in
 The critical place, where he cupboards his luncheon,
 Which knock'd all the rich Curagoa into cruds,
 And doubled him up, like a bag of old duds!††
 There he lay almost frummagem'd§§—every one said
 'Twas all Dicky with GEORGY, his mug hung so dead:

* To signify by letter.

† This phrase, denoting elevation of various kinds, is often rendered more emphatic by such adjuncts as "Up to snuff and twopenny."—"Up to snuff, and a pinch above it," etc. etc.

§ Nose.

 Suspicious.

†† Clothes.

§§ Choaked.

And 'twas only by calling "your wife, Sir, your wife!"
 (As a man would cry "fire!") they could start him to life.

Up he rose in a funk,* lapp'd a toothful of brandy,
 And to it again.—Any odds upon SANDY.

EIGHTH ROUND. SANDY work'd like a first-rate demolisher:

Bear as he is, yet his lick is no polisher;
 And, take him at ruffianing work (though in common,
 he
Hums about Peace and all that, like a Domine)†
 SANDY's the boy, if once to it they fall,
 That will play up old gooseberry soon with them all.
 This Round was but short—after humouring awhile,
 He proceeded to serve an ejectment, in style,
 Upon GEORGY's front grinders,§ which damaged his smile

* Fright.

† A Parson.—Thus in that truly classical song the Christening of Little Joey:

"When Domine had named the Kid,
 Then home again they piked it;
 A flash of lightning was prepared
 For every one that liked it."

§ Teeth.

So completely, that bets ran a hundred to ten
 The Adonis would ne'er *flash his ivory again—
 And 'twas pretty to see him roll'd round with the shock,
 Like a cask of fresh blubber in old Greenland Dock!

NINTH ROUND. One of GEORGY's bright ogles† was put On the bankruptcy list, with its shop-windows shut;
 While the other soon made quite as tag-rag a show,
 All rimm'd round with black, like the Courier in woe!
 Much alarm was now seen 'mong the Israelite Kids,
 And B—R—G,—the devil's own boy for the quids,§— Dispatch'd off a pigeon (the species, no doubt, That they call B—R—G's stock-dove) with word “to sell out.”

From this to the finish 'twas all fiddle faddle—
 Poor GEORGY, at last, could scarce hold up his daddle—
 With grinders dislodged and with peepers both poach'd,

'Twas not till the Tenth Round his claret†† was broach'd:

* Show his teeth.

† Eyes.

§ Money.

 French cant; Les yeux pochés au beurre noir.—See the Dictionnaire Comique,

†† Blood.

As the cellarage lay so deep down in the fat,
 Like his old M——a's purse, 'twas cursed hard to get at.
 But a pelt in the smellers * (too pretty to shun,
 If the lad even could) set it going like fun;
 And this being the first Royal Claret let flow,
 Since Tom took the Holy Alliance in tow,
 The uncorking produced much sensation about,
 As bets had been flush on the first painted snout.
Nota bene.—A note was wing'd off to the Square,
 Just to hint of this awful phlebotomy there;—
 BOB GREGSON, whose wit at such things is exceeding,† Inclosing a large sprig of “Love lies a bleeding!”

In short, not to dwell on each facer and fall,
 Poor GEORGY was done up in no time at all,
 And his spunkiest backers were forced to sing small. §
 In vain did they try to fig up the old lad,
 'Twas like using persuaders  upon a dead prad; ††
 In vain Bogy §§ B—CK—GH—M fondly besought him,

* The nose.

† Some specimens of Mr. Gregson's lyrical talents are given in the Appendix, No. 4.

§ To be humbled or abashed.  Spurs. †† Horse.

§§ For the meaning of this term, see GROSE.

To show like himself, if not game, at least bottom;
 While M—RL—Y, that very great Count, stood deploring
 He hadn't taught GEORGY his new modes of boring:*
 All useless—no art can transmogrify truth—
 It was plain the conceit was mill'd out of the youth.
 In the Twelfth and Last Round SANDY fetch'd him a downer,
 That left him all's one as cold meat for the Crowner;†
 On which the whole populace flash'd the white grin
Like a basket of chips, and poor GEORGY gave in:§ While the fiddlers (old POTTS having tipp'd them a bandy)
 Play'd "Green grow the rushes,"†† in honour of SANDY!

* "The ponderosity of Crib, when in close quarters with his opponent, evidently bored in upon him," etc.

† The Coroner.

§ The ancient Greeks had a phrase of similar structure, ενδιδωμι, cedo.

 A bandy or cripple, a sixpence; "that piece being commonly much bent and distorted."—GROSE.

†† The well-known compliment paid to the Emperor of all the Russias by some Irish musicians.

Now, what say your Majesties?—isn't this prime?
 Was there ever French Bulletin half so sublime?
 Or could old NAP himself, in his glory, * have wish'd
 To show up a fat Gemman more handsomely dish'd?—
 Oh, bless your great hearts, let them say what they will,

Nothing's half so genteel as a regular Mill;
 And, for settling of balances, all I know is,
 'Tis the way CALEB BALDWIN prefers settling his. †
 As for backers, you've lots of Big-wigs about Court,
 That will back you—the raff being tired of that sport,—
 And if quids should be wanting to make the match good,

There's B—R—NG, the Prince of Rag Rhino, who stood

* See Appendix, No. 5.

† A trifling instance of which is recorded in Boxiana:—"A fracas occurred between Caleb Baldwin and the keepers of the gate. The latter not immediately recognizing the veteran of the ring, refused his vehicle admittance without the usual tip; but Caleb, finding argufying the topic would not do, instead of paying them in the new coinage, dealt out another sort of currency, and, although destitute of the W. W. P. it had such an instantaneous effect upon the Johnny Raws, that the gate flew open, and Caleb rode through in triumph."

(T'other day, you know) bail for the *seedy Right Liners;
 Who knows but, if coax'd, he may shell out the shiners?†
 The shiners! Lord, Lord, what a bounce do I say!
 As if we could hope to have rags done away,
 Or see any thing shining, while VAN has the sway!

As to training, a Court's but a rum sort of station
 To choose for that sober and chaste operation; §
 For, as old IKEY PIG  said of Courts, "by de heavens, Dey're all, but the Fives Court, at sixes and sevens."
 What with snoozing, †† high grubbing, §§ and guzzling
like Cloe,

Your Majesties, pardon me, all get so doughy,
 That take the whole kit, down from SANDY the Bear
 To him who makes duds for the Virgin to wear,
 I'd choose but JACK SCROGGINS, and feel disappointed

§ The extreme rigour, in these respects, of the ancient system of training, may be inferred from the instances mentioned by Ælian. Not only pugilists, but even players on the harp, were, during the time of their probation, συνεστας αμαθεις και απειροι.—De Animal. lib. 6. cap. 1.

Account of a Grand Pugilistic Meeting, held at BELCHER'S (Castle Tavern, Holborn), TOM CRIB in the Chair, to take into consideration the propriety of sending Representatives of the Fancy to Congress.—Extracted from a letter written on the occasion by HARRY HARMER, the Hammerer, to NED PAINTER.*

* * * * *

LAST Friday night a bang-up set
Of milling blades at BELCHER'S met ;

* So called in his double capacity of Boxer and Coppersmith.

† The passage in Pindar, from which the following lines

All high-bred Heroes of the Ring,
 Whose very gammon would delight one ;
 Who, nursed beneath The Fancy's wing,
 Show all her feathers—but the white one.

Brave TOM, the CHAMPION, with an air
 Almost Corinthian,* took the Chair ;
 And kept the Coves † in quiet tune,
 By showing such a fist of mutton
 As, on a Point of Order, soon
 Would take the shine from Speaker SUTTON.
 And all the lads look'd gay and bright,
 And gin and genius flash'd about,
 And whosoe'er grew unpolite,
 The well-bred CHAMPION served him out.

of "Hark, the merry Christ Church Bells," are evidently borrowed:

The devil a man
 Will leave his can,
 Till he hears the Mighty Tom.

* i. e. With the air, almost, of a man of rank and fashion. Indeed, according to Horace's notions of a peerage, Tom's claims to it are indisputable:

—— illum superare pugnis
Nobilem.

† Fellows.

As we'd been summon'd thus, to quaff
 Our Deady * o'er some State Affairs,
 Of course we mix'd not with the raff,
 But had the Sunday room, up stairs.
 And when we well had sluiced our gobs, †
 'Till all were in prime twig for chatter,
 Tom rose, and to our learned nobs
 Propounded thus th' important matter :—

“ Gemmen,” says he—Tom's words, you know,
 Come like his hitting, strong but slow—
 “ Seeing as how those Swells, that made
 “ Old Boney quit the hammering trade
 “ (All prime Ones in their own conceit),
 “ Will shortly at THE CONGRESS meet—
 “ (Some place that's like THE FINISH, § lads,
 “ Where all your high pedestrian pads,
 “ That have been up and out all night,
 “ Running their rigs among the rattlers,

* Deady's gin, otherwise, Deady's brilliant stark naked.

† Had drunk heartily.

§ A public-house in Covent-Garden, memorable as one of the places where the Gentlemen Depredators of the night (the Holy League of the Road) meet, early in the morning, for the purpose of sharing the spoil, and arranging other matters connected with their most Christian Alliance.

 Robbing travellers in chaises, etc.

“ At morning meet, and—honour bright—
 “ Agree to share the blunt and tatlers !*)—
 “ Seeing as how, I say, these Swells
 “ Are soon to meet, by special summons,
 “ To chime together, like ‘ hell’s bells,’
 “ And laugh at all mankind as rum ones—
 “ I see no reason, when such things
 “ Are going on among these Kings,
 “ Why We, who’re of the Fancy lay, †
 “ As dead hands at a mill as they,
 “ And quite as ready, after it,
 “ To share the spoil and grab the bit, §
 “ Should not be there to join the chat,
 “ To see, at least, what fun they’re at,
 “ And help their Majesties to find
 “ New modes of punishing mankind.
 “ What say you, lads? is any spark
 “ Among you ready for a lark **
 “ To this same Congress?—CALEB, JOE,
 “ BILL, BOB, what say you?—yes or no?”

* The money and watches.

† Particular pursuit or enterprize. Thus, “he is on the kid-lay,” i. e. stopping children with parcels and robbing them—the ken-crack-lay, house-breaking, etc. etc.

§ To seize the money.

 A frolic or party of pleasure.

Thus spoke the CHAMPION, Prime of men,
 And loud and long we cheer'd his prattle
 With shouts, that thunder'd through the ken,*
 And made Tom's Sunday tea-things rattle!

A pause ensued—'till cries of "GREGSON"
 Brought Bob, the Poet, on his legs soon—
 (My eyes, how prettily Bob writes!

Talk of your Camels, Hogs, and Crabs, †
 And twenty more such Pidcock frights—

Bob's worth a hundred of these dabs:

For a short turn up § at a sonnet,

A round of odes, or Pastoral bout,

All Lombard-street to nine-pence on it, **

BOBBY's the boy would clean them out!)

"Gemmen," says he—(Bob's eloquence

Lies much in C—NN—G's line, 'tis said,

* House.

† By this curious zoological assemblage (something like Berni's "porci, e poeti, e pidocchi") the writer means, I suppose, Messrs. Campbell, Crabbe, and Hogg.

§ A turn-up is properly a casual and hasty set-to.

 More usually "Lombard-street to a China orange." There are several of these fanciful forms of betting—"Chelsea College to a sentry-box," "Pompey's Pillar to a stick of sealing-wax," etc. etc.

For, when BOB can't afford us sense,
 He tips us poetry, instead—)
 “ Gemmen, before I touch the matter,
 “ On which I'm here had up for patter, *
 “ A few short words I first must spare,
 “ To him, THE HERO, that sits there,
 “ Swigging Blue Ruin, † in that chair.
 “ (Hear—hear)—His fame I need not tell,
 “ For that, my friends, all England's loud with ;
 “ But this I'll say, a civiller Swell
 “ I'd never wish to blow a cloud § with !”

At these brave words, we, every one,
Sung out “ hear—hear”—and clapp'd, like fun.
 For, knowing how, on Moulsey's plain,
 The CHAMPION fibb'd the POET's nob, **
 This buttering-up, †† against the grain,
 We thought was cursed genteel in BOB.
 And, here again, we may remark
 BOB's likeness to the Lisbon jobber—§§

* Talk.

† Gin.

§ To smoke a pipe. This phrase is highly poetical, and explains what Homer meant by the epithet, νεφεληγερετης.

 In the year 1808, when CRIB defeated GREGSON.

†† Praising or flattering.

§§ These parallels between great men are truly edifying.

For, though all know that flashy spark
 From C—ST—R—GH received a nobber,
 That made him look like sneaking Jerry,
 And laid him up in ordinary,*
 Yet now, such loving pals† are they,
 That Georgy, wiser as he's older,
 Instead of facing C—ST—R—GH,
 Is proud to be his bottle-holder!

But to return to BOB's harangue,
 'Twas deuced fine—no slum or slang—
 But such as you could smoke the bard in,—
 All full of flowers, like Common Garden,
 With lots of figures, neat and bright,
 Like Mother Salmon's—wax-work quite!

The next was TURNER—nobbing NED—
 Who put his right leg forth, § and said,
 “Tom, I admire your notion much;
 “And please the pigs, if well and hearty,

* Sea cant—a good deal of which has been introduced into the regular Flash, by such classic heroes as Scroggins, Crockey, etc.

† Friends.

§ Ned's favourite Prolegomena in battle as well as in debate. As this position is said to render him “very hard to be got at,” I would recommend poor Mr. V—ns—t—t to try it as a last resource, in his next set-to with Mr. T—rn—y.

" I somehow thinks I'll have a touch,
 " Myself, at this said Congress party.
 " Though no great shakes at learned chat,
 " If settling Europe be the sport,
 " They'll find I'm just the boy for that,
 " As tipping settlers * is my forte ! "

Then up rose WARD, the veteran JOE,
 And, 'twixt his whiffs, † suggested briefly
 That but a few, at first, should go,
 And those, the light-weight Gemmen chiefly ;
 As if too many " Big ones " went,
They might alarm the Continent !!

JOE added, then, that as 'twas known
 The R—G—T, bless his wig ! had shown
 A taste for Art (like JOEY's own §)
 And meant, 'mong other sporting things,
 To have the heads of all those Kings,

* A kind of blow, whose sedative nature is sufficiently explained by the name it bears.

† Joe being particularly fond of "that costly and gentleman-like smoke," as Dekker calls it. The talent which Joe possesses of uttering Flash while he smokes—" ex fumo dare lucem "—is very remarkable.

§ Joe's taste for pictures has been thus commemorated by the great Historian of Pugilism—"If Joe Ward cannot boast

And conqu'rors, whom he loves so dearly,
Taken off—on canvas, merely ;
 God forbid the other mode !—
 He (JOE) would from his own abode
 (*The Dragon—famed for Fancy works, Drawings of Heroes, and of—corks)
 Furnish such Gemmen of the Fist, †
 As would complete the R—G—T's list.
 “ Thus, Champion TOM,” said he, “ would look “ Right well, hung up beside the Duke— of a splendid gallery of pictures formed of selections from the great foreign masters, he can sport such a collection of native subjects as, in many instances, must be considered unique. Portraits of nearly all the pugilists (many of them in whole lengths and attitudes) are to be found, from the days of Figg and Broughton down to the present period, with likenesses of many distinguished amateurs, among whom are Captain Barclay, the classic Dr. Johnson, the Duke of Cumberland, etc. His parlour is decorated in a similar manner; and his partiality for pictures has gone so far, that even the tap-room contains many excellent subjects !”—Boxiana, vol. i. p. 431.

* The Green Dragon, King-street, near Swallow-street, “ where (says the same author) any person may have an opportunity of verifying what has been asserted, in viewing Ward's Cabinet of the Fancy !”

† Among the portraits is one of BILL GIBBONS, by a pupil of the great Fuseli, which gave occasion to the following impromptu :—

Though you are one of Fuseli's scholars,
 This question I'll dare to propose,—
 How the devil could you use water-colours,
 In painting BILL GIBBONS's nose ?

" Tom's noddle being (if its frame
 " Had but the gilding) much the same—
 " And, as a partner for Old Blu,
 " BILL GIBBONS or myself would do."

Loud cheering at this speech of JOEY'S—
 Who, as the Dilettanti know, is
 (With all his other learned parts)
*Down as a hammer to the Arts!

Old BILL, the Black, †—you know him, NEDDY—
 (With mug, § whose hue the ebon shames,
 Reflected in a pint of Deady,
 Like a large Collier in the Thames)
 Though somewhat cut,  just begg'd to say
 He hoped that Swell, Lord C—ST—R—GH,
 Would show the Lily-Whites †† fair play ;

* To be down to any thing is pretty much the same as being up to it, and "down as a hammer" is, of course, the intensivum of the phrase.

† RICHMOND.

§ Face.

 Cut, tipsy; another remarkable instance of the similarity that exists between the language of the Classics and that of St. Giles's.—In Martial we find "Incaluit quoties saucia vena mero." Ennius, too, has "sauciavit se flore Liberi;" and Justin, "hesterno mero saucii."

†† Lily-whites (or Snow-balls), Negroes.

“ And not—as once he did”—says BILL,
 “ Among those Kings, so high and squirish,
 “ Leave us, poor Blacks, to fare as ill
 “ As if we were but pigs, or Irish !”

BILL GIBBONS, rising, wish'd to know
 Whether 'twas meant his Bull should go—
 “ As, should their Majesties be dull,”
 Says BILL, “ there's nothing like a Bull : *
 “ And blow me tight,”—(BILL GIBBONS ne'er
 In all his days was known to swear,
 Except light oaths, to grace his speeches,
 Like “ dash my wig,” or “ burn my breeches !”)
 “ Blow me—”
 —Just then, the Chair, † already Grown rather lively with the Deady,

* * * * *

* Bill Gibbons has, I believe, been lately rivalled in this peculiar Walk of the Fancy, by the superior merits of Tom Oliver's Game Bull.

† From the respect which I bear to all sorts of dignitaries, and my unwillingness to meddle with the “imputed weaknesses of the great,” I have been induced to suppress the remainder of this detail.

No. II.

Account of the Milling-match between Entellus and Dares, translated from the Fifth Book of the Æneid,

BY ONE OF THE FANCY.

WITH daddles * high upraised, and nob held back,
In awful prescience of th' impending thwack,
Both Kiddies † stood—and with prelusive spar,
And light manœuvring, kindled up the war!
The One, in bloom of youth—a light-weight blade—
The Other, vast, gigantic, as if made,
Express, by Nature for the hammering trade;
But aged, § slow, with stiff limbs, tottering much,
And lungs, that lack'd the bellows-mender's touch.

* Hands.

† Fellows, usually young fellows.

§ Macrobius, in his explanation of the various properties of the number Seven, says, that the fifth Hebdomas of man's life (the age of 35) is the completion of his strength; that therefore pugilists, if not successful, usually give over their profession at that time.—“Inter pugiles denique hæc consuetudo

Multa viri nequicquam inter se vulnera jactant,
Multa cavo lateri ingeminant, et pectore vastos
Dant sonitus; erratque aures et tempora circum
Crebra manus: duro crepitant sub vulnere malæ.

Stat gravis Entellus, nisuque immotus eodem,
Corpore tela modò atque oculis vigilantibus exit.

Ille, velut celsam oppugnat qui molibus urbem,
Aut montana sedet circum castella sub armis;
Nunc hos, nunc illos aditus, omnemque pererrat
Arte locum, et variis assultibus irritus urget.

Yet, sprightly to the Scratch both Buffers came,
 While ribbers rung from each resounding frame,
 And divers digs, and many a ponderous pelt,
 Were on their broad bread-baskets heard and felt.
 With roving aim, but aim that rarely miss'd,
 Round lugs and *ogles flew the frequent fist;
 While showers of facers told so deadly well,
 That the crush'd jaw-bones crackled as they fell!
 But firmly stood ENTELLUS—and still bright,
 Though bent by age, with all THE FANCY'S light,
Stopp'd with a skill, and rallied with a fire
 Th' Immortal FANCY could alone inspire!
 While DARES, shifting round, with looks of thought,
 An opening to the Cove's huge carcass sought
 (Like General PRESTON, in that awful hour,
 When on one leg he hopp'd to—take the Tower!),
 And here, and there, explored with active fin †
 And skilful feint, some guardless pass to win,
 And prove a boring guest when once let in.

conservatur, ut quos jam coronavere victoriae, nihil de se amplius in incrementis virium sperent; qui vero expertes hujus gloriae usque illo manserunt, a professione discedant." In Somn. Scip. Lib. 1.

* Ears and Eyes.

† Arm.

Ostendit dextram insurgens Entellus, et altè
Extulit: ille ictum venientem a verticè velox
Prævidit, celerique elapsus corpore cessit.
Entellus vires in ventum effudit, et ultrò
Ipse gravis graviterque ad terram pondere vasto
Concidit: ut quondam cava concidit, aut Erymantho,
Aut Idâ in magnâ, radicibus eruta pinus.

Consurgunt studiis Teucris et Trinacria pubes :
It clamor cœlo ; primusque accurrit Acestes
Æquævumque ab humo miserans attollit amicum.

And now ENTELLUS, with an eye that plann'd
Punishing deeds, high raised his heavy hand ;
 But, ere the sledge came down, young DARES spied
 Its shadow o'er his brow, and slipp'd aside—
 So nimbly slipp'd, that the vain nobber pass'd
 Through empty air ; and He, so high, so vast,
 Who dealt the stroke, came thundering to the ground !—
 Not B—CK—GH—M himself, with bulkier sound,*
 Uprooted from the field of Whiggish glories,
 Fell souse, of late, among the astonish'd Tories ! †
 Instant the Ring was broke, and shouts and yells
 From Trojan Flashmen and Sicilian Swells
 Fill'd the wide heaven—while, touch'd with grief to see
 His pal, § well-known through many a lark and spree,
 Thus rumly floor'd, the kind ACESTES ran,
 And pitying raised from earth the game old man.

* As the uprooted trunk in the original is said to be “cava,” the epithet here ought, perhaps, to be “hollower sound.”

† I trust my conversion of the Erymanthian pine into his L—ds—p will be thought happy and ingenious. It was suggested, indeed, by the recollection that Erymanthus was also famous for another sort of natural production, very common in society at all periods, and which no one but Hercules ever seems to have known how to manage. Though even he is described by Valerius Flaccus as—“Erymanthæi sudantem pondere monstri.”

§ Friend.

 Party of pleasure and frolic.

At non tardatus casu, neque territus heros
Acrior ad pugnam redit, ac vim suscitât irâ :
Tum pudor incendit vires, et conscia virtus;
Præcipitemque Daren ardens agit æquore toto,
Nunc dextrâ ingeminans ictus, nunc ille sinistrâ.

Nec mora, nec requies : quàm multâ grandine nimbi
Culminibus crepitant, sic densis ictibus heros
Creber utrâque manu pulsat versatque Dareta.

Tum pater Æneas procedere longiùs iras,
Et sævire animis Entellum haud passus acerbis ;
Sed finem imposuit pugnæ, fessumque Dareta
Eripuit, mulcens dictis, ac talia fatur :

Uncow'd, undamaged to the sport he came,
 His limbs all muscle, and his soul all flame.
 The memory of his milling glories past,
 The shame that aught but death should see him grass'd,
 All fired the veteran's pluck—with fury flush'd
 Full on his light limb'd customer he rush'd,
 And hammering right and left, with ponderous swing, *

Ruffian'd the reeling youngster round the Ring—
 Nor rest, nor pause, nor breathing-time was given,
 But, rapid as the rattling hail from heaven
 Beats on the house-top, showers of RANDALL'S shot †
 Around the Trojan's lugs flew peppering hot!
 'Till now ÆNEAS, fill'd with anxious dread,
 Rush'd in between them, and, with words well-bred,
 Preserved alike the peace and DARES' head,

* This phrase is but too applicable to the round hitting of the ancients, who, it appears by the engravings in Mercurialis de Art. Gymnast. knew as little of our straight-forward mode as the uninitiated Irish of the present day. I have, by the by, discovered some errors in Mercurialis, as well as in two other modern authors upon Pugilism (viz. Petrus Faber, in his Agonisticon, and that indefatigable classic antiquary, M. Burette, in his “Mémoire pour servir à l'Histoire du Pugilat des Anciens”) which I shall have the pleasure of pointing out in my forthcoming “Parallel.”

† A favourite blow of THE NONPAREIL'S, so called.

Infelix! quæ tanta animum dementia cepit?

Non vires alias, conversaque numina sentis?

Cede Deo.

Dixitque, et prælia voce diremit.

Ast illum fidi æquales, genua ægra trahentem,

Jactantemque utroque caput, crassumque cruorem

Ore rejectantem, mixtosque in sanguine dentes,

Ducunt ad naves.

Both which the veteran much inclined to break—

Then kindly thus the punish'd youth bespake:

“ Poor Johnny Raw! what madness could impel

“ So rum a Flat to face so prime a Swell?

“ See'st thou not, boy, THE FANCY, heavenly Maid,

“ Herself descends to this great Hammerer's aid,

“ And, singling him from all her flash adorers,

“ Shines in his hits, and thunders in his floors?

“ Then, yield thee, youth,—nor such a spooney be,

“ To think mere man can mill a Deity!”

Thus spoke the Chief—and now, the scrimage o'er,

His faithful pals the done-up DARES bore

Back to his home, with tottering gams, sunk heart,

And muns and noddle pink'd in every part.*

While from his gob the guggling claret gush'd,

And lots of grinders, from their sockets crush'd,

Forth with the crimson tide in rattling fragments rush'd!

* There are two or three Epigrams in the Greek Anthology, ridiculing the state of mutilation and disfigurement to which the pugilists were reduced by their combats. The following four lines are from an Epigram by Lucillius, lib. 2.

Κοσκινον ἢ κεφαλη σε, Απολλοφανες, γεγενηται,
Η των σητοκοπων βυβλαριων τα κατω.

Ὡς μυχρῆκαν τρυπημαῖα λοῖζα καὶ οὐθα,
Γραμμαῖα τῶν λυρικῶν Λυδία καὶ Φρυγία.

Literally, as follows: "Thy head, O Apollophanes, is perforated like a sieve, or like the leaves of an old worm-eaten book; and the numerous scars, both straight and cross-ways, which have been left upon thy pate by the cestus, very much resemble the score of a Lydian or Phrygian piece of music." Periphrastically, thus:

Your noddle, dear Jack, full of holes like a sieve,
Is so figured, and dotted, and scratch'd, I declare,
By your customers' fists, one would almost believe
They had punch'd a whole verse of "The Woodpecker"
there!

It ought to be mentioned, that the word "punching" is used both in boxing and music-engraving.

No. III.

As illustrative of the Noble Lord's visit to Congress, I take the liberty of giving the two following pieces of poetry, which appeared some time since in the Morning Chronicle, and which are from the pen, I suspect, of that facetious Historian of the Fudges, Mr. Thomas Brown, the Younger.

cern'd in't.

For not the great R—G—T himself has endured (Though I've seen him with badges and orders all shine,

Till he look'd like a house that was over insured)
A much heavier burthen of glories than thine.

And 'tis plain, when a wealthy young lady so mad is,
Or any young ladies can so go astray,

As to marry old Dandies that might be their daddies,
The *stars are in fault, my Lord ST—W—RT, not they!

Thou, too, t'other brother, thou Tully of Tories,
Thou Malaprop Cicero, over whose lips

“glories,”
And “nullidge,”† and “features,” like syllabub slips.

Go, haste, at the Congress pursue thy vocation
Of adding fresh sums to this National Debt of ours,
Leaguings with Kings, who, for mere recreation, Break promises, fast as your Lordship breaks metaphors.

Fare ye well, fare ye well, bright Pair of Peers,
And may Cupid and Fame fan you both with their pinions!

The One, the best lover we have—of his years,
And the Other, Prime Statesman of Britain's dominions.

* “When weak women go astray,
“The stars are more in fault than they.”

† It is thus the Noble Lord pronounces the word “knowledge”—deriving it, as far as his own share is concerned, from the Latin “nullus.”

 BOB GREGSON,

POET LAUREATE OF THE FANCY.

“ FOR hitting and getting away (says the elegant Author of Boxiana) RICHMOND is distinguished; and the brave MOLINEUX keeps a strong hold in the circle of boxers, as a pugilist of the first class; while the CHAMPION OF ENGLAND stands unrivalled for his punishment, game, and milling on the retreat!—but, notwithstanding the above variety of qualifications, it has been reserved for BOB GREGSON, alone, from his union of PUGILISM and POETRY, to recount the deeds of his Brethren of the Fist in heroic verse, like the bards of old, sounding the praises of their warlike champions.” The same author also adds, that “ although not possessing the terseness and originality of Dryden, or the musical cadence and correctness of Pope, yet still BOB has entered into his peculiar subject with a characteristic energy and apposite spirit.” Vol. I.

p. 357.

This high praise of Mr. GREGSON's talents is fully borne out by the specimen which his eulogist has given, page 358—a very spirited Chaunt, or Nemean ode, entitled “British Lads and Black Millers.”

The connexion between poetical and pugnacious propensities seems to have been ingeniously adumbrated by the ancients, in the bow with which they armed Apollo :

Φοίβω γὰρ καὶ ΤΟΞΟΝ ἐπιτρέπεται καὶ ΑΟΙΔΗ.
Callimach. Hymn. in Apollin. v. 44.

The same mythological bard informs us that, when Minerva bestowed the gift of inspiration upon Tiresias, she also made him a present of a large cudgel :

Δώσω καὶ ΜΕΓΑ ΒΑΚΤΡΟΝ :

another evident intimation of the congeniality supposed to exist between the exercises of the Imagination and those of THE FANCY. To no one at the present day is the double wreath more justly due than to Mr. BOB GREGSON. In addition to his numerous original productions, he has condescended to give imitations of some of our living poets—particularly of Lord Byron and Mr. Moore; and the amatory style of the latter gentleman has been caught, with peculiar felicity, in the following lines, which were addressed, some years ago, to MISS GRACE MADDOX, a young Lady of pugilistic celebrity, of whom I have already made honourable mention in the Preface.

LINES

TO MISS GRACE MADDOX, THE FAIR PUGILIST.

Written in imitation of the style of Moore.

BY BOB GREGSON, P. P.

SWEET Maid of the Fancy!—whose ogles,* adorning
 That beautiful cheek, ever budding like bowers,
 Are bright as the gems that the first Jew† of morning Hawks round Covent-Garden, 'mid cart-loads of flowers!

* Eyes.

† By the trifling alteration of “dew” into “Jew,” Mr. Gregson has contrived to collect the three chief ingredients of Moore's poetry, viz. dews, gems, and flowers, into the short compass of these two lines.

Oh Grace of the Graces! whose kiss to my lip
 Is as sweet as the brandy and tea, rather thinnish,
 That Knights of the *Rumpad so rurally sip,
 At the first blush of dawn, in the Tap of the Finish!†
 Ah, never be false to me, fair as thou art,
 Nor belie all the many kind things thou hast said;
 The falsehood of other nymphs touches the Heart,
 But THY fibbing, my dear, plays the dev'l with the Head!

Yet, who would not prize, beyond honours and pelf,
 A maid to whom Beauty such treasures has granted,
 That, ah, she not only has black eyes, herself,
 But can furnish a friend with a pair, too, if wanted!
 Lord ST—W—RT's a hero (as many suppose),
 And the Lady he woos is a rich and a rare one;
 His heart is in Chancery, every one knows,
 And so would his head be, if thou wert his fair one.
 Sweet Maid of the Fancy! when love first came o'er me,
 I felt rather queerish, I freely confess;

* Highwaymen.

† See Note, page 235. Brandy and tea is the favourite beverage at the Finish.

But now I've thy beauties each moment before me,
The pleasure grows more, and the queerishness less.
Thus a new set of darbies,* when first they are worn,
Makes the Jail-bird † uneasy, though splendid their ray;
But the links will lie lighter the longer they're borne,
And the comfort increase, as the shine fades away!

I had hoped that it would have been in my power to gratify the reader with several of Mr. GREGSON's lyrical productions, but I have only been able to procure copies of Two Songs, or Chaunts, which were written by him for a Masquerade, or Fancy Ball, given lately at one of the most Fashionable Cock-and-Hen clubs in St Giles's. Though most of the company were without characters, there were a few very lively and interesting maskers; among whom, we particularly noticed BILL RICHMOND, as the Emperor of Hayti,* attended by SUTTON, as a sort of black Mr. V—N—S—T—T; and IKEY PIG made an excellent L—S D—XH—T. The beautiful Mrs. CROCKEY,† who keeps the Great Rag Shop in Bermondsey, went as the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street. She was observed to flirt a good deal with the black Mr. V—NS—T—T, but, to do her justice, she guarded her “Hesperidum mala” with all the vigilance of a dragoness. JACK HOLMES,§ the pugilistic Coachman, personated Lord C—ST—R—GH, and sang in admirable style

Ya-hip, my Hearties! here am I
That drive the Constitution Fly.

This Song (which was written for him by Mr. REGSON, and in which the language and sentiments of Coachee are transferred so ingeniously to the Noble person represented) is as follows :

YA-HIP, MY HEARTIES !

Sung by JACK HOLMES, the Coachman, at a late Masquerade in St. Giles's, in the Character of Lord C—ST—R—GH.

I FIRST was hired to peg a Hack *
 They call "The Erin," sometime back,
 Where soon I learn'd to patter flash, †
 To curb the tits § and tip the lash—
 Which pleased the Master of THE CROWN
 So much, he had me up to town,
 And gave me lots of quids  a year,
 To tool †† "The Constitution" here.

So, ya-hip, Hearties ! here am I
 That drive the Constitution Fly.

* To drive a hackney coach. Hack, however, seems in this place to mean an old broken down stage-coach.

† To talk slang, parliamentary or otherwise.

§ Horses.

 Money.

†† A process carried on successfully under the Roman Emperors, as appears from what Tacitus says of the "Instrumenta Regni."—To tool is a technical phrase among the Knights of the Whip ; thus, that illustrious member of the Society, Richard Cypher, Esq. says : "I've dash'd at every thing—pegg'd at a jervy—tool'd a mail-coach."

Some wonder how the Fly holds out,
 So rotten 'tis, within, without ;
 So loaded too, through thick and thin,
 And with such heavy creturs IN.
 But, Lord, 'twill last our time—or if
 The wheels should, now and then, get stiff,
*Oil of Palm's the thing that, flowing,
 Sets the naves and felloes† going !

So, ya-hip, Hearties ! etc.

Some wonder, too, the tits that pull
 This rum concern along, so full,
 Should never back or bolt, or kick
 The load and driver to Old Nick.
 But, never fear—the breed, though British,
 Is now no longer game or skittish ;
 Except sometimes about their corn,
 Tamer Houyhnhnms§ ne'er were born.

So, ya-hip, Hearties ! etc.

* Money.

† In Mr. Gregson's MS. these words are spelled "knaves and fellows," but I have printed them according to the proper wheelwright orthography.

§ The extent of Mr. Gregson's learning will, no doubt, astonish the reader ; and it appears by the following lines,

And then so sociably we ride!—
 While some have places, snug, inside,
 Some hoping to be there anon,
 Through many a dirty road hang on.
 And when we reach a filthy spot
 (Plenty of which there are, God wot),
 You'd laugh to see, with what an air
 We take the spatter—each his share!

So, ya-hip, Hearties! etc.

The other song of Mr. Gregson, which I have been lucky enough to lay hold of, was sung by Old Prosy, the Jew, who went in the character of Major C—RTW—GHT, and who having been, at one time of his life, apprentice to a mountebank doctor, was able to enumerate, with much volubility, the virtues of a certain infallible nostrum, which he called his ANNUAL PILL. The pronunciation of the Jew added considerably to the effect.

from a Panegyric written upon him, by One of the Fancy, that he is also a considerable adept in the Latin language:

“As to sciences—BOB knows a little of all,
 “And, in Latin, to show that he's no ignoramus,
 “He wrote once an Ode on his friend, Major Paul,
 “And the motto was Paulo majora canamus!”

THE ANNUAL PILL.

VILL nobodies try my nice Annual Pill,

'Tis so pretty a bolus!—just down let it go,

And at vonce, such a radical shange you vill see,

Dat I'd not be surprish'd, like de horse in de show,

If our heads all vere found, vere our tailsh ought to

Vill nobodies try my nice Annual Pill, etc.

'Twill cure all Electors, and purge away clear

Dat mighty bad itching dey've got in deir hands—

'Twill cure, too, all Statesmen, of dullness, ma tear,

Though the case vas as desperate as poor Mister VAN's.

Dere is noting at all vat dis Pill vill not reach—

Give de Sinecure Shentleman von little grain,

Pless ma heart, it vill act like de salt on de leech,

And he'll throw de pounds, shillings, and pence, up

Vill nobodies try my nice Annual Pill, etc.

'Twould be tedious, ma tear, all its peauties to paint—
 But, among oder tings fundamentally wrong,
 It vill cure de Proad Pottom *—a common complaint
 Among M. P's. and weavers—from sitting too long. †
 Should symptoms of speeching preak out on a dunce,
 (Vat is often de case) it vill stop de disease,
 And pring away all de long speeches at vonce,
 Dat else vould, like tape-vorms, come by degrees !
 Vill nobodies try my nice Annual Pill,
 Dat's to purify every ting nashty away ?
 Pless ma heart, pless ma heart, let ma say vat I vill,
 Not a Christian or Shentleman minds vat I say !

* Meaning, I presume, Coalition Administrations.

† Whether sedentary habits have any thing to do with this peculiar shape, I cannot determine, but that some have supposed a sort of connection between them, appears from the following remark, quoted in Kornmann's curious book, de Virginitatis Jure—"Ratio perquam lepida est apud Kirchner. in Legato, cum natura illas partes, quæ ad sessionem sunt destinatæ, latiores in fæminis fecerit quam in viris, innuens domi eas manere debere." Cap. 40.

No. V.

The following poem is also from the Morning Chronicle, and has every appearance of being by the same pen as the two others I have quoted. The Examiner, indeed, in extracting it from the Chronicle, says, "we think we can guess whose easy and sparkling hand it is."

TO SIR HUDSON LOWE.

Effare causam nominis,
Utrum ne mores hoc tui
Nomen dedere, an nomen hoc Secuta morum regula.

AUSONIUS.

SIR Hudson Lowe, Sir Hudson Low
(By name, and ah! by nature so),
As thou art fond of persecutions,
Perhaps thou'st read, or heard repeated,
How Captain Gulliver was treated,
When thrown among the Lilliputians.

They tied him down—these little men did—
And having valiantly ascended

Upon the Mighty Man's protuberance,
They did so strut!—upon my soul,
It must have been extremely droll
To see their pigmy pride's exuberance!

And how the doughty mannikins
Amused themselves with sticking pins
And needles in the great man's breeches;
And how some very little things,
That pass'd for Lords, on scaffoldings
Got up and worried him with speeches.

Alas, alas! that it should happen
To mighty men to be caught napping!—
Though different, too, these persecutions;
For Gulliver, there, took the nap,
While, here, the Nap, oh sad mishap,
Is taken by the Lilliputians!
